The summer speaker, Miss McDermid spoke in New England church on Wednesday afternoon to the ladies of the W. I. and community. She chose for her subject, "Things money cannot buy." Health, friendship, love and happiness, without these alone life in this storm tossed world would be a wanting situation, and yet to obtain and value it all is a part the majority of humans fail to master; and what is possessed is not valued as is should be. Miss McDermid is an able speaker and spoke at ease handling her subject with deep thought and feeling, branching out over many items of interest, giving valuable information of the worthy, needy ones in the far North, and also how she found conditions in various parts of the Dominion, where she had given of her services. While there is always good work to be done at home, it is a true saying, "One half of the world does not know how the other half lives" and to be loyal to our motto we must not forget to help those afroad as well.
