The Collingwood Boys at Collins Inlet.

BY THE BOYS THEMSELVES.

Come all you jolly fellows That wish to hear my song, 'Tis all about as Collingwood boys, and how we got along. We were happy when we got here, But now we are happier still, We are going to put in the summer months A-working in Pinche's mill.

On the tenth we left our homes, And friends we loved so dear; Off to this forsaken hole Our pathway we did steer. Off to this lonely inlet, The long summer to remain, But when September shows its nose We'll all roll home again.

The day that we arrived here, There came in twenty-one men; Twelve of them now left us, But nine we still remain. We'll hang it out till September, If everything goes well And then we'll jump aboard a tug, As happy as we can tell.

There's Campbell, Stephens, Garbett, Likewise there's Wolner too, There's Cherhardt, Henry and Thomas, We all make a hearty crew, Altho' you find among us, There's some that's rather small, Still if you look around you'll see, There's some of us pretty tall.

The twelve that left we know their names, But a week it sickened some, A few of them went further up, But the most of them went home. They are a poor lot of creatures, That could not hold it out, And jump the tug in September, Then we'll have a jolly good shout.

Five o'clock in the morning; We hear the bell to rise, Some get up with a sleepy head, And others can't open their eyes, But when the breakfast bell rings Its then you see the rush, Some of them wash their hands and face But have no time to brush.

Six o'clock in the morning; The old mill bell does ring, We all go out with cheerful hearts, Quite jolly enough to sing. Noon shortly 'tis around; Old Aldridge rings the bell; We all rush to the washing stand, Our dinner then we smell, And dinner being over and coming on to one You see old Hunter hustle to let the water on.

The first night that we slept here, We all were a sort of tug, Some of the boys in the morning, They went to hunt the tug, But old Litch chance to see them And says, where are you going now? Come here; go out on the tramway, And shove lumber on to the scow.

A few of the boys were happy, But the most of them were sad, Alex, Brown said to young Litch, I'd like to see my dad, George Garbett, James, Thomas and Johnny Green, They made it up to stay, But a week from Monday morning Johnny, he ran away.

The following Monday after, Then out went Litch and Brown, Brown said that he was off to the sea, But he went straight to town, There's Litch, we could not blame him because he had sore feet, But Brown is a lay fellow, At that he cannot be beat.

When we were in here but two weeks, Then in came little Dick, Brown would say in the morning I'll lay off, but I am sick, But all that ever ailed him Was the flies and awful heat. He was always a little too sick to work, But never too sick to eat.

But now to end my story It won't detain me long, It was at Collins Inlet, This song was sung with glee, Hurrah my boys to the saw mill, And you'll never see poverty.
