DOT'S CORNER.

Did you ever stand and gaze far, and ever farther, into the blue-gray of the sky where the first young snow-flakes were forming, and mayhap single out one from the many and watch its slow and gentle progress to the dirty, muddy earth?

Have you noticed with what an aimless, inconsequent manner it pursues its course; blown hither and thither by every tiny current of air; coyly shunning contact with its fellows, like a young maiden with instinctive modesty shrinking from young love's first embrace, or a little child adroitly evading the grasp of his play-fellows, it sinks at last into its grave of mud and blackness, trampled under foot and obliterated. Poor snow-flake! poor child! poor maiden!

I think there is nothing more lovely in nature than the first snow storm. The clouds which precede it take on a form and color never equalled except by the sunsets of summer. The deep, deep gray is broken into irregular masses tinged upon its ragged edges with yellowish pink and silver, and should the sun shine between, it is a sky for a picture. Then, as the sun fades behind and the heavy clouds unite, how pink it grows, until the air silently thickens with spots of whiteness, which, as they multiply and grown larger and larger, reflect a radiance which dispels the darkness of a moment ago and an uncanny secondary light illumines space.

To let the eye wander from spow-flake to snow-flake, until the very farthest is found, or upon a summer night seek the most distant star,

"Or, to behold the wandering moon
Riding near her highest noon
Like some wanderer gone astray
Through the heaven's wide, pathless way."

gives one a delightful sense of detachment—a sense of the triviality of all things mundane. What is care, what is sorrow? We spurn them! we are lost in the great universe, merged in it, become one with it. Our petty worries of a moment ago assume their just proportion in the perspective of things, our personal triumphs, how insignificant they are! Selfhood is lost in the universal and a great love for "all things, both great and small," takes us "out of ourselves."

The soul spreads her wings and rejoices in her freedom, gathering strength in one ecstatic moment to face the years, it may be, of imprisonment in clay, the years wherein she may have to "fardels bear, to groan and sweat under a weary life." For she has memory and can recall her brief flight, the remembrance of which like a sweet harmony echoing through the chambers of the heart—like a heavenly vision which haunts the brain, like perfume with sweet associations—or like the secret transports of prayer and meditation, has power to buoy her up through the sordid struggle for existence.

Thus has nature her ministrations and her compensations to those who are really her children and do not offer her a feigned allegiance only but settle closer to her great pulsating heart.

A Common Affliction

Permanently Cured by Taking

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.

"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that I must purchase six bottles, and use them according to directions. I yielded to his persuasion, bought the six bottles, and took the contents of three of these bottles without noticing any direct benefit. Before I had finished the fourth bottle, my hands were as as ever they were. My business, which is that of a cab-driver, requires me to be out in cold and wet weather, often without gloves, and the trouble has never returned."—THOMAS A. JOHNS, Stratford, Ont.

A TRIO OF HAPPY CITIZENS.

Effectively Cured of Indigestion and Nervous Troubles By South American Nervine—No Trifling With Disease—This Medicine Cures at the Nerve Centers and thus Effects a Certain Cure—Never Fails in Cases of Indigestion, Weakness and Nervous Prostration.

"In a multitude of counsellors there is safety," said a wise man centuries ago. A multitude of counsellors testify that South American Nervine cures disease and removes suffering as no other medicine will do. In these pages, from week to week, has appeared the testimony of well known people—men and women, in all parts of the Dominion, telling in distinct and thankful terms what this wonderful discovery has done for them. A large volume would be needed to contain all the evidence that comes to the discoverer of this medicine.

This talk is to-day illustrated with faces of three well known people who add their testimonials to the others. Here we have Mr. H. H. Darroch, of Mount Forest, who found himself weak to desperation after an attack of la grippe. South American Nervine was the only medicine to be found that gave him back his former strength.

Mr. Thomas Sullivan, a second figure in the group, was a sufferer for a number of years with aggravated indigestion. He had been treated by several doctors, with very little benefit. A friend recommended South American Nervine, and after taking a few bottles he has found himself completely relieved of swelling of stomach and other disagreeable evidences of indigestion. In a brief sentence, he says—"it has cured me."

Mr. Noble Wright, of Orangeville, was a sufferer for a long period with indigestion and sluggish liver, these culminating in gastric and small catarrh. Doctors and doctors' medicines were unavailing to cure. Having taken only two bottles of South American Nervine he found himself greatly benefited, and after six bottles had been used he is cured.

Baffled though doctors often are with disease, when the root trouble is discovered a cure is not difficult. Here rests the entire success of South American Nervine. Certain nerves control entirely the stomach, liver and all the internal organs of the body. Let these become weakened and disease follows and will continue until strength is given to these nerve centers. The motor power is centered there. Attempts to heal an organ is only patchwork of the worst kind and cannot possibly be effective. South American Nervine heals at the nerve centres, and for this reason people, after having tried doctors and doctors' medicines without success, because the effort is only to give temporary relief, find it effects an absolute, positive and unmitigable cure.
