Disorder in Parliament.

The British House of Commons, sometimes called the Mother of Parliaments, is an assembly of traditions so ancient and venerable that anything tending to bring it into disrepute may be said to concern the civilized world.
 For centuries British electors were able to take pride in the fact that none of its members, however excited in debate, had ever assaulted another in the chamber. Englishmen were accustomed to point with scorn to those foreign legislatures which were occasionally thus disgraced. The implicit boast of superiority makes greater their humiliation in learning that a riot occurred in the House on July 27th. But no one of right feeling will take pleasure in the downfall of the old and honorable tradition, or will have anything short of sincere sympathy for those who have been shocked by the scandal.

The immediate cause of the disorder was that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain likened Mr. Gladstone and his followers to Herod and those who stood about him and cried, "It is the voice of a god and not of a man." The offensive allusion was met by cries of "Judas" from the Irish members, in allusion to Mr. Chamberlain's having forsaken the Liberal party seven years ago. Then a great uproar occurred, during which a Liberal, advancing angrily to the Tory benches, was thrown down by two Tory members. Once the affray had thus begun, it became so general that a hundred members are said to have exchanged blows.

Attempt has been made to lay the blame on Mr. Gladstone, who witnessed the riot with horror, and on the Irish members, none of whom were in the row till Englishmen had begun it. The truth is that, if anybody is to be blamed except those who lost control of themselves, one must look to the parliamentary circumstances, and go back eight or nine years to discover how these circumstances arose.

Mr. Chamberlain, in his bitter speech, reproached the Liberals for having applied the closure to compel the House to come to a vote on an important stage of the Home Rule Bill. Now the closure is only a rule of debate which enables a majority to put an end to debate whether the minority are willing or not.

It is really but a mild form of the "previous question" which is applied in almost every legislative body in this country; and is in use in some form or other by most of the legislatures of the world. But the closure was not used in the House of Commons till rules for applying it were adopted by agreement of both English parties, for no other purpose than to stop the Irish representatives under Mr. Parnell from obstructing all action by interminable talk.

When the Tories obtained power in 1886 the closure had been applied, not very severely, against the Irish members alone, who certainly had often spoken obstructively in hope to compel the House to give more attention to Ireland's demand for Home Rule. But after the Liberals became advocates of Home Rule, the Tories used the closure with great severity against them as well as the Irish.

By its aid they forced through the Coercion Act, for governing Ireland by uncommon or arbitrary methods. They employed the method often for six years, though warned that they were setting precedents which might some time bring their favorite gag to their own mouths. Now their exasperation in being closed on the Home Rule Bill is extreme.

Impartial spectators might sympathize more with them if Home Rule had not been under discussion for about ten years, and if their declared aim were not to obstruct it in hope that Mr. Gladstone may soon die and his great influence be lost to its friends.

It thus appears that the disgraceful riot would not have occurred had not the English majority broken through the traditions of their great house for the sole purpose of silencing a then unpopular minority. The lesson that majorities should treat minorities with the most perfect spirit of fair play is plain, and is a very good one for the rising generation of Americans to carry in mind.—Youth's Companion.

That Football Game.

To the Editor of The Advance.
 DEAR SIR.—I notice in The Advance of last week a letter from Mr. Boyd, captain of Flesherton foot-ball club, anent the game played between the Flesherton and Maxwell boys about three weeks ago. As that gentleman is the captain, he is supposed to know something about the game, but he is evidently ignorant of it, as he says in his letter that the ball was kicked from the corner and dropped before the goal and rolled through. Now sir, this is entirely false, as the ball was passed down between the grand stand and the hall, and came rolling toward the goal. The Maxwell goal keeper ran out and checked the ball, which rolled up his leg, passed between the legs, and then he wheeled and kicked the ball, before it reached the goal. The umpire, Mr. Breen, was at this time busy talking and thus did not see the ball till it was out on the field, and when he was asked he said he did not know whether the ball went through or not, but afterwards changed his mind and said it did go through. A decision which changes like that is of no value. When asked by myself at Maxwell, Mr. Boyd declared he did not know anything about it, but his letter claims he does know, and the umpire, Mr. Breen, had not a word to say and yet the letter claims they got a goal. We denied the statement and it remains at that.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for your valuable space in your paper, I am yours respectfully, THOS. BEMROSE, Referee.

From our own Correspondent.
 Everyone busy, news scarce and correspondents have been slow.

The harvest is pretty well under way at present.

Some are complaining of being unwell, but no one is dangerously ill.

School opened on Monday the 21st. The attendance is large as usual.

Messes Guy and Scheminen have been painting their house and shop respectively.

Mrs. Buchan has been visiting friends here for some time, also Mrs. Taylor.

Mr. C. R. Sing occupies the pulpit of the Methodist church here next Sunday evening.

Miss Aggie Strachan returned from Flesherton Station last Saturday. She was accompanied by Miss McLeod, who spent a few days.

Miss Mabel Strachan returned from Alliston lately, accompanied by her cousin, Minnie Strachan.

Mr. Alex. Clark spent a few days in Singhampton last week.

Mr. Brown is plastering the kitchen at the hotel.

Mrs. Thos. Maxwell, of Parry Sound, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Scheminan.

Mrs. Wright spent a few days in Parry Sound lately.

The vote on Sunday street cars took place at Toronto last Saturday and resulted in a majority of 978 against the cars. This was a narrow majority, considering the very large vote cast, viz., 27,811, although it is claimed that several hundred "ghosts" cast their ballots, on both sides of the question.

Cure For Horn Fly.

The following receipt for abating the horn fly pest on cattle is said to be an excellent one and we, therefore, publish it for the benefit of the readers of the Advance. Cut it out and preserve it for future reference. Take 1 qt. of rain water and 2 oz. soap. Boil the soap in the water until all is dissolved, then while boiling hot turn into 2 qts. of coal oil, stir it constantly for 5 minutes when it will be of a smooth creamy nature. As it cools it thickens into a jelly-like substance—this is "kerosene emulsion." Put this into 27 qts. of water, if possible before cooling as it will mix much more easily. This gives you 30 qts. of mixture ready for use. Apply liberally with a sponge on head, neck, horns, shoulders and wherever the flies trouble. It should be applied at least once a week. It only takes a few minutes and is money in your pocket at once. No one can realize the amount of suffering cattle have to undergo on account of the attacks of those savage little vampires.

Cures Others

Will cure You, is a true statement of the action of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, when taken for diseases originating in impure blood; but, while this assertion is true of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, as thousands can attest, it cannot be truthfully applied to other preparations, which unprincipled dealers will recommend, and try to impose upon you, as "just as good as Ayer's." Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's only, if you need a blood-purifier and would be benefited permanently. This medicine, for nearly fifty years, has enjoyed a reputation, and made a record for cures, that has never been equalled by other preparations: AYER'S Sarsaparilla eradicates the taint of hereditary scrofula and other blood diseases from the system, and it has, deservedly, the confidence of the people.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I cannot forbear to express my joy at the relief I have obtained from the use of AYER'S Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with kidney troubles for about six months, suffering greatly with pains in the small of my back. In addition to this, my body was covered with pimply eruptions. The remedies prescribed failed to help me. I then began to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and, in a short time, the pains ceased and the pimples disappeared. I advise every young man or woman, in case of sickness resulting from impure blood, no matter how long standing the case may be, to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla."—H. L. Jarmann, 33 William st., New York City.
