An Engineer's Strange Experience.

Last week, while the big ninety-ton engine was filling her tank at the depot, a Journal reporter and Engineer Dirting had the following conversation:

"Did you ever take a train up the Tehachapi grade at night-I mean since the horrible accident?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, I made a trip over that part of the rode the last time I was down," replied the engineer, " and, so help me God, I never want to see another sight like the one I witnessed that night.?" "What did you see, if I may ack?" "Well, I don't like to talk about such things, for I'm different from most of my brethern, and don't believe that spirits visit the earth, but what I saw that night almost convinced me that they do on some occasions. I had had a very hard day's work, and the night was one of the most fearful that I ever saw on the mountain, and I've been over the road more than a thousand times. Well, just as we were passing where the cars jumped the track, my fireman-the young man in the cab now-called my attention to a man lying on the track only a short distance ahead. It was only a moment's work to stop the engine-we didn't have a train. The cowcatcher was within about three feet of the body when we stopred, I thought it was some poor tramp who had fallen down and frozen to death. I could see the body just as plain as I see you now, but when I got down and went in front of the engine I couldn't see the sign of a man, nor where any one had been .. This was a sticker, for there were several inches of snow on the ground, and had any one been there I could have seen the print in the snow. I was so much astonished that I could not speak for a few minutes. At last my companion asked if he was dead. I told him there was no one there, and he replied: picture on the side of ['What's the matter with you? I see him a verskin, and perhaps | right at your feet.' This caused me to take the second look, but not the sign of a man could I find. I got back into the cab, and, strange to say, I could see that body just as plain as day. I sent my fireman down and watched him. He walked all over the body, and came back in a moment with the whitest face I ever saw on a human being. Neither of us could speak a word. It was terrible; so I started up the grade, determined to get away from the horrible thing. When we passed over the spot where the body seemed to be I never heard such yells in my life. They came from both sides of the road. --Modesto Farmer's Journal.

A Jack that Killed a Grizzly.

A fight is on record in the courts at Pesca these. Why, in order to dero between a jack weighing 750 pounds att. we have even to cut and a grizzly bear of same weight. The All paper | jack is owned by a man named Ipse, and is i, and it cut in one way a vicious brute. A man named Black, a ... been made to look fat | raiser of blooded cattle in that neighborhood, had been troubled for several weeks by the visits of a grizzly, which killed and carried off a calf, and all his efforts to capture the bear had been unavailing. Finally he advertised in several papers of the State, offering $50 to any person who would kill the bear. Ipse read the offer, and resolved to take his jack to the corral and see what the result would be. Accordingly the jack a ratio snake and a was duly metalled. In the night along came the grizzly, and, seeing the jack on a owed that its and fancying a change of diet, he made an attack upon him; but as no one saw the the first overture. Anyway, next morning when the corral was visited bruin lay stark . its nead. Their legs | and dead and the jack was quietly feeding off the pile of hay. An inspection of him disclosed the fact that his breast and sides were fearfully lacerated by the bear's claws, and one of his fore feet was dislocated. But bruin was "all broke up." He h d his lower jaw all smashed to pieces; all of his ribs on the port side were all stoved in, and one of his fore legs was fractured at the shoulder. He was generally smashed all over. Ipse naturally claimed the reward of $50, but Black refused to pay it, claiming that the jack was not a person and therefore | found guilty of a similar offense it is prenot entitled to the reward. All Ipse's arguments failing, he resolved to have recourse to law, and, accordingly, suit has been brought. - San Francisco Chronic'e.

Eagles in Deadly Conflict.

This morning a man was telling on the street of a terrific battle he witnessed between two eagles yesterday on the Reavis place. The birds had come together in the air, about the tree tops, and one was trying to get hold of a jack rabbit the other held in its claws. They would fly at each other with tremendous force, screeching and scratching like wildcats. The air was filled with flying feathers, and the sport was an immense sight to the spectator, who sat on the fence watching it. Finally the eagle with the rabbit dropped his prey, and pitched in for all he was worth. He knocked his foe out in the second roun i, and then, swooping to the earth, he took hold of his rabbit, and sailed away to the top of an old oak tree. The dead eagle fell to the ground, and was picked up by the young man who saw the tight. - Chico Record.

The Proposed Sahara Sea. M. De Lesseps reports favorably on the proposed Sahara Sea scheme. Soundings 73 meters deep have shown the existence of nothing but sand. The African inland sea might easily be made, with the aid of 100 excavators, representing the work of 100,000 men. M. De Lesseps has met with the best reception from the Arab soldiery and population. On the 3d inst, he arrived at Biskra, having completed a survey of the country between Gabes and the Marsh Lakes. He declared that the soil will allow of the excavations necessary to connect the lakes with the Mediterranean, that the works will present no extraordinary difficulty, and that. the concessions asked for with regard to the forest and adjoining lands will make the scheme remunerative and wholly independent of State aid, subvention or guarantee.

A Child of the Storm.

A little boy, just old enough to walk, was found under some bushes near Headland, Ga., the other day, and no me knows where he came from or why he was there. It is surmised, however, that the little fellow is a wait of the late storm that swept over that section and over five States It is not unreasonble to suppose that he child had a ride on the wind to the spo where he was found uninjured. - From th Eufaula Times.

High Price Provisions.

We do not see much sense in the outcry raised about the high price of beef an other provisions of one kind and another. Wasn't this the very object of the N. P. that the different producers should be delivered from undue competition, and should have fair, liberal prices for all they had to sell? Well, why should not the farmers and butchers have their share in this? If everybody is so prosporous as is said, then everybody can pay handsomely for all they get Besides there is a very large quantity of batcher meat sent regularly from Toronto to Winnipeg. Of course all that leaves less for the meat-eating folks of the metropolis, and they must pay in proportion. It is the same thing with eggs. Why one paper mentioned a single consignment of ten thousand dozen ! When there is such competition the prices must go up, and all the co-operative stores in the world won't prevent the natural action of supply and demand. It is hard, very likely, on those who have fixed incomes, and these perhaps small ones; but they must just be comforted with the thought that if they are pinched the country in general is prosperous. When people live in a country and at a time when the beauties of dearness in all that one eats, drinks, and wears are celebrated both in prose and verse, why should there be any ado about beef being fitteen cents a pound and eggs as much per dozen? Come, let us all be reasonable, and rejoice, instead of crying out against the store-keepers. We wonder how they all make a living. If a third of them would go on farms and become producers in. stead of middlemen, it would be an improvement.

Our Immigrants.

This immigration business will need to be very closely looked into, and stringent provisions made against it; abuse, else the results will be disastrous. The steam ship companies are paving a premium of $4 a head to immigration agents, and accordingly the agency net is being cast, and is gathering of every sort, especially of the most undesirable. They are sending Neapolitan beggars by the thousand, and the result of all cannot but be injurious in a very high degree. There are poor men in Toronto able and willing to work, who at this hour are glad to get one, two, or three days' work in the week, and who, but for their wives going out to wash, etc., would all but starve. What is the use of adding to their number? With one eighth of the inhabitants of New York paupers, there seems small reason for importing more. With our Canadian cities swarming with street arabs for whom notedly seems to care, and who are growing up in ignorance and vice, to fill the gaols, often feed the gallows, what in the name of common sense is the use of bringing over to this country the sweepings of the old world streets?
