LITERATURE.—This is truly an age of cheap literature, and much of the reading matter of the present age is anything but elevating morality. We however advertise in this issue a book entitled "Mother, Home and Heaven" which every family should possess, and which cannot but prove a most valuable acquisition to each household that procures a copy. Read carefully what eminent divines say about it in another column.

P. T. BARNUM, the celebrated showman is said to be worth between ten and fifteen million dollars; he has recently made his will. Two questions are very suggestive in the above, in the first place Mr. Barnum became wealthy chiefly by the liberal and judicious use of printers ink, or in other words, by advertising, and in the second place he has proved himself a wise man in making provision for the distribution of his riches while possessed of a strong mind and physical vigor, thereby saving the endless trouble and expense usually attending the settlement of the financial affairs of millionaires after their decease.

OFF TO FLORIDA.—W. H. Hunter, Esq., well known as a prominent wood merchant on the T. G. & B., has gone to Jacksonville, Florida, with his wife and family to spend the remaining winter months. Mr. H. has written an interesting letter to his friends giving a brief account of his trip to the sunny south. He sends a very curious memento of his journey enclosed in the letter. It is a single hair from a Kentuckian's beard that measured five feet, one and threequarter inches. This may seem incredible, but if you don't believe it you can see the hair now in the possession of some of the friends.—

61ST THOUSAND--New Edition. Revised and Enlarged.

MOTHER, HOME & HEAVEN

This Beautiful Home Book made More Beautiful.

Its unprecedented sale requiring repeated editions have so worn the plates as to unfit them for further use; and its increasing popularity and demand has induced the Publishers to re-set and print the entire work from new type and Electrotype plates.

We have thus improved the opportunity to revise, enlarge and beautify the work in the following particulars:

- 6 New Full-Page Illustrations.
- 51 New and Choice Contributions.
- 40 Quarto Pages Added, 414--454.
- 34 Additional Authors Introduced.
- And a New Emblematic Presentation Page.

400 GEMS of PROSE and POETRY in the GRAND TOTAL

THE GRANDEST THOUGHTS AND UTTERANCES FROM THE BEST AND WISEST MINDS, UPON THE THREE DEAREST NAMES TO MORTALS GIVEN.

There is no condition of life it will not improve, no state of the soul it will not cheer and comfort.

A beautiful Monument to the Power and Glory of MOTHERHOOD, and

A voice for the Home, its peace and Sanctity, A voice whispering in loving accents of Heaven.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER?
WHAT IS LIFE WITHOUT A HOME AND HOME INFLUENCES?
WHAT WILL OUR ETERNITY BE WITHOUT HEAVEN AND ITS HAPPINESS?

If you are a Parent get it, it will prove a faithful Counselor in Home affairs.

If you have a home get it, it will aid you in making Home Life more beautiful.

If you are bound for Heaven get it, it will cheer and help you on the way.

OPINIONS OF EMINENT DIVINES AND COLLEGE PRESIDENTS.

E. O. HAVEN, D. D., LL. D., Chancellor Syracuse University:—Could our own venerated "Mother" have seen this splendid book in our own sweet "Home" fifty years ago, she would have been scarcely less surprised and pleased than when she first entered "Heaven." The outside of this book is golden, the inside suitable to its setting. Some of the most precious things ever said are here. It is a book for the centre-table, and its sentiments are worthy to be cherished in every heart.

WILLIAM M. TAYLOR, D. D., Pastor of Broadway Tabernacle, New York City:—This book is as valuable in its contents as it is beautiful in its external appearance. There is something here for almost every experience, and the lessons for earth are all made to point toward the rewards of Heaven. The book, as a whole, is worthy of all ac-ceptation, and is especially timely in an age when the glory of the home is frequently forgotten in the glitter of what is called society.

MORGAN DIX, D. D., Rector of Trinity Church, Broadway, New York City:—The intention of the compiler was laudable one; and so well has the design been carried out, that there are very few of the many selected pieces, which I should prefer to see omitted. As a proof of my approval of the work, I beg you to send another copy to my house, and I will pay on delivery.

JOHN HALL, D. D., Pastor Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City:—He who purifies the home and lightens it with the light of Heaven, blesses his own generation and the generations following. All the influences of the elegant volume are in this direction.

JOHN F. HURST, D. D., President of Drew Theological Seminary, New Jersey:—It is a book for the home; one that will do us a real service at home or when away from it, in suggesting right thoughts. The happy combination of prose and poetry, the grouping of authors of every evangelical confession in happy brotherhood, greatly enhance the value of the work, as they must enlarge the number of its friends.

GOLDEN OPINIONS OF THE RELIGIOUS AND SECULAR PRESS.

The New York Churchman says: "The holiest sentiments of the human heart find expression here. It cannot fail to exert a wholesome and blessed influence upon the reader. It appeals not only to the emotions, but also to the conscience. The sympathy that wins and the course that guides, are both to be found in these pages. One seldom meets with gathered extracts richer in beauty and wisdom, than those which compose this work."

The National Journal of Education, Boston, says: "We doubt if there is a book in the English language better adapted to elevate and refine the character of the reader than this."

The New York Daily Tribune, says: "It exhibits the brightest aspects of religion, and sets forth the precepts of morality in an attractive form. It combines the charms of literature with sound principles on the conduct of life, and is well suited for an interesting gift-book, whose influence can only tend to increase the number of virtuous and happy homes."

The Philadelphia Christian Standard and Home Journal says: "This is truly one of the most beautiful and interesting books of the season. It abounds in the most pure and precious sentiments, and will do good to all who read it. It is pre-eminently suitable for a holiday present.
We wish the book could be put into every family in the land. Every page of it is full of the most touching and instructive thoughts."

The Cleveland Evangelical Messenger says: "Here certainly is a book fit for every house and home, a book which no one can read without benefit. It is truly a treasury of golden thoughts on a trinity of themes old as the world and precious as love."

Will call and show you my book at my earliest convenience.

Yours Respectfully,

D. K. McPHERSON.
