Coxey, the commonwealth crank, has been fined at Washington $500 for walking on the grass of the Capitol grounds, or in default of payment the country will give him free board for ten days. $50 a day for going to jail is an inducement that any man might seriously consider these days of financial depression. On the other hand $500 for not keeping away from the country's dandelion patch is some what grass-ping on the part of Uncle Sam.

A bill has been introduced in Parliament by Dr. Sproule making it an offense punishable by a heavy fine and imprisonment to manufacture or offer for sale any imitation of honey. The business of manufacturing and selling "sugar honey" in this country has seriously interfered with legitimate bee raising and honey producing, and the bill will be gladly welcomed as a lever by which honey producing can once more become a profitable industry, which it is far from being at the present time.

The Ontario campaign is now fairly started, and will be short and sharp. The three candidates are vigorously at work electioneering throughout this riding, and the beautiful state of uncertainty characterizing this contest gives each one a reason for the conviction that his election is certain. Mr. Hartman, who has pretty thoroughly canvassed the riding, informed us last week that he finds his chances much improved. The fact of the matter is that the case resolves itself exactly as The Advance foretold when the Patron candidate, Mr. Gamey, was placed in the field, and the Conservative party in this riding is apt to come to grief if its members do not stick together to a man. When the question comes down to a matter of men we believe there is little choice, as the candidates are all men of the guinea stamp, but in the present age it is measures, not men, that are weighed. It is a question of whether Mowat, or Meredith, or Patronism is dearest to the hearts of the people.

Hon. W. R. Meredith opened the campaign in London on Monday evening by delivering a speech of even more than his ordinary brilliancy; laying down his party platform in a vigorous and succinct manner. He favors a husbanding of the country's timber resources, biennial sessions, a secret ballot, state control of separate schools, and on the temperance question takes a firm stand. He would "bow to the will of the people" in that matter, but believes that whatever measure is brought into parliament should be adjudicated upon by the people before becoming law. He also favors entire divorce of control of license inspectors from the government and appointment by the county or city. In all of this he adopts the popular will of the people of this country, and if he is not returned at the head of government on June 26 it will be surprising. Mr. Meredith's sincerity, and ability are matters of envy and extreme uneasiness to his oppo-ents, more so in this election than ever before. His tenacity and continuity in what he undertakes have brought the government of Sir Oliver Mowat to their knees on more than one occasion, and in this instance there may possibly be an entire prostration. His speech at London was manly, straightforward, and carries with it to all readers the evident sincerity of the man.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has issued a special bulletin on Dairying in Ontario, from which we glean the following interesting conclusions:

1. Prices for grain have fallen over 30 per cent. in ten years; prices for butter and cheese have fallen less than 6 per cent.
2. Dairy farming is less exhaustive than grain farming. The sale of butter removes nothing from the soil. In fact, by dairying, the lost fertility of the soil may be restored.
3. Ontario is well adapted to dairying. We produce now 90,000,000 lb. of factory cheese, 3,000,000 lb. of creamery butter, and about 50,000,000 lb. of dairy butter. While Canadian dairy exports have been increasing those of the United States have been decreasing.
4. Our principal butter competitors in the British market are Denmark, France, Sweden, Victoria and New Zealand are rapidly increasing their exports to Britain, exceeding those from Canada.
5. Whereas our best creamery brings as high price as Danish creamery in Britain, our exports to Britain averaged over 5 per cent. per lb. less than the Danish exports. Our exports to Britain therefore consist largely of butter of inferior quality.
6. The production of our butter in creameries instead of in home dairies would give a large amount of high class butter of uniform quality both for home consumption and for export, and would add over $1,000,000 to its value.
7. Patrons of creameries get as much for their cream as home butter-makers do for their butter; they are saved the work of making and marketing; they are paid in cash and returns come quickly.
8. A separator creamery with capacity for 500 cows can be built and equipped for from $2,500 to $3,000. Skilled butter makers and cheese-makers are now becoming more available through the work of the Special Dairy School of Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.
9. To show that we have made only a fair beginning in dairying, it may be stated that the average value of cheese made per head of the rural population in Ontario is $5; whereas Leeds, Grenville and Oxford average $32 per head.
10. In grain growing we are competing in foreign markets with the products of the cheapest labor in other countries; in beef and mutton also we compete with the products of cheap land; in dairying we are competing with the work of more skilled labor, and with the products of high-priced land. The outlook for dairying in Ontario, therefore, is promising, provided we aim to produce a constant supply of uniformly good articles, namely, fine factory cheese and fine creamery butter.

A Galt man lost $600 and a boy named McVicar found it. On returning it he was awarded with three cents. The lad says that the reward was at least a twenty thousandth part of what he found, and that he will wear the coppers on his watch chain.

Wm. Hills, of Monticello, has had more than his share of family affliction recently. His children have just recovered from a long and severe attack of diphtheria and on Saturday last his eldest son, aged ten, came within a hair's breadth of being killed. The lad was riding beside his father on a heavy load of manure and fell under the wagon, the hind wheel of which passed down the front surface of his body from the neck to the lower part of the abdomen. The lad seems seriously injured, as he is unable to move in bed, and Dr. Rolstin says he is in doubt as to whether his patient will recover or not.
