CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION.

The convention held at Flesherton to-day, (Thursday) was very largely attended, every polling sub division was fully represented. The following were nominated: Messrs. Thomas McKenny, reeve of Collingwood tp.; Thos. Kells, Artemesia; M. Richardson, merchant, Flesherton; Wm. Howey, ex-Reeve, Holland; Dr. Christie, Reeve, Artemesia; John McArthur, Pricerville; Cap. J. Rorke, Collingwood tp.; Thos. Andrews, miller, Thornbury; N. McColeman, ex-Reeve, Collingwood tp.; John Lyons, Markdale; N. McGirr, ex-Reeve, Osprey; Jas. Lamon, Lawyer, Dundalk.

A general feeling of unanimity prevailed, which was somewhat unexpected. The following withdrew from the list of nominations before a vote was taken: McKenny, McArthur, Lyons, McGirr and Lamon, leaving seven candidates.

The first vote gave N. McColeman forty-nine out of one hundred and sixteen votes, and the second gave him some twenty of a majority of the whole, when he was made the unanimous choice of the convention.

The prospects are that Mr. McColeman will have the largest vote ever polled in East Grey by one man.

HYGIENE.

Our objection to pastry, which is in such common use, and so highly prized by many, is simply that it consists of an almost indigestible compound of hog's grease and flour, the cause, doubtless, of a large proportion of the indigestions, dyspepsias, and liver diseases of which so many complain.

Children of a very tender age must be regaled on tea and coffee; vegetables and sauces must be peppered and spiced before they are supposed to be palatable. Well-meaning temperance people do not usually understand the effects of the habitual use of these articles in their families. The child commences with tea, not very strong at first, perhaps, but it creates a craving for a stronger infusion, next he must have his meats highly spiced, he must have a liberal allowance of animal food he cries for more and more of these stimulants until as he grows up something yet stronger is demanded, an appetite has been created for tobacco and ardent spirits. His nerves are rendered irritable and excitable, his blood is not in its normal state, his desires and passions are on fire, he has already made considerable progress in the downward career, when his friends have begun to fear that he has just commenced it. His parents have not the remotest idea of the cause or beginning of the mischief, or that they themselves with the help of a proper knowledge of the laws of hygiene might have prevented all this evil. Those, to be sure, who are gifted with rare self-control and favored by the elevating influences of intellectual and moral culture, good society and religion, may in a measure restrain and correct their perverted appetites, and escape. Few parents, however, understand that in allowing their children this highly stimulating diet, they are working most effectually against the cause they have so much at heart, that the child living in this way is in an irritable, abnormal, we might almost say feverish condition of the physical system, unfavorable to proper bodily growth and development, and which renders it difficult for him to avoid the course of the debauchee and the drunkard. These who have the care of inebriate asylums tell us that after they have been deprived of tea, coffee, spices, tobacco, and animal food, they have then no great difficulty with the unfortunates they would care of their morbid craving for intoxicating drinks, but that so long as the milder and commonly, but erroneously supposed harmless stimulants are allowed them they cannot be cured of the appetite for ardent spirits.

Now let us ask is it wise after pulling in fancy and youth and adult age through all this course of stimulants, and after creating in the larger portion of mankind the necessity, or at least the habitual use of them, does it appear intelligent to set up a crusade against a single form of the abuse—the alcoholic—and proceed to wage war against it? Is this an intelligent warfare against this enemy of mankind? Is it not plain enough that reform must begin earlier and be more comprehensive? Evidently the great root of the evil has been entirely overlooked by workers in the temperance cause.

Flesherton.

From our own correspondent.

The entertainment given under the auspices of the A.O.U.W. in the town hall last Friday evening was fairly attended. Mr. M. P. McMaster occupied the chair, and after a few brief remarks entered upon the program. Messrs. Vanzant and McDowell rendered some sweet music during the evening on the violin and organ; Misses Christie and Richardson sang a duet very artistically; Mr. J. Richardson occupied about ten minutes and gave some very interesting statistics relative to the Order. Prof. Watson, of Toronto, was present and sang a number of songs in character. Mr. Watson evinced some ability as a comic singer but a number of his selections were below par with a Flesherton audience. Our popular Scottish vocalist, Mr. J. R. Anderson, was present, but owing to illness was not able to use his vocal powers, much to the dismay of many in the audience.

A few weeks ago a communication from a Flesherton correspondent to the Dundalk Herald came under the critical eye of the editor of the Advance, and probably feeling a little chagrin that any one in Flesherton should send spicy, newsy letters on current events and topics of general interest, to an outside paper, while his own proverbial dull sheet was neglected, he scanned the letter carefully over and at length found one small typographical error, a misplaced date figure, and from this he took a text for a paragraph in his own paper in his usual vulgar style. To this the Herald correspondent replied in a letter which would have made any man in the Advance editor's position smart, if at all sensitive. To this the Advance replied in a paragraph principally composed of such epithets as fool, blockhead, thickhead, &c. Again the Herald correspondent gave him the lash and laid it on so effectually as to smart even through such a tough hide as his subject can boast of. The editor of the Herald, Mr. T. Hall, a gentleman well and favorably known, made a few remarks in a half playful manner on the correspondence, but in doing so neither forgot what was due to gentlemanly courtesy to his own profession nor his own self respect. At this the Advance comes out in an article vulgarly abusive, personally vindictive, but perfectly in accord with the character of a vulgar, ignorant bully. It commences with "the little local preacher who makes a pretense of editing that insignificant sheet dignified by the title of the Dundalk Herald" and goes on to call him little "sucker," an "ignoramus" and other such opprobrious epithets. Now when it is known that this same Fawcett, Advance editor, professes to be a member of the Methodist church, in the service of which Mr. Hall has been a successful, useful, honored and acceptable lay preacher for many years. The bad, may even brutal taste of the writer of this scurrilous paragraph is singularly apparent, but when he styled Mr. Hall an ignoramus he floundered out of even his own shallow waters, as the wide gulf between the intelligence, education and general ability of the two men is so apparent and well known that comparisons are odious. But when he called Mr. Hall a "sucker" he chose a term that so well and appropriately defines his own character that it is mere folly to send it from home. It never did and never can fit the spunky little man that edits the Herald, but if the word sucker defines a man without means or brains who imposes himself on a suffering community and who has not got enough sense to hide from the public gaze his own scanty mental furnishings, but assuming the role of an editor, exhibits weekly his lack of intelligence and glories in his shame, then the word will accurately designate the editor of the Advance. A more respectful bearing to a gentleman so well and favorably known as Mr. Hall will better suit the columns of the Advance and tend more to promote its interests.

The social in the Methodist parsonage, on Wednesday evening, was largely attended and a most enjoyable time was spent. Special credit is due those who got up the social for the excellent quality of the tea. Over one hundred and twenty five were in attendance, and all appeared to realize that "it is good for us to be here." A varied and interesting program was ably rendered after which the party returned to their homes highly pleased with their evenings enjoyment. Proceeds $19.

All things have some kind of standard by which the natural goodness of them is measured. We do not, therefore, esteem a ship to be good because she is curiously carved, painted, and gilded; but because she is fitted for all the purposes of navigation, which is the proper end of a ship. It should be likewise in our esteem of men who are not so much to be valued for the grandeur of their estates or titles, as for their inward goodness and excellence.
