"Don't say 'entry' Charles," said Mrs. Culture to her son; "'hall' is much more elegant." Next day the young man astonished his friends by speaking of Ald. Shaughnessy's "hall into office."

"That which we call arose by another name would smell as sweet." If you believe that just tell a boy to sleep on at 6 a.m. instead of calling him to "arose," and see how much better it suits him.

A gentleman in Brooklyn, celebrating the birth of a daughter on the day of the opening of the bridge, proposed to call her Victoria, in honor of the Queen's birthday, whereupon a friend (not an Alderman) suggested that a more appropriate name would be Bridget.

"Mehitable Jane, I cannot give you another new dress this summer," ejaculated Mrs. Purseproud to her darling, "your father's pocket book has been drained by you now; in fact, it is dry." "But mainma I must." "You must not," interrupted Mrs. P. "You are a-a-" "A regular clothes wringer," rejoined the young lady.

At a fashionable wedding in New York the ceremony was performed under a floral umbrella. This was probably a little suggestion of the bride's mother, who wanted the groom to understand by the emblem that he ought to put up something for a rainy day .- Hartford Times. Oh, no! It was a suggestion for a parasol-taire diamond ear-rings.

A "shocking" cath—"Thunder and lightning." Always work with a will when you try to break one. Elizabeth: No, dear, coffins are not made of dye-wood. Current poetry is generally that which has an easy flow. Canary birds are generally nice and plump, though they go to seed early. "I have struck bed rock," said the tired baby when they put him in the cradle.

Singular Freak of Two Horses.

Just after dusk one recent evening the passengers in a horse car were puzzled and greatly amused by the queer actions of two strange horses. As the car was coming down the avenue two unharnessed horses were observed to come from a side street and trot after the car, keeping their noses close to the rear dash. The conductor tried to drive the animals away, but they kept on, in spite of every effort, to the end of the line, several passengers, among them a clergyman, remaining on board to see the upshot of the novel chase. As the car started on the return trip the two horses followed. After a time the driver chased one off, but the other horse kept resolutely on after the car, stopping when it was stopped, but promptly jogging on when it started. Some of the passengers suggested that the horses had formerly drawn horse cars, but had been sold, and, getting locse, had, through force of habit, followed the first car they met, knowing that they would get a square meal after the night's work was finished. One of the gentlemen who was on the car said that it was a mystery where the horses came from. He was puzzled to account for this action, for he had not met any one who had ever heard of such a strange proceeding by horses .-Newark Call.

A Much-Peited Earth.

People are so accustomed to looking upon the earth as practically the only material body in the universe, and upon the sky as the realm of unsubstantial phenomena, that it must seem to many a startling thought that our globe is not only literally pelted with meteoric stones, but that as it advances with the sun in his long voyage through space it becomes covered, like any other traveller, with the dust of the journey drifting in upon it from outer and apparently empty space.

Mostly out: "Your sin will surely find you out!" said a pastor, sadly, to a drunken member of his flock. "Well," was the thick reply, "hi guess-hic-she won't be very likely-hic-ter find me in." Fully to understand a grand and beautiful thought requires, perhaps, as much time as to conceive it.

SCIENTIFIC GOSSIP.

A fatal cutaneous disease is produced in rodents by the "Fulvus fungus," or the Anchorion schlocenlinii, as they are called.

It has been stated by a chemist that heating to 120° Centigrade is enough to clear Turkey reds which have been dyed in the presence of a sulpholeate.

Beet-root sugar is now admitted to be quite distinct from cane sugar. Its sweetening power is 30 per cent. lower at least, but its polarizing power is greater.

Mr. H. C. Harvey mentions the case of a cat that has become quite blind from cataract, but is still able to do mousing and to make journeys from and to home.

Pasteur has studied the pneumo-enterite. of pigs, which has carried off last year in the Valley of the Rhone alone more than 20,000 swine. He traces the affection to microbia.

Crude honey has been found to keep far better than the clarified kind, but the addition of about 1 per cent. of oxalic acid will do no harm to the honey, but will improve

A Polish newspaper says that a rich land proprietor who is living in Plotzle has applied to the Government for permission to build a railroad between that place and the fortress of Novogeorgievsk-a capital name for a terminus.

An artificial leather, seys the Engineering, mixed with from 5 to 10 per cent. of sinew and pressed into sheets like ordinary leather card-board, has been recently made in Germany. Both materials are made separately. The leather pieces are washed, cut, boiled in alkaline lye, torn, neutralized with hydrochloric acid, and finally carefully washed once more to remove all traces of acid. The sinews are treated similarly, but steamed in an acid bath until they are like glue. When thas prepared the materials are mixed, pressed into sheets, moistened on both sides with a concentrated solution of alum, and the upper surface is at last given a thin black points, fired nigh hind leg, bone spavincoat of caoucchous in solution with carbon bisulphide.

And so the bogus Lord Cantyre has been divorced from the lady whom he marriedor rather, to speak more exactly, their marriage has been annulled and declared by the courts to have been invalid from the beginning. Our readers will doubtless all remember—we are sure our lady readers will—how a young Englishman, by the name of Allen, met Miss Chaffey in Paris and followed her here visiting at her guardian's residence that of Judge Sinkler, of Perth-and how, taking advantage of a company going to the carnival at Montreal last winter, they were Chaffey and her friends passed himself off as a Lord Cantyre, and the title doubtless added to his attractions. That she was Perforated possessed of about a quarter of a million, added, perhaps, to hers. Anyway, a young lawyer in Montreal passed the bogus lord through, and with the cabman became surety, on getting the license; a clergymen performed the service, and they were pronounced man and wife. The legal informality now proves to have been the want of consent of her guardians—she being a minor. The whole case shows the unsatisfactory state of the marriage law, especially in Quebec. Even here, however, it will stand amendment in the direction that this bogus Lord Cantyre case indicates.
