We would draw the attention of our townspeople to the fact that Artemesia Orangemen congregate here on the twelfth. Can we not give them a good reception by making the town as attractive as possible, and show them that we appreciate their presence among us? Let us try.

What might have been a serious accident occurred at "The Elbow" on the gravel road, near Flesherton, on Monday last. Mr. and Mrs. Broughton, while driving down the hill were thrown down the embankment by the shying of their horse. Beyond a severe shaking up no serious damage was done.

The camping season has arrived, and several of Flesherton's young men departed on Monday for the happy fishing grounds near Kimberley. The contingent consisted of Mr. Will Armstrong, W. Moore and T. Clayton. We hope to be able to chronicle some abnormal fish stories when they arrive home.

Flesherton already has a reputation as a summer resort. Every season it welcomes large numbers of visitors who are in search of a quiet and attractive spot in which to spend the "dog days." They find it here, too. Cool atmosphere, splendid scenery, good roads for driving upon, and attractive surroundings cause all such visitors to leave us with a strong desire to return the following season, which laudable desire they always gratify.

The burglars who broke in R. Trimble's store here and did so much fine work down around Stayner, will not be heard from again for three years. Their last public move was thus chronicled in Tuesday's Empire: George Cole and Henry Godwin, two gentlemen who have an extensive Kingston acquaintance and who have been for the past three months actively engaged in their usual predatory operations at Collingwood, Stayner and Barrie, passed through Toronto yesterday on their way, in charge of an officer, to the Kingston penitentiary. The pair were convicted of burglary at Barrie last week and sentenced to three years each.

"The New Highway to the Orient" is the title of a beautiful little work just issued by the General Passenger Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, descriptive of a tour to the Pacific Coast over the trans-continental line. It is superbly illustrated with many full page engravings and its forty-five pages of gracefully written matter contain much useful information concerning the cities, towns and scenic marvels reached by the Canadian Pacific system. It is well worth your while to secure a copy, which may be obtained free upon application to W. R. Callaway, District Passenger Agent, 118 King St. West, Toronto.

Daisy Churns—The best made yet. They make the best butter with least labor in shortest time. See them at M. Richardson's Hardware Store.

Those puzzling over the important question of where to go for their summer holidays, will find the little volume "Summer Tours," issued by the General Passenger Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a most useful adviser. It describes a delightful variety of tours by rail, lake and river, to popular inland and sea-coast resorts, to the Rocky Mountains, the Pacific Coast, Alaska, &c., from which attractive long or short trips may be selected to suit the wishes of all tourists. This book is published in pocket form, neatly gotten up and adorned with many handsome illustrations, and may be obtained free upon application to W. R. Callaway, District Passenger Agent, 118 King St. West, Toronto.

The Markdale Standard waxes funny as follows: "The Flesherton Advance last week, drew our attention to the fact that the elections were on. Judging from the handsome (1) majority the member in Centre Grey rolled up it is evident that the great influence of the Advance was felt in the Riding." Our subscribers all voted, and had the Markdale man not been afraid to inform his readers that an election was at hand Mr. Rorke's majority would have been much larger. We all like independence, but the moral coward who is afraid to let his opinions be known sticks in our throats when we make an attempt to swallow him. Luke warm water produces nausea. We have one more question to ask the Standard and when that is answered satisfactory he may rest. It is this: For what object does he belong to, the Conservatives Association? Is it really because his sympathies are with the party or simply for the purpose of getting a little printing? In this election, if the latter, the object has not been attained to any great extent. If the former, we will be too happy to let a large number of anxious readers know the truth.

The Prospect. The frequent rain storms which have prevailed over the western portion of Ontario for the past fortnight have probably done more good in this township than in any other within a radius of fifty miles. The soil being of a sandy nature absorbs the moisture in great quantities, while on stiffer ground it would lay near the surface and retard growth. The consequence of this is that the crops in Artemesia were never in a better condition than at present. The meadows give promise of an immense yield of hay, and fruit will be at a discount in this portion if present prospects hold good. All of which is matter of great rejoicing.

Personals. Miss Gertie Bulmer is visiting friends in Singhampton.

Mr. H. Glendinning, principal of Markdale public school, has been appointed as a presiding examiner at the teacher's examination in Owen Sound to be held in July.

Mr. W. Tyler, Division Court Clerk of Erin village, is visiting with his granddaughter, Mrs. Shilton. Mr. T. is a remarkably vigorous old gentleman of 82 years, and has been Division Court clerk for forty-four years—being the oldest office holder of this description in Ontario, with one exception. He has also been recording steward in the Methodist church of Erin village for the long period of 48 years.
