

Winds wreak havoc

HUGO WASHED this boat onto a Charleston street. The hurricane was packing 100 mph winds when it hit.

GIVE THEM SHELTER

Firefighters cover Everett Maine with a coat as a Charleston nursing home was evacuated before Hugo touched down, left. Flood waters rose in this posh Charleston neighbourhood, but area mansions sustained little damage, right.

