Dr. Dwight Smith remembered

By John Eedy

Although Dr. Dwight Smith moved from St. Marys some 30 years ago he left many good memories here with citizens of our whole area. One hears his name often mentioned with fondness, particularly by people he knew and served as a medical doctor.

So when the news of his untimely passing was heard here last week there was a real note of sadness felt in many places, especially since such a brilliant career had been brought to a close so quickly. He was in his 65th year.

Many of the people here remember Dwight Smith as a bright and pleasant young man who was not only devoted to the duties of his medical practice, but found time to be a kind and thoughtful husband and father.

He also gave time and attention to other community endeavors with special attention to activities and membership in the United Church of Canada.

Dwight also had a desire to advance his medical knowledge and expertise. One of the ways he advanced this was to do a five-year tour of duty at the Harper Hospital in Detroit. A study period in medicine was also completed in Boston.

After giving the people of his first chosen community a generous length of service, a move was made to Woodstock where he practised medicine until his state of health prevented his activities from continuing.

Dwight Smith always had the love and support of his wife, the former Ruth Burston, and his family.

Surviving members include Dr. Shawn Smith and wife Terry, of Fredricton, N.B., Keith (and Janet) Smith, Burlington, Ontario; daughter Honor (and Jim) Mosey, Whitby; Kevin Smith, Toronto, and Daintry (and Randy) Klein, Toronto.

He also leaves six grandchildren as well as two brothers, J. Austin Smith, Willowdale, and Omar L. Smith, Grimsby.

The funeral service was held on Friday, October 23 at St. David's United Church, Woodstock with Reverend Peter Scott officiating.
