Literary Notes.

LOVE AND MARRIAGE IN JAPAN.

Sir Edwin Arnold, who has been enjoying an interesting trip through the United States, has made a careful study of the conditions which govern the family in Japan and embodies his ideas in a paper called "Love and Marriage in Japan," in the February number of The Cosmopolitan. The article is illustrated by the quaintest possible Japanese sketches running down the sides and across the bottom of each page. An excellent photograph of W. D. Howells, serves as a frontispiece, and his work as a writer of fiction is reviewed in the same number by H. H. Boyesen. The President of John Hopkins University gives a most practical paper for parents on "Boys and Boys' Schools, illustrated by cartoons of the famous Atwood. Murat Halstead turns back lovingly to his early farm days, tells of the "Pets and Sports of a Farmer Boy." The petroleum industry fully illustrated; An Afghan Story by Archibald Forbes; The Story of the Brazilian Republic by Adams, late Minister of that country; and The Leading Amateurs of the United States in photography, are other leading articles of the month.

AN EGYPTIAN CURIOSITY.

In July, 1881, there were discovered in the ancient city of Thebes, the mummies of Egypt's mightiest Pharaohs, among them that of Rameses the Great. There were also found seals, coins, statuettes, preserved food, and a few rolls of papyrus, some of the latter being of great value, curiously bound together, and, notwithstanding the mould and mildew of ages upon them, as easily read as if written yesterday. A queer little book entitled, "A Night With Rameses II.," has been executed so cleverly, that the oxidized seal, suggestions of mould, antique coloring, and partially decayed and ragged-edged papyrus, carry at once to the mind the possession of a veritable relic from the dawn of civilization. Mailed to any address on receipt of 6 cts. in stamps, by J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Lost by Delay.

Great Britain is supreme in Australia, but she came near having a rival in France. If it had not been for the selection of an officer who could not act promptly and keep his own counsel when France had conceived the plan of taking possession of New Zealand, the great islands which constitute that colony would to-day have been a French possession. The story is told in "At the Antipodes."

A certain Captain L'Anglois, being much charmed with the position of Akaroa, on Bank's Peninsula in the Island of New Zealand, bought a large district of land in the neighborhood, and returned to France to seek colonists to settle on his property. The government encouraged his plan, and supplied a man-of-war, under Captain Lavand, to protect the emigrant on landing. Lavand was ordered to proceed at once to New Zealand, and await their arrival.

L'Anglois left France with a party of colonists, and reached the Bay of Akaroa August 17th, 1840. To his surprise, he saw the English flag flying where he had expected to see the French. The enigma was soon solved.

Captain Lavand, before reaching Akaroa, had stopped at Auckland, and had fallen in with an English captain named Hobson, who was looking after British interests in that part of the Pacific.

In an unguarded moment Lavand divulged the object of his mission, and boasted of the beauties of Port Akaroa and the fertility of the adjacent country.

Hobson, an energetic man, immediately resolved to get ahead of the Frenchman, and secure New Zealand for England. Therefore, while the dilatory Lavand was amusing himself on shore, Hobson hastily despatched a small warship in the direction of Akaroa with orders to plant the English flag there before the arrival of the French.

The stratagem succeeded, and Lavand found himself, to his great dismay, just too late. The British standard had been unfurled on the hill above the bay, and not only Akaroa, but the whole of New Zealand was added to the British dominions.—[Youth's Companion.

NOTICE!

To young men desiring to learn the art of scientific cutting I have decided to open a night school for that purpose, to commence on the first day of January, lasting through the winter months. I will guarantee to learn any smart young man in from one to two months the art of cutting, so that he will be able to command from 30 to 40 dollars a week salary in any city in Canada or United States. Now, farmer's sons, everybody, don't miss this splendid chance. You will pay in the city $100 and $50 for board while learning to cut. I will make the price in reach of every young man. My system of garment cutting is the only complete system of actual measurement ever produced where every measure taken can be applied to the draft. As to my ability as an eminent scientific cutter I can give testimonials from some of the leading men in Canada and United States, having served a long term at the tailoring in England, in all thirteen years, having taken my diploma as a cutter in London, England, 7 years ago. I will defy any cutter in Canada to compete. Special terms with Tailors that have systems that don't prove successful. All intending to take advantage of this splendid chance would do well to come early or correspond by mail, as I will only take a limited number of pupils. Address all letters to F. A. Baker, Tailor, Box 212, Flesherton.
