There is a belief among many woodsmen that every color or tint to which a tree is exposed during its life, glows ni the fire when that tree is burned. Look deep into the coals and you find the pinks and violets of dawn, the blueness of the sky, the burning brightness of the noonday sun, the angry black of a thundercloud, the crimson of a sunset, the silver radiance of the moonlight, the brilliant transparency of the stars.—Reader's Digest.
