School Examination.

On Friday last, a public examination of the Ayr School took place before Mr. Brydon, superintendent of Common Schools for this County, the Trustees, and a number of parents and others interested in the education of the youth of this neighbourhood. As we were not present at the examination, we can offer no opinion of our own as to the progress made by the children attending the School in the various branches of education taught; but we have been informed that the examination proved creditable alike to the teachers and those taught.

In the evening, addresses on education were delivered in the school, by Mr. Brydon the superintendent, and Mr. R. McLean, teacher of Blenheim Richmond

Mr. Brydon referred to the great blessings enjoyed by the people of this country, in having such excellent Common Schools, and dwelt for some length of time on the lasting benefits derived from a system of general education. He said that there were no other institutions that deserved so much attention as our Schools. In them the youth of the country were being trained up and fitted to occupy the positions in society at present filled by their parents, and if they did not receive such an education as would qualify them for acting their part well in after life, then we were deserving of censure. Mr. B. referred to some length to the moral training which ought to be inculcated at our Schools, and concluded by congratulating those present on the prosperous state of education in this locality. He said that we had reason to feel proud of our school, as it was certainly the best conducted Common School in the County, and the teachers we employed had always been such as were capable of performing the duties entrusted to them with credit.

Mr. R. McLean commenced by stating that as he was about to undertake the management of our School, he thought the opportunity a good one for making a few observations to parents and children as to what they might expect from him, and he would also make them acquainted with what he, as a Teacher, expected from parents and children. He said that the Teacher of a Common School was often subjected to much annoyance and injustice in consequence of parents not being fully acquainted with the duties they ought to perform in conjunction with the efforts made by the teacher for the education of their children. Parties too often judged the actions of a teacher hastily—they too often listened to the desires of their children without consulting the teacher as to the advisability of the course to be pursued in the education of those attending School. The teacher of a school knew best what course of studies was suited to the different scholars in his school, and when he desired parents to procure books, it was their duty to get such books without delay, in order that the affairs of the school might be conducted in a pleasant and successful manner. Mr. McL. particularly urged on parents the necessity of sending regularly and punctually to school all the children attending, and proved in a very satisfactory manner that the children who did not attend regularly, had but a very poor chance to improve with any degree of rapidity in their studies. He referred to the fact that the attendance at the school averaged from 130 to 150, and as there were to be three teachers employed during the coming year, he strongly advised the rate payers of the School Section to make the School FREE, so that all might enjoy the privilege of educating their children; and concluded by stating that if the parents of this School Section would endeavour, in conjunction with him, to promote the education of their children, he would guarantee that at the close of the next year he would be able to show them unmistakable proofs of the progress of education.

BETTER STILL! TO BE SEEN AT CANNING.

THE Subscriber in returning thanks to the Public, for the very liberal support hitherto bestowed on him, begs to inform them that he has just received his

Fall Stock of Goods,

Which he now offers for sale, at such prices that cannot fail in giving general satisfaction. His Stock will consist of

DRY GOODS,

Groceries, Crockery, Hardware, BOOTS AND SHOES,

READY MADE CLOTHING,

in great variety.

Clothing made to order on the shortest notice.

All of which he is determined to sell as low as any other establishment west of Hamilton, as "small profits and quick returns" will ever be the motto at the Canning Store. The lowest price will invariably be asked, and no abatement made.

Farmers study your own interest, do not deceive yourselves into the belief that you can do better by going to Paris, or to any other place, but just come and see for yourselves, then you can judge: as the Subscriber has gained not a few customers in the interest of the Store, where the Subscriber consists of individuals, to submit a list of prices, knowing it is necessary for parties to see for themselves before they can judge.

The highest market price will be paid for farm produce, 5000 bushels Oats wanted. Cash paid for Pork at the Canning Store.

J. WATSON.

WOULD beg to call the attention of Farmers to the fact that he is now manufacturing a large number of a specimen of which he exhibited at the late Shows of the Counties of Brant and Waterloo, at Paris and Galt, and for which premiums were awarded him.

It is hardly necessary to state that these Machines are made by good workmen and of the best materials that can be procured.

J. W. is making THRASHING MACHINES of the very best description, which are giving great satisfaction to those using them.

Old Thrashing Machines repaired.

J. W. still makes and keeps on hand Cooking, Parlor, and Box Stoves in great variety. He also has Ploughs in greater variety than ever, and he can supply customers, from the old Ancaster Plough up to the latest and most improved patterns.

TINSMITHING in all its branches. Blacksmithing done to order. Turning, Finishing, and Fitting attended to on the shortest notice.
