Below I give a few testimonials:
Dear Sir—The two pumps you put in for me are giving me the splendid satisfaction (one of them got deep, the other 23). I am well pleased with them.
JOHN PORTOUS, Flesherton.

Mr. J. ARTELEY,
Dear Sir—In reply to your's of the 12th inst. I would say that the pump you put in for me has proved very satisfactory. It being durable and very easy to work. Enclosed please find $5 balance for pump.
ARTHUR JOHNSTON, Vandeclour.
June 16th, 1890.
Dear Sir—Your favor to hand enquiring how we got along with the Wind Mill. I might say we had no difficulty in putting it together. It is working splendid. The pump does its work all right. I like the working of the Victor Wind Mill very much. It governs itself nicely in a high wind and I think it far more durable than a wooden mill.
N. DEXBURY, Meaford.
To JEFFREY ARTELEY, Markdale:
Sir—The pump I purchased from you for $7 foot well gives complete satisfaction. It works with the greatest ease, for the quantity of water delivered, of any pump I have ever tested. I believe it is constructed on a simple and durable principle and not liable to get out of order. I could not wish for a better pump, and can, with the utmost confidence, recommend it.
Wishing you every success, I remain, yours &c., J. W. SPROULE, Markdale.

might still be lurking in the neighborhood the brothers decided as a last resort to appeal to him for assistance if he could be found. Wesley shouted for their foe to come out of the woods and assist them, promising at the same time that he would not be harmed and that his property would be returned to him. To the great astonishment of the distressed men Keso walked boldly forth from among the trees, and with no apparent distrust offered his services in assisting to carry over the large canoe and the young men were shortly on their journey towards assistance.

Speaking of the matter in after years Wesley has declared that he never was so sorely tempted to cast honor to the winds as he was when Keso, the would-be murderer, walked before him carrying goods across that portage. Strange to say the Indian appeared to place implicit trust in the promise which had been given, and exhibited no fear that the young men's honor would be betrayed.

It was a long and weary row ere the settlement on the south shore of Nipissing was reached, but it came to an end at last and the wounded man was safely placed in the care of friends.
The next important step was to secure a physician, and this could only be accomplished by sending a messenger 34 miles to the nearest point where medical aid could be procured. Upon the doctor's arrival and examination of the wound it was deemed advisable to secure a second physician for consultation and assistance. This entailed a farther trip of 68 miles. For four long painful days Alfred Wright lay upon his bed without the lacerated limb receiving necessary attention. The limb was broken on the 8th day of August and was only finally set on the last day of that month. Fortunately the weather was pleasantly cool, otherwise mortification must surely have set in. But the shattered bone was finally set, and although the young man lay for months unable to move himself, still a wonderfully strong constitution and vigorous young manhood carried him through, and without the loss of a limb. The Indian's family were assiduous in their attentions upon the invalid, bringing him delicacies of the chase, such as fish, pheasants and venison, and expressed much concern at his condition. Keso himself was arrested for the crime and died in Kingston penitentiary a few years ago while serving a life sentence for the attempted murder.
The Wright brothers disposed of their property at Commanda and are at present carrying on a lucrative wholesale business in New York city
