

The Tweed News/SHANNON BINDER BRAY

The history of Tweed's mill, as depicted in this 1977 drawing by Dale Ilko, is on display at the Tweed & Area Heritage Centre through to the end of February. Mills, said curator Evan Morton, were the heart of communities, and Tweed's certainly captivated many artists throughout its years.

On March 18th, recommendations will officially be made to school board officials requesting the new school be named Tweed Elementary School, based on the popular vote by students. An additional request will be made to maintain the history of SH Connor by naming the new school library the SH Connor Learning Commons. Student representatives Dylan McPhillips and Amanda Shipley will be approaching students as well to hear their school colours, logo and mascot suggestions.
