

GEORGE WILSON, BUTCHER, Mill St., Markdale, next door to Expositor Office.

J. M. Webster, LICENSED AUCTIONEER FOR THE County of Grey.

T. E. DAVIS, BUILDER & CONTRACTOR, (Stone and Brick) Plastering and Country Jobs.

VETERINARY, J. BLOOMFIELD, HAS commenced the practice of his profession in Markdale.

W.M. FOX, Plain & Ornamental Plasterer, Estimates for stone and brickwork on application.

Wm. Lucas & Co., BANKERS, MARKDALE, Money Loaned.

Meat for All, W. B. Sargent's, The subscriber returns thanks to the inhabitants of MARKDALE.

China TEA Store, R. ASKIN, General Dealer in GROCERIES & PROVISIONS.

John H. Beard, Cutters, Sleighs, Buggies, WAGGONS, CULTIVATORS, HORSE RAKES, PLOUGHS, BARROWS AND All kinds of Farming Implements.

H. MEGGITT, Fashionable Tailor, FLESHERTON, Is prepared to fill all orders promptly.

R. J. McCOY, Agent for the following Implements, &c.: The Massey MOWER.

Wilkinson's PLOUGHS, DICK'S ALTON PLOUGHS, ALL KINDS OF Fittings and Repairs.

GRANT & CHELLEW, MARKDALE, Cabinet Makers, UPHOLSTERS, FURNITURE!

THOS. MATHEWS, WISHES to tender to his numerous customers his sincere thanks for their very liberal patronage during the 15 years he has been in the Harness Business in Markdale.

Organ for Sale, A FIVE OCTAVE ORGAN, nearly new, one of OLIVE & WARREN'S (New York) celebrated instruments.

Public Notice, NOTICE is hereby given that the new road opens through lots 29, 30, and 31, as the first concession W. E. S. & R. in the township of Glengarry.

WHERE IS YOUR BOY TO-NIGHT? Life is passing with still emotion. The gates of heaven are wide.

IN THE MIDDLE OF PERIL, By the Author of "Hidden Quickends," "A Retaliation," "Maggie O'Connor's Fortunes," &c., &c.

"I hope we may not hear the alarm bell to-night," he said. "I can't get over an uncomfortable foreboding about the family. Coghlan is to be confided.

"Bridget Mahoney's white cow," he said, laying his hand on Leitcester's arm as he was raising his pistol. Nothing was to be done.

CHAPTER II, The alarm from St. Kevin's did not call out the military that night or the following one, and the household began to forget the danger.

"It is some blunder," said his wife. "Come in and speak to Mr. Surridge." And, entering the drawing-room, followed by the two girls, they gave the tutor a cordial greeting.

"But you shall not drive into town again for a manylong day!" exclaimed his wife vehemently. "There will be no need for some time," he replied.

"Well, I won't refuse, for I got but a smack at Hiddy Lalouchie's as I came along." Mr. Surridge said, and turned to the tutor, "will you allow me to show you to your room?"

Mr. Coghlan told me of his intent to do so. He replied the stranger, with a smile, "I would have waited for you, but I had to go."

"I am afraid Teddy will lead him a life!" exclaimed Glorvina, laughing. "He is so shy! He put me in mind of Marlow in dear Goldsmith's play."

"That may be quite true dear. He is probably really unused to the society of ladies. He has wasted all his life at Trinity, depend upon it. But Teddy would have better appreciated a sportsman than a bookman."

"I am not rich enough to be a poor man," she had declared to her guardian, "since the place is entailed on Teddy."

"Yes, indeed!" sighed the girl. It gave her a bitter pang that her guardian should thus belie their manhood.

"There was much discussion as to the new tutor when the ladies returned alone to the drawing-room. Mrs. Coghlan highly approved of him.

"A gentlemanly modest young man," she said, "severely reproached that he should come forth so early and fight for what they deem their rights like men, not shoot down offending people from behind hedges."

"I am now lending money, at the lowest current rates of interest, and I am well aware of the sharp competition amongst agents, in lending money, therefore I wish it to be DIS- TINGUISHEDLY understood, that I am in a position to lend money on the very best terms, and for the lowest rates of interest."

"I am not rich enough to be a poor man," she had declared to her guardian, "since the place is entailed on Teddy."

"Yes, indeed!" sighed the girl. It gave her a bitter pang that her guardian should thus belie their manhood.

"There was much discussion as to the new tutor when the ladies returned alone to the drawing-room. Mrs. Coghlan highly approved of him.

"A gentlemanly modest young man," she said, "severely reproached that he should come forth so early and fight for what they deem their rights like men, not shoot down offending people from behind hedges."

"I am now lending money, at the lowest current rates of interest, and I am well aware of the sharp competition amongst agents, in lending money, therefore I wish it to be DIS- TINGUISHEDLY understood, that I am in a position to lend money on the very best terms, and for the lowest rates of interest."

"I am not rich enough to be a poor man," she had declared to her guardian, "since the place is entailed on Teddy."

"Yes, indeed!" sighed the girl. It gave her a bitter pang that her guardian should thus belie their manhood.

"There was much discussion as to the new tutor when the ladies returned alone to the drawing-room. Mrs. Coghlan highly approved of him.

FARMERS TO LEND - A. G. HUNTER, THE PEOPLES AGENT, DUNDALK P. O., COUNTY OF GREY, ONT. Parties who wish to BUY or RENT, a good FARM, will call at my office in Dundalk, and examine my LIST OF FARMS FOR SALE.