IN MEMORIAM

COULTHARD — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Alice Coulthard, who passed away November 21st, 1929.

No one knows the silent heartache,
Only those who have lost can tell
Of the grief that is borne in silence,
For one we loved so well.
Every moment we do miss her,
Sadly do we feel our loss,
Dreary is our home without her,
Help us, Lord, to bear our cross.
Sadly missed by —Husband and Daughter.

80 TONS TO THE BUSHEL.

How much water does it take to grow a bushel of wheat? When someone asked us this question we answered fifty gallons, thinking that would be a liberal estimate. Then we were told to work it out and see for ourselves how silly our answer was. Well, we have worked it out, and we admit that we are somewhat staggered.

First, let's take a good wheat growing area. The area around Regina will do. On looking up meterological records we find that the normal rain fall in this area is just under fifteen inches a year (translating the snow into rain). This means that on every acre of land 54,450 cubic feet of rain fell. Now a cubic foot of water (so the editors of our technical newspapers tell us) weighs 62 pounds. That meant that 1,688 tons of water fell on each acre. The average yield of wheat in the Regina area in a ten year period was 21 bushels. Thus each bushel of wheat took 80 tons of water to grow.

A TIMELY ADDRESS

Addressing the St. Thomas Kiwanis Club, W. R. Reek, superintendent of the Ridgetown Experimental Farm, predicted that when the present period of depression and reduced prices for farm products had passed about ten per cent of those in the agricultural industry whom he described as "fair weather farmers" would be out of business, while the farmers who weather the storm would be thinking more seriously than they have in the past. He declared that it takes periods of depression to make farmers realize the importance of culling the unprofitable cows from their herds and the boarder hens from their flocks. He criticized the doctrine of reduced farm production, at the same time advising that the farmer should endeavor to produce just as much grain on a smaller acreage and devote the other land to production of roughage and pasture.

Mrs. Albert Stevens was called to Komako to see her sister, who is very ill with bronchitis.

Mr. Lawson Lockhart, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Bert Rowden, and little Muriel spent a couple of days at home.

A fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the large frame barn belonging to George Brackenbury. His season's crop was in the barn, no cattle, as he does not winter any there. This barn was one of the old timers, built by the late D. A. Stinson, when material of the best was plentiful. The rock elm beams and rafters, which were drawn there by oxen, made a life-time job of it, as wind insurance was little known in those days and things were built to last. There was some insurance on the barn and contents.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bearton and two sons and Mr and Mrs. Les Brooks and family, also Harvey Brooks, all of Toronto, visited recently at the home of Jas. Best.

THE COW

The cow is a female quadruped with an alto voice and a countennce in which there is no guile. She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filler for hash, and at last is skinned by those she has benefited, as mortals commonly are.

The young cow is called a calf, and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad.

The cow's tail is mounted aft and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies, and the tassel on the end has a unique educational value. Persons who milk cows and come often in contact with the tassel have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as warehouse and has no other function. When this one is filled the cow retires to a quiet place where her ill manners will occasion no comment and devotes herself to belching. The raw material thus conveyed for the second time to the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach, where it is converted into cow.

The cow has no upper place. All of her teeth are parked in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result she bites up and gums down.

The male cow is called a bull and is lassoed along the Colorado, fought south of the Rio Grande and shot in the vicinity of the Potomac.—Ex.

SHEEP PARASITES

There are two general types of parasites common to sheep, namely internal and external. Of the two types, the internal parasites are the most deadly as serious infections by this type are usually fatal. Stomach worms and tapeworms seem to be the most common of this variety while ticks and lice are present. These kinds of parasites can be effectively controlled by dipping. Sheep which are well fed and kept under sanitary conditions are in a better position to withstand parasite infestation because of the higher resistance. If the pastures are rotated, this will also be a meaure of prevention. Many losses in the lamb crop can also be prevented by drench ing breeding ewes before they are turned out on pasture.
