

The Tweed News/SHANNON BINDER BRAY

Physiotherapist Sandi Gunning works on a client in her new downtown location.

By SHANNON BINDER BRAY

The Tweed News
Gunning's Physiotherapy is now open for business in a totally renovated 2,000 square foot, fully accessible location, downtown Tweed. The welcoming space offers a ramp entry, a large exercise space, two private physiotherapy treatment rooms and a private massage therapy room.

which only had 600 square feet) will accommodate more exercise equipment and allow for personal training sessions by Gunning's athletic physiotherapist, another physiotherapist/personal trainer and a massage therapist/certified athletic therapist. In addition to the

In addition to the massage therapy, physiotherapy athletic therapy and personal training, hot stone massage will also be available.

massage therapy, physiotherapy athletic therapy and personal training, hot stone massage will also be available.

Adding a bit of historical character to the foyer is a section of the building's original tin ceiling, uncovered and

The extra space (compared to the previous location therapist. The new centre will staff Gunning as salvaged during the extensive renovation.