

Bitten by a Cobra.

Among many instances of snake-bite poisoning I have seen... Brahmans of twenty, well known to me, who had been bitten during the night while watching his maize crop.

With some difficulty I was able to find the bite—very faint no larger than the prick from a pin, but still the unmistakable double mark of the poison fangs.

At length it seemed to be of no use torturing him further by keeping him moving about, and he was allowed to remain at rest.

The Smallest Republic.

Burglar Stories.

One night a dear old lady was going to bed in a remote chamber in a big house when she accidentally perceived a man hidden under the bedstead.

In know of one or two cases in which there has been great courage on the side of the attacked party and great cowardice on that of the burglars.

Tortures in Bengal Jails.

The Indian Statesman, referring to an inquiry which has been directed to be made by the Lieutenant-Governor "as to the tortures which are declared to be practised in the prisons of these provinces, particularly in the Presidency Jail, under the pretence of maintaining discipline," says: "The whole world knows the mortality that prevails in the jails of Bengal, and in particular the Presidency Jail. Now, our informants do not scruple to say that many men therein have practically been murdered in the last twelve years by the repeated floggings to which they were subjected until their bodies were a mass of gangrene.

Miners' Luck.

The death of Peter Whyte recalls the strange story of the founding of Victoria, Australia in an Australian mining camp at one of the tents at four men—the 10th of June, 1858—talking earnestly of their future and bemoaning the past.

The Nicaragua Canal.

Little faith is placed in Panama in the Nicaragua Canal. The experience gained in the 47 miles of work on the Panama Canal leads all practical men to foresee the great difficulties which have to be overcome in the 145 miles of the Nicaragua Canal.
