A BOON TO ALL SICK ONES

Cures When Other Medicines and Doctors Have Failed

RESTORES THE SICK TO HEALTH.

"I Can Attribute My Restoration to Health Solely to South American Nervine." Says C. J. Curtis, of Windsor.

C. J. CURTIS, WINDSOR, ONT.

When one has climbed a high mountain it is not difficult to mount the ordinary hill. A medicine that will cure when the case is a desperate one, may be safely taken as a good all round medicine in ordinary cases, and it is not alone the very sick who need medicine.

The statement is borne out by a multitude of facts, thousands of testimonials from reputable citizens, that South American Nervine cures, after what are considered the best medicines in the country have failed, and where the skill of the ablest physicians has come to naught.

The acknowledged scientific principle of disease is weakness and disorganization at the nerve centers. These nerve centers are the main spring of the whole system. When the stomach is out of order the certain remedy is to set the nerve centers in right condition, in, so with every other trouble. Thus it is that it may be liver complaint, nervousness, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, impoverished blood, consumption of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, sick or nervous headache, sleeplessness, pains in the kidneys, or other ailments from which a person is suffering South American Nervine will cure, and cure quickly, and best of all cure effectively and lastingly in every such case.

Much as we were disposed to laugh at La Grippe as a trifling complaint when it first made itself known in this country, later developments have proved that it is a serious malady. The after effects are such that very thorough measures need to be taken to ensure perfect restoration to health. South American Nervine has proven wonderfully efficacious in giving back health to the victims of La Grippe. Mr. C. J. Curtis, a wealthy and well known farmer near Windsor, Ont., suffered from a severe attack of this malady, leaving him exceedingly weak and with no appetite. No medicine seemed to do him any good until he was influenced to try South American Nervine and his testimony is this: "After taking one bottle I found very great benefit from it, my appetite improved wonderfully, and I felt my strength returning very fast." Mr. Curtis then purchased five bottles, but after taking only three out of the five, to use his own words: "I am feeling as nearly well to day as I ever did, and I can attribute my restoration to health and strength solely to South American Nervine."

DOT'S CORNER.

We were having a chat—the lazy man and I, when he suddenly said, "Work is a curse." "Spoken like the lazy man you are," I was about to rejoin, when I remembered that I was trying to qualify for a New Woman, and the New Woman never is rude nor personal; so I feebly gasped, "Why, how can you say so?" "Don't you believe it?" said he. "Was not the having to labor for their bread the curse pronounced against our first parents?" "Yes—oh yes, I suppose it was," I stammered, then gradually my courage returned; one of my pet theories of life was not thus lightly to be abandoned, and I returned to the charge. "What then is your brain made for? What your hands, your feet, your whole being? Were they designed to moulder and rust in idleness? Work, to my mind is the great panacea; have you a headache? Work! Are you melancholy? Work! Are you lonely? Work! Has life no pleasures for you? Work!!!"

"Oh, well," he drawled, "I did not say one should not have occupation; but as soon as occupation is imposed by circumstances, or in other words, we have to do such and such a thing, it is work and we are its slave, all else is play."

"Oh then," said I, "I suppose no matter how useful and productive any employment may be, if done with pleasure and voluntarily, it is not work." "Exactly, it is only play," said he.

But still unsatisfied, I continued: "How about the ethical value of Work (according to your definition of it?) Is not the moral power gained through the discipline of unpleasant but necessary labor enough to annul the curse? In fact, can you imagine a strong and beautiful character, the outcome of conditions where there was no need of self-denial, and no need of effort?" "Now you are beyond your depth," said the lazy man. "Even if you are a New Woman, you can't cope with such abstractions which, if carried out to their logical conclusions, would mean this: that all reforms and the removal of temptations are only beautiful, inasmuch that the human heart must have battles to fight if it would grow strong, the millennium itself would be a doubtful blessing, and we might as well stop trying to improve anything."

"Oh well," said I, in order to have the last word, a Spanish poetess has a beautifully illustrated poem in the Cosmopolitan this month, I'll read it to you:

THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

"For many days I pursued a beautiful flying figure, and when I had come up with it, behold, its face was very fair, and it smiled into my eyes. I put out my hand and drew it close, whispering,

Who art thou?

It answered,

Men call me Pleasure, but for thee I bear another name.

I asked,

Sweet, wilt thou not tell me the name that thou bearest for me alone?

It answered,

For thee my name is Sin. I looked longingly into the smiling eyes; nevertheless, I loosed my hand and turned away.

There soon came across my path a flying shape of wondrous aspect. I was long pursuing it, and when I came up with it, behold its face was very fair.

I questioned it,

Who art thou?

It answered,

Men call me Love, but for thee I bear another name. One in a thousand meets with me; then hold me fast, thou chosen one, for but once in a lifetime do I come. So I abode with Love for many days before I dared to put the question that haunted me. But at last I said, sweet, wilt thou not tell me what may be the name that thou bearest for me alone? Then Love flashed a glance upon me and answered, for thee I am Sin. So, after one long, lingering look, I dropped Love's hand and departed.

Now it befel that on a bitter day, in a dismal place a figure passed before me. It fled not away from me, but at my call, came close. It wore, I thought, a quiet look, and in the cold, gray setting of earth and sky, its face was very fair. Who art thou? I questioned. It answered, I am Death; but for thee, nay for all that summon me, I bear another name. I said, wilt thou then I shall find Peace. Pleasure and Love are both denied me. What is left me but Death? And I drew near and would have clasped it, but I bethought me of that other name it bore, and I questioned concerning it. Death said, for thee and all that summon me my name is Sin,

So once more I turned, and went my way sorrowing. It chanced, after many days, that there came one from behind me silently and plucked me by the sleeve. I said, who art thou, and what wouldst thou with me? Art thou, too, of the brood of sin? And I turned and beheld the figure that was of a hard and rugged aspect, but of a strength that was high unto beauty. It said, some call me Labor and some call me by another name, but my bearing is the same unto all humanity. So I abode with Labor many days, and I questioned not concerning that other name, for I had learned that it was Peace."

"Tommy rot," was the bold, bad comment of the lazy man. And between you and me, I am coming round to his opinion, the little busy bee to the contrary, notwithstanding. Dor.

Mr. Jas. E. Nicholson, Florenceville, N. B., Struggles for Seven Long Years with

CANCER ON THE LIP,

AND IS CURED BY

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Mr. Nicholson says: "I consulted doctors who prescribed for me, but to no purpose; the cancer began to eat into the flesh, spread to my chin, and I suffered in agony for seven long years. Finally, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a week or two I noticed a decided improvement. Encouraged by this result, I persevered, until in a month or so the sore under my chin began to heal. In three months my lip began to heal, and, after using the Sarsaparilla for six months, the last trace of the cancer disappeared."
