This Medicine Is Breathed!

Have You a Cold?—It Can Be Completely Cured By

Catarrhozone

It Quickly Cures Whooping Cough, Grippe, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Hay-Fever, Asthma, and Colds.

Catarrhozone is not like other remedies, but is so healing and soothing that when it is breathed through the inhaler it kills the germs that cause diseases of the throat and lungs.

Catarrhozone quickly soothes and heals the mucous surfaces so that in a short time the whole mucous lining is healed.

If you are subject to throat irritation or have a tendency to consumption you should use the "Medicine that is breathed."

Thousands who have used it tell of its merit.

Air which you breathe through the Catarrhozone inhaler carries healing to the very spot affected, and there is no chance of failure by going to the wrong place. That is why it cures.

Catarrhozone

Approved by Doctors, Druggists, and thousands of Canadian people who have used it. Little drops of healing for weak places in the throat and nasal passages—that's Catarrhozone.

Three sizes, 25c., 50c., and $1.00, at druggists or by mail, postpaid, from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

THE WELSH INVASION.

The Cymric Race Is Pushing to the Front In London.

Clever young men in England get less advertising than their contemporaries in France or in the United States, for the English need solid and long proof of merit before they raise their voices and say: "He is great." This is especially true of the world of art and letters.

Yet to-day seems to be the day of the "young" writer in England, and but two innings by the most effective kind the tremendously high percentage of Welshmen among the newcomers is striking.

As it is, they have taken their turn in Fleet street, which first succumbed to the Irish and then to the Scotch, and they have invaded the realms of book-publishing as well.

First among the younger literary set of the day is Alfred Noyes, who is regarded as a "certainty," if one may be pardoned the expression, for the Poet Laureateship.

Noyes is 28. He was famous at 22. Yet he is unspoilt. An orthodox, athletic-looking young man, clean-cut, very "Oxford," but full of the Celtic fire. He writes like a Cymrn (Welshman); his fairy tales and tinkling verse are Welsh in spirit, though he is a big enough poet to be international. "Drake," that rather long but stirring epic; the ballad of the "Forty Singing Seamen," and the very poem he dislikes most of all his work, the "Barrel Organ," are known to all readers of English verse.

Noyes has been influenced by Oxford—(he was at Exeter College)—but the typical young Welshman, the golden, excitable Celt, is a product of Wales in education. He is far different to the genial autocrat of Oxford or the silently independent Cambridge man. He loves reading sonorous verse, is a natural orator, takes to theatricals with a born leaning that way. This is not one isolated example, mind you, but is typical of the hundreds of golden youth who come from Gwalia to London seeking fortune or fame.

Two years ago C. W. Miles, a young newspaperman, founded the Welsh Drama Society, and already connoisseurs and those who are on the lookout for new theatrical possibilities are hoping for great things from a very modest beginning. Mr. Miles is now editor of a leading London weekly, although but 27 years of age. These are but two out of scores who could be named in literature — all hailing from Wales. As an indignant Scotch writer remarked, when reference was made in his hearing to the "rat plague" that might devastate the metropolis: "It is the Welsh plague, you mean."

In art the Cymrn is coming to the front. There are a score of Welsh artists in London, all earning good livings, who are practically self-taught.

In music the Welsh are too well known to need further eulogy, but it is especially in dramatic art that they should prove interesting.

The average Welshman has a natural "artistic" sense. It is this that has enabled David Lloyd-George to reach the heights he has. Although he is not a figurehead of English literature, yet he is a very notable and a very clever man, so the writer may be forgiven for mentioning that Mr. Lloyd-George appears to wonderful advantage in social ceremonies. But he should be heard speaking down in Wales among his own people. He is sometimes awkward in the House of Commons, but in Wales never, for he knows that the people, his people, are with him, and he rises to dramatic heights that would astonish the stranger who knew not Wales and its inhabitants.

His Master's Leg.

Lord Brassey, who has announced his conversion to votes for women, holds many unique records, one being that he is the only colonial governor whoever sailed to his colony in his own yacht—a feat which he successfully accomplished on his appointment as governor of Victoria.

After yachting, Lord Brassey's favorite recreation is cricket. On the magnificent grounds surrounding his beautiful Sussex seat matches are frequently played during the season.

Of one of these fights his lordship told a capital story. It appears that there was a scarcity of available talent, with the result that it was necessary to secure one of Lord Brassey's footmen as umpire. In due course his lordship himself went in, and a local bowler was put on. The second ball he stopped with his leg, and the cry was raised, "How's that?"

It was the footman who had to answer, and turning to his master, he exclaimed, in a half-apologetic tone, "I'm afraid I must say, 'Not at home,' your lordship."

"Not at home?" cried Lord Brassey. "What do you mean?"

"Well, then, if you will have it," the footman made answer, "I mean you are hout."

Coincidences of Dates.

Attention has often been called to the curious fact of the date Sept. 3 figuring so largely in the history of Oliver Cromwell. That very dominating man was born on Sept. 3, 1599; he won the battle of Dunbar Sept. 3, 1650; that of Worcester Sept. 3, 1651, and he died Sept. 3, 1658.

The number 88 had fatal influence on the Stuarts. Robert II., the first Stuart king, died in 1388; James II. was killed at the siege of Roxburghe castle, 1488; Mary, Queen of Scots, was beheaded in Fotheringay, 1588 (new style); James VII. (II. of England) was dethroned in 1688; Bonny Prince Charlie died in Rome, 1788, and with him died the last hopes of the Jacobites.

Weight of Trains.

Lord Allerton has been commenting on the modern demand for convenience and luxury of every kind in traveling, and he asks us to think what this means in the increase of the weight of trains. While a few years ago trains were of about 160 tons weight, we now had trains running at an average speed of fifty to sixty miles an hour—and weighing 340 or 350 tons.—Tit-Bits.

A HAPPY ACCIDENT.

H. G. Wells Owes His Literary Start to a Broken Blood Vessel.

In view of the criticisms aimed at him because of his recent books, "Ann Veronica" and "The New Machiavelli," H. G. Wells has written what might be called a defence, but which is in fact more of an attack on his critics and on life. He tells in his own way of his emergence from the teaching profession into literature:

"Then I toiled for years to become either a biological investigator or a teacher. I set my face sternly against the sort of work I do now, and which even then attracted me most, because I thought it a more unprofitable indulgence of the mind. I hammered at the doors of school and laboratory for a chance—for half a chance—for just a little bit of a chance to give my life to these things. I did not understand that both these worlds are ruled by academic cliques; that I should have entered either only to live a life of embittered obscurity. I should have spent my days in hampered, suppressed, or unrecognized researches, and in attempts to ventilate highly specialized grievances, lived, indeed, like a man swearing with his head in a bag. But my good luck in its usual disguise of misfortune intervened, and one day as I ran down Villiers street with a bag of rock specimens I had been showing to a class of candidates for the London Bachelor of Science degree, I coughed and broke a blood-vessel. Thereby I was stretched out, it seemed, a broken and ruined and almost penniless young man, and as I could do nothing else I wrote, and in a year found myself free to live anywhere and write as I liked, twice as prosperous as I had ever been in my life before."

And after all, say what you will, who does not rejoice when he finds himself, by his own honest efforts, twice as prosperous as he was before?

The Tall-Hatted Highlander.

Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C., who has recently formally assumed his new position as Constable of the Tower of London, surely holds the record for versatility among distinguished army officers, having served and fought in the navy, Light Dragoons, Lancers, Irregular Horse, and Highlanders, in addition to which he joined the Middle Temple and was called to the Bar in 1874, and is the author of works renowned for their high literary distinction. A good story may be told of his attachment to a regiment of Highlanders, when the latter were stationed at Portsmouth. Sir Evelyn, then a captain, one day returned from London, and with great hurry proceeded to array himself for parade. When he last emerged, he observed that his men were evidently at great pains to conceal their laughter, and he quietly questioned his subaltern as to the probable reason.

"Well, sir," replied the latter, "you are dressed correctly as to kilt, sporran, and all the rest of it; but you have forgotten to remove your tall hat!"

Insuring Jewels.

Some large insurances were offered to the companies and members of Lloyd's on jewels to be worn by Indian princes attending the coronation. One insurance for $425,000 was underwritten, and in another case the value of the property was between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. In some instances the risks covered are those of transit to and from India, and that of burglary during the owner's stay in London.

Joint Stamp Issued.

For the first time in history a joint stamp, bearing the legends both of France and Britain, has been issued in the New Hebrides Islands, which are jointly administered in the two countries.

John Condlon, of the Stayner road, was seriously injured on Monday by being run over with the binder. It seems he was oiling in front of the big wheel when the high wind then prevailing broke a branch off a nearby tree, which fell on the horses, causing them to start suddenly. He was knocked down, and the wheel passed over him.—Creemore Star.

PHYSICIANS Failed to Cure Rheumatism

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure With "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. I call Nerviline my "Life Guard," and urge all to try its merit."

NERVILINE Cures Rheumatism

Dundalk

Mr. D. T. Wright, Principal of the High School, returned Saturday from Toronto where he was engaged for about about three weeks inspecting examination papers.

On Thursday July 13th, Miss Ray Bannon, a popular young lady formerly of Dundalk, and well known to many of our readers, was married at Everett, Washington, to Mr. Albin Kempton. The Daily Herald of that city gives the following account of the happy event:—Miss Rachel Bannon and Mr. Albin Kempton, both of Langley, were married at high noon to day by the Rev. W. E. McLeod, of the First Presbyterian church. Mr. and Mrs. Kempton will reside at Langley where the groom owns a large farm located just back of the townsite. The bride has several sisters in Everett, among them Mrs. Honeywell Mrs. Neilson and Mrs. Taylor. [The bride is the youngest sister of Mrs. W. A. Armstrong of Flesherton.—ED. ADVANCE].

A great quantity of Bell Telephone material, including 22,000 pounds of line wire, was unloaded at this station last week and now a gang of men is engaged in erecting new lines around Dundalk agregating nearly 35 miles. It is expected the gang will be in Melancthon, Osprey and Proton until November in this work. Mr. Nixon, the Local Manager, has been successful in procuring a large number of additional subscriber to Dundalk Central which increases very largely the usefulness of the telephone.

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color, and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys, and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, in yellow boxes. 25c. per box, from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.
