

Recipients of trophies and prize money for winning entries in the Best Traditional Christmas parade category show off their trophies - first place, the Chesley Girl Guides, with leaders Pam Klein and Berneice Hamel; second place, the Chesley Ministerial Association, represented by Reverends Patricia and Rob Luxton and third place to the Sparks, Brownies and Pathfinders, represented by Jan Reid and Rev. Patricia Luxton.

Chesley's 1994 Candlelight Christmas parade had three parade themes this year and winners of the Cartoon Christmas parade theme were members of the Chesley Curling Club. Accepting the trophy and cash prize from parade chairman Duane Stade was Susan Godin. Second prize in that category went to Multiple Enterprises Inc. and accepting the prize on behalf of the MEI staff was Bev Steward. The Big Sisters' placed third and receiving their prize was Big Sisters' Case Manager, Reverend Patricia Luxton. Parade sponsors, the Chesley Kinsmen Club and parade co-chairmen, Duane Stade and Kevin Buoy, express their thanks to judges Jim McFadden, Myrna Cooke and Patti Ratchford for their efforts in picking the parade winners. It was not an easy task!
(Golem photos)

The inaugural meeting of the new Chesley Town Council was held Monday evening. Members of town council for the next three years are (back row - left to right) Councillor Bob Hutchinson, Deputy Reeve Peter Knipfel, Clerk-Treasurer Joan Albright, Councillor Bud Halpin and Councillor Ron Oswald. In the front are Reeve Danard Bell, Mayor James Jacklin and Councillor Glenys Johnson.

SBV3.25

Six employees of the Chesley and District Hospital were acknowledged for years of service at the Christmas party Saturday night. Beth Ann MacDonald, 15 years, Sandy Weatherall, 20 years and Lena Weber and Lorraine Gallinger, 25 years each, were surprised with gifts and thanked for their time at the hospital.
(Elder photo)