

Still relevant - Pres. of Oxford W.I. March 1983
Despite recent criticism directed at the Women's Institute, Oxford South president Margaret Dale of Curries believes the organization is still relevant to the needs of rural women. (NG Photo)

Life member
Pearl Pearson (right) of Burgessville presented Olive Harrison of Zenda with her life membership pin at the 50th anniversary celebrations of the Zenda Women's Institute. Mrs. Harrison is a charter member of the Zenda Women's Institute, formed as a Junior Institute in 1933. (NG Photo)

Memorial erected

Norwich area monument maker Herman Skledar got a helping hand from Bill Silverthorne in erecting this heavy granite monument on the site of the former New Durham United Church last Thursday. The church was destroyed by the 1979 tornado that swept through the area and the congregation decided not to rebuild the 126-year-old structure, constructed in 1853. Mr. Skledar was commissioned to create this monument with a bronze plaque commemorating the church at its original site at the east end of the village of New Durham. (NG Photo)

Feb. 1983