Three Noted Women—Conjugal Companionship—Chit-Chat.

Three Noted Women.

Albani is a woman. That's a feather in her cap, which even G. Washington couldn't lay claim to.

"Don't you believe in stage nomenclature?" said Dickey.

"Most emphatically not," said I. "People shouldn't be ashamed of their names if they come by them honestly, and if the names they have are not good ones then it is their duty to make themselves such characters that the names linked to them will be honored in all languages.

"What about Mary Jane?" interrupted Dickey.

"I'm talking about Albani," said I, resuming my writing.

"Albani's record is pure and she stands as high as a woman as she does as an artist. She is married, too, and as far as anybody knows Mrs. Gye fills the heart of her husband quite as full as she fills the hearts of those who hear her songs.

"Do you think Mrs. Langtry is handsome?" said Dickey, just as everybody else said said.

"And I answered him as I answered them all that I think she is. Not pretty mind you, for a pretty woman, in the real meaning of the term pretty, is as inspired as a whiskey toddy with the whiskey left out, but handsome. Which means a great deal and includes not only face, but figure and manners.

"Do you think Mrs. Langtry is handsome?" said Dickey, just as everybody else said said.

and the tear contend for mastery in her voice and eye. That's the kind of a woman I like to praise and that's the kind of a woman I hate to see a man get, unless he is one of the very few special cases that the Lord has blessed the world with, just to show that He can turn out a respectable man when He wants to.

Conjugal Companionship.

Another discouragement that Dr. Dix might have prescribed for divorce is persistent, unselfish intention, on the part of married couples, to be companionable. Companionship is the basis of all animals. It is quite sure that most married couples were originally mismatched, but no fact is better known and recognized, outside of family circles, than that extreme difference of intellect, taste, acquirement disposition, and nature are no bar to the most delightful and enduring friendship, unless in one person or the other there are positive vices or selfishness that prevent the formation of any true or honorable bond with any being whatever.

Even heathen philosophers have urged man and woman to perpetuate and perfect their union by mutual and persistent devotion toward each other. But Dr. Dix has indirectly discouraged this in nearly all of his lectures. His injunction that wives shall be obedient to their husbands; his reprobation, or at least suspicion, of modern women's desire to be well informed on subjects of which their husbands talk; his criticism of women who are not content to be housekeepers and nurses and nothing more, are all calculated to make the women inferiors of their husbands, and, consequently, to a great degree uncompanionable.

The lecturer might justly have given his male parishioners, respectable and otherwise, some hard raps, for the custom of many of them is to devote the better part of the day to business, and most of the remainder to their male acquaintances, and only their stupid hours to their families.

And, if marriage is the holy institution that preachers proclaim it to be, why did not Dr. Dix blame the clergy of all the churches for not making its duties and blessings the subject of frequent sermons and instructions? Sermons on regeneration, adoption, sanctification, total depravity, redemption, backsliding, malice, envy, and uncharitableness abound, but what veteran church-goer has heard during all his life a dozen sermons on marriage?—The Hour.

And, if marriage is the holy institution that preachers proclaim it to be, why did not Dr. Dix blame the clergy of all the churches for not making its duties and blessings the subject of frequent sermons and instructions?

CHIT-CHAT.

Sealskin sacques will soon be sacrificed for linen dusters.

When a girl travels on her good looks she passes for her face value.

Some railroad employees a female switch-tender. Those officials are on the right track—women are ahead of anything as the switch-tenders, as when they are on duty the switch is never off, and then they are always posted on the proper time for trains, you know.

"Look here, Thomas Jefferson, dis heah's a nice time fo' you to be gettin' home," growled Aunt Polly, as her boy came in long after midnight. "Oh, g'long!" retorted Thomas, "you dunno nuffin. Hahn't you nobber hearn dat de darkey's hour is jes befo' day?"

Last summer, as he lay in the hammock dreamily gazing at the smooth, flower-sprinkled lawn, his darling approached and said: There is a difference between you, dear, and the grass plot. "Communicate the variation." "This is a daisy level, while you are a lazy—" I couldn't hear the rest of it.

She said she wanted a ticket to Wyandotte and return, and the pale, gentlemanly agent with the dark mustache asked, as he took up the pasteboard, "Single?" "It ain't any of your business, as I know of," she answered tartly; "I might have been married a dozen times if I'd felt like providin' for some poor, shiftless wreck of a man!"

The first quarrel: Philip Fogg, (who has refused, after prolonged discussion, to get gaudy raiment and take his wife to the Deroruno's fancy ball), morosely—"I wish I had married a sensible woman." His recently-acquired spouse (to whom the said ball is for the moment much more attractive than heaven), vindictively—"She wouldn't have had you!"

A day or two since a Duluth lady was passing along the street when some fiend in an upper window threw out a bucket of slops, deluging her from head to foot. Wiping the greasy stuff from her face and neck, she turned to a crowd of men, and with clenched teeth said: "Oh, goodness! Won't one of you gentlemen please swear for me? Oh, please do!"

"Mary, my love, do you remember the text this morning?" "No, papa, I never remember the text, I've such a bad memory." "Mary," said her mother, "did you you notice Susan Brown?" "Oh, yes, what a fright! She has on her last year's bonnet done up, a pea-green silk, a black lace mantilla, brown gaiters, an imitation Honiton collar, a lava bracelet, her old earrings, and such a fan!"

"Oh, yes," said madame, after the usual domestic racket had got itself well under way; "oh, yes, you gentlemen want your wives to be angels!" "Not at all," replied Mr. Dusenberry, wiping the dish-water from his head and face; "not at all; we don't want them to be angels at all; we want them to be ladies." And then the row began all over again, and the cat crawled softly into the cellar to drop anchor until the storm should be over.

Turn This into "Functics."

A fast man on a fast day took his fast horse and went to the end of the fast land, and there tied his fast, and as fast as he could he broke his fast. Then he rose and took off his hose and went with his hose along the rows, and put the rose on the end of the hose—which, as every one knows, is a sort of nose. So his hose waters every rose in all the rows. Now say you know how a foreign wright could learn very fast the meaning of hose and rows or nose and nose, or to perform any rite or even to write wright right, if his living depended on getting some right which involved the right writing of wright, write, and rite.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

DELICATE PUDDING.—Mix with the whites of four eggs, to which two tablespoons of rich cream is added, a half cup powdered sugar, and two tablespoons of arrow-root, blended in milk; pour in an extra cup of rich milk, and a little orange water; put this into a shallow white bowl and place it to cook in a pan of boiling water, stirring for half an hour.

BREAKFAST ROLLS.—Take four cupsful of flour, half a cupful of white sugar, two cupsful of milk, two eggs, and two teaspoonsful of baking powder. Beat the eggs and sugar together, add the milk, sift the baking powder among the flour, and stir all together. Bake in a shallow pan, in a quick oven.

Potato balls are very nice for breakfast. Boil them, and while still warm mash them until there are no lumps left; then mix butter, pepper, salt, a little chopped parsley, and one or more raw eggs; beat them together thoroughly, then mould in balls, dip in beaten eggs and then in flour, and fry in butter.

BAKED CODFISH.—Pick up the fish and freshen a little as for cooking, then into a dish put a layer of cracker crumbs, then one of fish, over each layer sprinkle pepper and butter, continue until you have two layers of fish and three of crackers; lastly beat two eggs with milk enough to cover the whole, bake about three quarters of an hour.

WATKIN WYNN'S PUDDING.—Quarter of a pound of raisins stoned and opened and laid round a basin or mould, half a pound suet, half pound of bread crumbs, quarter of a pound of brown sugar, two tablespoonsful of flour, a little candied peel, and a glassful of melted currant and raspberry jelly. This pudding can be served with the following sauce: Juice of two large lemons, quarter of a pound of sugar simmered and poured over warm; the lemon peel cut, and used to decorate the pudding.

Soft ginger-bread, if eaten while fresh and warm, is better than more expensive cake. One egg, one cup of molasses, one-third of a cup of melted butter, one cup of buttermilk, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of ginger, two and one-half cups of flour, and a little salt; dissolve the soda in a very little hot water. Bake in a buttered tin.

How TO COOK FRUIT.—After being very thoroughly washed, all fruit should be soaked for several hours in cold water, then cook in the same water by gentle simmering until very tender, and just before the completion of the cooking process, sufficient sugar should be added to sweeten. Most fresh fruit, especially berries, should be carefully washed before serving, as the washing when properly done does not injure their flavor, but greatly adds to their palatableness.

Drop cakes are made in this way: One cup of molasses, one cup of sugar, one cup of lard, one teaspoonful of ginger and one each of cloves and of cinnamon, two teaspoonsful of soda, dissolved in a cup of warm water; stir in flour enough to make a batter that will drop steadily from a spoon; add a little salt and a cup of dried currants.

ENGLISH ROLLED PUDDING.—Boiled pastry should be prepared with chopped and sifted suet, instead of lard or butter, but otherwise in the same manner as pie pastry. Roll jam or preserved fruit out into a thin sheet; spread over a thick layer of fruit, and then, commencing at one side, roll carefully until all the fruit is inclosed within the paste; pinch together at the ends, and tie up in a strong cotton cloth, then drop into a pot of boiling water. The cherry is the best for this purpose, or some other fruit possessing acidity. To be served with sweet sauce.

INDIAN PUDDING.—Take four eggs and the weight of three of them in meal, half a pound of sugar and a quarter of a pound of butter, and the juice and grated rind of one lemon. Beat the sugar and butter together till light, then break the eggs in the dish with them and beat briskly; then stir in the meal. Bake in a quick oven; serve in saucers, and pour over it some thin jelly or jam, or fruit sauce.

Wash a coffee-cupful of rice in two or three waters, then let it soak all night in three pints of new milk. In the morning add a little salt, a large spoonful of butter, a little ground cinnamon, and grated nutmeg. Put in the pudding dish, and set in the oven, allowing ample time, say two hours, for it to cook. Stir it frequently, but without removing from the oven. When it is beginning to bubble add a quarter of a pound of stoned raisins. Serve with powdered sugar sprinkled over it when it is put in saucers.

ROCHESTER, November. H. R. STEVENS, Esq.: Dear Sir—I have suffered for the last four years with Liver Complaint and troubles. Previous to taking the VEGETINE was under the doctor's care for a year but he did not help me. My friends advised me to try VEGETINE and I did so and in three bottles was much better. I continued using it until I was cured. I can truly say it is the best of health. I have given it to my daughter with great success. She was so much better that I have returned to general, and they have all been benefited by its use. Respectfully, C. J. SMITH, 218 E. 7th St.

Worth its Weight in Gold. TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 1879. H. R. STEVENS, Esq., Boston, Mass.: Sir—Having been persuaded by a friend to try VEGETINE for Kidney troubles with which I have been troubled for some time, and have given it such a happy result, I am inclined to say that I can attend to my work with comfort, which I was deprived of for years. The best medical man I have given my case up as hopeless. I have every kind of medicine I have ever tried, but with no avail whatever. Any person may be afflicted with the same troubles. I would certainly advise to try VEGETINE as you say many can testify that it is undoubtedly the best medical cure for Kidney Diseases. I am able to trade as a glider and earn a living for my two children and myself, through which I consider is worth its weight in gold. Hoping that those who may be afflicted may receive the same benefit that I remain, Yours Respectfully, CHAS. COOK, JR.
