He brought is inconveniencing the public by doing Unless the whole of a sidewalk is led, it would be much better to let the remain, as there would then be at ta level surface to walk upon. Still, it oabtless necessary to have some comating evil. seeing that the weathaltogether unexceptionable and coupt, the finest in the DominA New Canadian Industry.

Among the native industries developed in Canada during the era of prosperity the Toronto Silver Plate Co.'s establishment is destined to take a prominent rank. It is important not merely from the fact of its being a large new industry located in the capital of Ontario, but from its being the first establishment which has undertaken to manufacture electro silver-plated ware in all its details on the spot. For some years there have been electro plating establishments in Canada, but as the were simply branches of American factories, their goods were simply plated from "blanks" (unplated metal) supplied from the head establishments on the other side. The Toronto Silver Plate Co. have confidently taken the great step of turning out their goods from the very beginning to the end within their own walls, and the impression they have aiready created among the Canadian trade has been most favorable—an impression due, primarily, to the style and quality of work which they have presented, but largely due also to the fact that the company were fortunate enough to secure for their superintendent the ablest and most experienced man in the Canadian trade-Mr. Ja nes A. Watts. With an experience of over 20 years and a thorough knowledge of all the difficult details of the business, no man could have been found so well fitted to take charge of such an establishment.

Being anxious to see the place in working order the writer took a King stre.t west car and, being set down at 420, found himself in front of a new three story brick building surmounted by a cupola and having more the bright and siry appearance of a college than the prison-like forbidding piles known to the past and present generations as factory buildings. The front windows were neatly curtained, the lower stories being fitted with plate glass and, inside, the brightness and elegance of the offices, showrooms and workrooms struck the visitor at once. As with the main building, so with the auxiliary portions of the factory and caretaker's premises; comfort, convenience and taste seemed better studied than any new factory the writer has visited for many a day. Although it is not the writer's intention to attempt any discription of the many processes employed in the work, the happen Commercial gives Brandon | following notes given by the Trader of the factory will be interesting:

"From the mighty "Corliss" engine of fifty horse power, that silently and apparently without effort, drives the heavy and rapidly revolving machinery, to the powerful presses, some of which are very expensive, and steam rollers, everything was of the most perfect description and gave promise of fully carrying out the wishes of the makers

"In one department we found the moulders busy ladling the liquid metal from red hot cauldrons into moulds, and turning out with great rapidity, caster, pickle and tea pot handles, and many other articles of like kind, destined to form a prominent part of the elegantly finished goods with which the show room is fast being filled. In the spinning department might be seen the wood turners making chucks, on which to turn the metal, and the metal spinners, with the help of these wooden chucks, fashioning the metal into caster bands, cake baskets &c., on their rapidly revolving lathes. But time would fail us to tell of the plating department with its immense vats of silver solution and its rapidly revolving electric motor, from which is generated the electricity which asly, perhups fatally, stary repairs on the Louise railway and | modern science has so well utilized in this department of the fine arts; or, of the burries. The flames comme to suspend all driving across it with | nishing room with its long row of men with their steel burnishers, driven with their seemingly tireless arms to the cheery music of some Moody or Sandey melody or op ra song : or of the department where the designers and mould makers reign supreme, and everybody seems so quiet and studious that a novice might imagine that the workers were amusing themselves instead of working; or of the immense stock room, where shelves are loaded down with glass of every description, from the cheap, plain pickle jar to the richly decorated vase or berry dish of Bohemian manufacture. All the glassware used here is imported direct from Bohemia, and it may be interesting to note in conclusion that every dollar devoted to the founding of this enterprise has been invested by Canadians.

The Latest Electrical Discovery.

The Rev. Mr. Gilbert, during an address atChrist Church the other night, remarks th Otago Times, while speaking of the telephone, asked the audience if they would be astonished if he were to tell them that it was now proven to be possible to convey by means of electricity vibrations of light-to not only speak with your distant friend, but actually to see him. The electroscope-the name of the instrument which enables us to do this -was the very latest scientific discovery, and to Dr. Guidrab, of Victoria, belonged the proud distinction. The trial of this wonderful instrument took place at Melbourne on the 31st October last in the presence of some forty scientific and public men, and was a great success. Sitting in a dark room they saw projected on a large disk of white burnished metal the race course at Flemington with its myriad hosts of active beings. Each minute detail stood out with perfect fidelity to the original, and as they looked at the wonderful picture through binocular glasses, it was difficult to imagine that they were not actually on the course The company also claims to itself and moving among those whose actions they could so completely scan.

Why He Married.

In the forthcoming fascinating biography of the heroic Lord Lawrence there is among many anecdotes one eminently characteristic of the man, who was as strong in his affection as in his will. He was one evening sitting in his drawing-room at Southgate with his sister and other members of the family; all were engaged in reading. Looking up from his book in which he had been engrossed, he discovered that his wife had left the room. "Where's mother?" said he te one of his daughters. "She's up-stairs," replied the girl. He returned to his book, and looking up again a few minutes later, put the same question to his daughter and received the same answer. Ouce more he returned to his reading, and once more he looked up with the same question on his lips. His sister broke in: "Why, really, John, it would seem as if you could not get on five minutes without your wife." "That's why I married her," he replied.

AN OLD MAN'S GRIEF.

An Incident of a Late New York Fire. He stopped before Louisa Bradenburgh, a little girl, with light golden hair, and recognized her as his granddaughter; he wept bitterly, and bending down kissed her forehead. "She was all I had in the world," he said, with tears streaming down his face. "Poor Lou, poor, poor little girl." Then unmindful of the presence of everybody, he kuelt down by the child's side, and pressing one hand to his forehead, with the other he smoothed back the golden hair of the little girl, which the wind had tossed in masses across her face. When the policeman approached to raise the body to carry it to the waggon which was to carry it to his home, he turned towards them with an appealing look in his face and besought them not to touch his child. "You would not carry her from me, would you?" he asked. "Don't take her away; you don't know how she loved me and how I loved her." "Go away," said Commissioner Brennan to the officers, "and get a private coach." Then turning to the old man he asked him if he would help him to carry out the child. "Carry her," he said; "why, kind man, I have carried her in my arms a hundred times while she was alive, and why should I not do it now when she is dead? Come, come, Lou," he continued, "let us go home." And he lifted the child in his arms. A little ribbon fell from her dress as he was lifting her and a policeman placed it on her breast. "Oh, don't let me leave anything : give me all she has. They will be all I will have to love." he exclaimed, looking down at the floor where the child had been. He then started towards the door still crying. and, with his long white beard presseddown on the child's face kissed her lips.

Twice Married In One Night. A social party at Freeport L. I., had a singular and romantic ending. After the usual games and dances incident to such gatherings had been indulged in, the many couples present were discussed and the probability of their making a match canvassed. Among those present were Frank E. Rhodes and Josephine Remmet, who had been keeping company for a long time, and were supposed to be engaged to be married, and they agreed to act as principals in the wedding cermony which the guests proposed to inaugrate.

"And I will act as Dominie," spoke up Ben Rhodes, a brother of the proposed bridegroom.

The company were arranged in a circle, and the willing couple repeated the orthodox wedding service after Ben Rhodes, who acted as celebrant, and who, with unusual solemnity, pronounced Frank E. Rhodes and Josephine Remmett man and wife. When their associates sought to turn the ceremony into a joke, the couple declined to so regard it, insisting that according to the laws of this State they were legally and reg ularly married. Returning to their homes with their belief unshaken, the vexed question was finally settled by calling in Rev. Dr. Peck, who repeated the service, and Frank E. Rhodes and Josephine Remmett were made man and wife by being wedded twicein the same night.

ELECTRIC OIL NOT ECLECTRIC OIL.

The two words have very different significations, as will be seen by reference to Webster. The Eclectric Oil has no claim to Electric properties only by the picture on the wrapper, which looks like begging the question. The popularity of Briggs' Electric Oil is such as to induce unprincipled persons to appropriate all the law will allow them to do. The proprietors of the Electric Oil have no claim to the words Eclectric or Thomas; but to the words Briggs' Electric they do lay claim by right, as they have made them of value to themselves. Bowmanville, Canada, Jan. 2, 1883.

To the Editor of the Statesman. Dear Sir .- Perhaps some of your readers are afflicted with that dreadful disease-Catarrh. If so, I ask permission to say through the Statesman that I have been a subject of Catarrh for the last twenty years, and for the last eight years no one can tell the pains I have endured. At times I had a dull, heav; headache, discharges falling into the throat of a thick tenacious mucus. My eyes were weak and watery, ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking and coughing to clear the throat, and at times I was almost suffocated. I consulted some of the best physicians of the day, but to no effect. I have tried every kind of patent medicines, washes and snuffs, that I could hear of, but did not receive the least benefit until I tried Dixon's Catarrh Remedy. On the 5th August last I procured the remedy and started its use immediately, and by the uss of only three treatments I consider myself permanently cured. Its beneficial action was immediate and the cure speedy. Judging from the effects of this treatment on myself, I am satisfied that Dixon's is the only known treatment for Catarrh which will effect a permanent cure. To all who are suffering from Catarrh I must conscientiously say: Give Dixon & Son's Catarrh Remedy a fair trial; it is "worth its weight in

Sincerely yours,

RICHARD OKE. NOTE BY THE PUBLISHER.—The Publisher of the STATESMAN has had an intimate acquaintance with Mr. Oke for about thirty years, and can, with scores of others, vouch for correctness of the above statements. We had never known so bad a case of Catarrh as Mr. Oke's was, and the use of Dixon's Catarrh Remedy has effected a perfect cure, so that no symptoms whatever of the disease remain. We gladly give space to Mr. Oke's letter in the hope that it may be of benefit to some victim of Catarrh. Messrs. A. H. Dixon & Son will send a treatise on Catarrh free on receipt of stamp.
