Around the Corner -

I have been so busy finishing my Centennial project I haven't had time to notice much around the corner - except, of course, the gorgeous Christmas lights. There seems to be more twinkling each evening. Al Kennedy took advantage of the springlike weather yesterday to add to his outdoor decorations. Cathy put her first through ours last year so guess we'll have to stand her on the corner with a candle.

Recipe of The Week

Marguerite Masterman's CHERRY DELIGHT (for a light Christmas dessert)

15 oz. can pitted red cherries
3/4 cup ginger ale
3 oz. pkg. cherry flavored jelly powder
Toasted almonds
1 ripe banana
Sweetened whipped cream.

Drain cherries and measure out 1 cup juice (add a little water if necessary) Combine with ginger ale and heat to boiling point. Remove from heat and add jelly powder. Stir until it is dissolved. Cool (do not chill). Put a thin layer of the jelly mixture in the bottom of a 1-qt. jelly mould. Chill until this layer of jelly is set but still a little sticky on the surface.

Dry cherries on paper towels. Cut almonds in half lengthwise and stuff each cherry with a piece of almond. Cover the set jelly layer with some cherries and cover them with another layer of jelly.

Slice the banana and add to the top. Add remaining jelly. Chill several hours. unmould
