

Canadian Aviation Safety Board (CASB) investigator Jim Armour (left) and supervisor Joe Jackson, examine paint chips left by Flight 1363 on a jack pine in its path after takeoff from Dryden Municipal Airport March 10. Investigators believe this tree, 160 metres west of the airport runway, was the first tree hit by the ill-fated aircraft.

MAR 21 1989 p. 1 D.O.

Staff photo