Flesherton Station.

From our own Correspondent.

Business is booming here just now in telegraph poles, square timber, sawlogs, ties and posts. One would think that timber was as plentiful as ever.

Mr. Sergeant, butcher, of this place, has been laid up for the past week. R. Cook is looking after the business until he is able to get around again.

Mr. D. McKenzie purchased the Hamilton property adjoining the Station for the sum of $1200. Who says land is worth nothing around the station?

Wes. Rumsey leaves here this week. He is going onto his farm near Meaford. Sorry to lose you, Wes.

Mr. A. Hannah took a trip to the city this week on business.

Mr. Waring thinks Mr. Crossley need not find any fault with his boots, as they are none too large for his feet this cold weather.

The remains of Mr. Hector McLean, son of Allan McLean, north of Priceville, came off the train here on Monday night from Duluth, where he was working when he died.

We would like to know why somebody don't fix those roads? They are getting almost impassable, and we have more need of good roads now than at any other time, as there is so much traffic.

The sale at Mr. Hogg's store did not come off last week, consequently you will have to do without a plug hat, Mr. Editor, and other relics which I intended to buy for you.

As this is the first appearance of Nero's budget in the columns of The Advance he wishes to say to you, gentle reader, "Good Morning." We trust that the little time spent scanning our few and brief items may be to you moments of pleasure and profit. It is our intention to be courteous and never offensive, and if at any time our remarks appear otherwise kindly remember it is not our intention so to be.

Miss Brown, of Meaford, who has been the guest of Mrs. Young, has just returned home. During her short sojourn in Markdale she has made many warm friends.

The genial countenances of a number of the young men of Flesherton were to be seen at the ball and supper last Friday evening. We believe, that in social matters, reciprocity has had and will have good results.

Messrs. McFarland and Macpherson attended the annual meeting of the Excelsior Life Insurance Co'y in Toronto last week, when the former was chosen as one of the company's directors. We congratulate him on the acquisition of the honorable position, and the company on their wise choice. They report the Excelsior to be in excellent standing.

The many friends of Miss Benson were delighted with the entertaining and social evening spent at her residence on Thursday in honor of her guest, Miss Greur, of Mount Forest. After an enjoyable evening and a sumptuous repast the visitors filled the air with the sweet melodies of "Auld Lang Syne." Miss Benson is an excellent entertainer and a charming hostess. NERO.
