A Japanese Lullaby.

Sleep, little pigeon, and fold your wings— Little blue pigeon with velvet eyes: Sleep to the singing of the mother bird swinging— Swinging the nest where her little one lies.

Away out yonder I see a star— Silvery star with a twinkling song; To the soft duces falling I here it calling— Calling and twinkling the night along.

In through the window moonbeam comes— Little gold moonbeam with misty wings; All silently creeping, it asks: "Is he sleeping— Sleeping and dreaming while mother sings?"

Up from the sea there floats a sob— Of the waves that are breaking upon the shore As though they were groaning in anguish, and moaning— Bemoaning the ship that shall come no more.

But sleep, little pigeon, and fold your wings— Little bluepigeon with mournful eyes; Am I not singing—see I am swinging— Swinging the nest where my darling lies. Chicago News.

Explorer Stanley was paid at the rate of $50,000 a year while he was hunting for Emin Pasha. He was not docked for sickness or for time lost in shooting elephants, and he was allowed to kill as many natives as he pleased without even being reprimanded.

A somewhat singular case of blood-poisoning has occurred in Berlin. A woman walked across her floor without slippers, and a pin ran into one of her feet. It was pulled out at once, but the foot soon swelled, with most violent pain, and the doctor was called in. He declared it to be a case of blood-poisoning, caused by the colored wool of the stocking. He ordered her to be taken at once to an hospital, where the foot was amputated.

There are many people alive yet who want something for nothing. A man named R. A. Senns, of Minneapolis, sent out offers to give three pieces of elegantly-upholstered parlor furniture as an advertisement to all who would send 90 cents to pay boxing. Many sent the money and got three cute little iron toys with plush seats and pretty finish. The recipients were surprised, and yet cannot claim that they were badly swindled, for they got all they paid for.
