A TREE OF LIFE

The Beamsville Women's Institute planted a Crimson Maple tree in front of the Lincoln Centre in Beamsville to commemorate 84 years of service to the community. Helping to plant the tree are, from left: Lincoln Mayor Ray Konkle, Joe Romagnoli and Frank 'Barny' Barnfield, both from the Lincoln Centre board of management, and Barbara Stones, president of the women's institute.

Tree is dedicated by Beamsville W.I.

(The following report has been provided by the Beamsville Women's Institute.)

A Crimson Maple tree has been dedicated to the Town of Lincoln by the Beamsville Women's Institute to commemorate 84 years of service to the community.

With its first meeting held in Beamsville in 1905, the Institute began a long history of fulfilling its aims: to help identify and resolve the needs and problems in the community, to help promote use of available resource material, and to help develop better informed, happier and more useful citizens.

The Beamsville W.I. this year made donations to the Association for Community Living, the Albright Manor Building Fund and the 4-H group. Every spring, the W.I. plants geraniums at the cenotaph in front of Jacob Beam Public School in Beamsville.

The W.I. is also responsible for the scholarship fund awarded each year to a Beamsville District Secondary School student taking family studies.

A non-denominational group Beamsville W.I. welcomes women from all walks of life in the community.
