BRIGHT THOUGHTS.
If anything affects your eye, you have to have it removed; but if your mind is disordered you postpone the term of cure for a year.—Horace.
To what atrocities cannot that mind reach which is impelled by selfish avarice.—Virgil.
Many are ambitious of saying grand things—that is, of being grandiloquent. Eloquence is speaking out, a quality few esteem and fewer aim at.—Hare.
Let friendship creep gently to a height; if it rush to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.—Fuller.
The lightsome countenance of a friend giveth such an inward decking to the house where it lodgeth, as proudest palaces have cause to envy the gilding.—Sir Philip Sidney.
What we call miracles and wonders of art are not so to Him who created them: for they were created by the natural movements of His own great soul. Statues, paintings, churches, poems, are but shadows of Himself.—Longfellow.
I always fancy I can hear the wheels clicking in a calculator's brain. The power of dealing with numbers is a kind of "detached lever" arrangement, which may be put into a mighty poor watch.—Holmes.
Religion gives part of its reward in land, the present comfort of having done our duty; and for the rest, it offers us the best security that Heaven can give.—Tillotson.
Human foresight often leaves its proudest possessor only a choice of evils.
To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books. They presently fix thee to them, and drive the other out of thy thoughts. They always receive thee with the same kindness.—Thomas Fuller.
A good memory is the best monument. Others are subject to casualty or time, and we know that the pyramids themselves, rotting with age, have forgotten the names of their founders.—Fuller.
There is a thread in our thoughts as there is a pulse in our feelings—he who can hold the one knows how to think, and he who can move the other knows how to feel.
Open rebukes are often magistrates and courts of justice. Private rebukes are for friends, were all the witnesses of the offender's blushes are blind and deaf and dumb.—Feltbam.
People may make injuries worse by unreasonable conduct, by giving way to anger and satisfying that for the moment, instead of thinking what will be the effect in the future.—George Eliot.
The Effect of Blizzards on Cattle
I have seen blizzards on the plains that swept through a man who was clad in heavy woollens and fur overgarments as though he was dressed in tarlatan. I have known parties of buffalo hunters, men used to hardship, and whose stomachs were filled with buffalo marrow, and who were wrapped in blankets and robes, to freeze to death in their wagons while endeavoring to escape from the unendurable, icy blasts of an arctic blizzard. Cattle, weak and ill-fed on frost-bitten grass, disappear before these storms. They drift before the wind. As they pass by the air is filled with the sound of their mournful moaning. They wander staggeringly along over the trackless plains, vainly endeavoring to find water with which to quench the intense thirst produced by exceeding cold weather. The water holes are frozen. The weaker cattle drop out of the herd. They lie down to die. The snow drifts around them. They are freezing to death, and are still consumed by raging fever. The wolves attack them as they lie on the frozen ground unable to rise, unable to protect themselves. The cry of despair uttered by the wretched animals when they realize that the horrible death of being eaten alive by carnivorous animals is their doom, is an unearthly one. As the peculiar bellow of an animal when it finds the scent of the blood of one of its fellows on the ground excites the herd with the information: "Here one of us has been slain," and renders them unmanageable, so does the death cry of a feeble cow frighten the drifting herd. They disappear down the wind. The wolves close in on the doomed animal. She struggles desperately to arise. In vain. The hungry wolves attack her. They tear her open. They drag her entrails out and devour them before her eyes. She dies, and the wolves pick her bones and then gallop after the herd.
A Word for the English Sparrow.
Farmers in the neighborhood of Reading, Pa., advance the theory that since the onslaught on the English sparrows, which is permitted by recent legislative enactment, there has been a remarkable increase in the damage to crops by the Hessian fly and the wheat worm. The farmers attribute the ravages of these insects in the main to the destruction of the sparrows.
The Little Model Republic.
VALPARAISO, CHILE.—Senor Ricardo Stiven, a leading commission merchant of this city, after having exhausted all other remedies has been completely cured of rheumatism by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-banisher. He makes this public.
The lottery business is becoming very risky and unprofitable. The last movement is that of the Postmaster-General of the United States forbidding post-office orders to the Louisiana Lottery Company to be cashed.
Lowndes, the English wheelman, has performed a remarkable feat by driving his three-wheeled velocipede ten miles in thirty-two minutes and a half. His performances will doubtless cause the tricycle to be regarded with greater favor than heretofore.
At a recent sale at auction of old government medical supplies, at St. Louis, amongst other things one man bought 17,303 pills for thirty-eight cents. A local paper says: "The books and instruments sold had been used before, but the pills were entirely new."

Twenty Years A Sufferer.
R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:
Dear Sir—Twenty years ago I was shipwrecked on the Atlantic Ocean, and the cold and exposure caused a large abscess to form on each leg, which kept continually discharging. After spending hundreds of dollars, with no benefit, I tried your "Golden Medical Discovery" and now, in less than three months after taking the first bottle, I am thankful to say I am completely cured, and for the first time in ten years can put my left heel to the ground. I am yours,

Thousands of women bless the day on which Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" was made known to them. In all those derangements causing backache, dragging-down sensations, nervous and general debility, it is a sovereign remedy. Its soothing and healing properties render it of the utmost value to ladies suffering from "internal fever," congestion, inflammation, or ulceration. By Druggists.
There's been considerable talk lately about "royalty on barbed wire." All we can say is that royalty must feel might uncomfortable.

The all prevalent malady of civilized life is Dyspepsia. Rev. W. E. Gifford, of Bothwell, was cured of dyspepsia and liver complaint that rendered his life almost a burden. The cure was completed by three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters (36)
"I declare," exclaimed a slovenly writer, "I wish I could find a pen that would just suit me." And instantly came a chorus: "Try a pig-pen."
Bilious and Dyspeptic Patients.
Take Dr. Hoffman's German Bitters. They act directly on the Liver and Stomach, opening up at once and strengthening their absorbing vessels, eliminating all impurities and foul accumulations, which their laxative property afterwards carries off through the bowels, restores health, making life a pleasure instead of a burden. By chemists.
A chap in prison at South Berd had a tunnel all dug for his escape when pardoned, and he is mad because he lost two hundred hours of hard work.
A Voice from the United States.
I have suffered for the last 20 years with Dyspepsia and General Debility, and tried many remedies, but with little success until I used Burdock Blood Bitters, when relief was quick and permanent. (33)

Nothing is easier than fault-finding. No talent, no self-denial, no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business. But those who are moved by a genuine desire to do good have little time for murmuring or complaint.
