THAT SINK HOLE.

It appears strange that nothing can be done in the shape of a permanent job on what is known as "Allen's sink hole."

It is now over four weeks since it was passable for a foot person, while it is dangerous for a team to cross, especially for strangers. The water has been very high in that swamp this season, and covers the road, more or less, for forty rods, causing great inconvenience to the travelling public.

If there is a possibility of draining it, the council should have it done, as that appears to be the most likely mode of surmounting the difficulty. This place has been swallowing public funds for the last twenty years, and its appetite appears to be increasing.

If some person would advance a scheme that would make a permanent job at a reasonable cost, they should get a pension, at all events the council should look after it promptly.

Flesherton.

From our own correspondents.

The annual spring show held in Flesherton on the 29th ult, was well patronized. It is evident from the show of stallions in the ring that a deep interest is being taken in the importation of new and well bred stock into the country.

A. Munshaw, Esq., is making marked improvements on the commodious hotel, by raising the walls with two feet of brick work and covering with a new roof of much steeper pitch than that of the old.

Operations have already commenced upon the foundation of the new Baptist church, to be erected here this summer. Messrs. Moore and Whitton have secured the contract for the same.

REMOVALS.—J. G. Russell, our popular jeweller, moved this week into the house recently purchased by Thos. Osborn from J. G. Brooks. Mr. Brooks moves into his own new dwelling erected by himself this season. Rev. J. Watson moves into the dwelling vacated by Mr. Russell.

The Baptist people of this place have changed their hour of service from 11 a. m. till two p. m., and have commenced a Sunday evening service in the Orange Hall at Flesherton station.

There was no preaching in the Presbyterian church here on Sabbath last.

The fourth regular quarterly meeting services for the present ecclesiastical year was held in the Methodist church here on Sabbath last. The services of the day were felt to be a time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. In the morning the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Ayers, announced a praise and thanksgiving service for the evening. There was a large turn out, the church being filled to the doors. The service was commenced by the choir singing the Lord's Prayer. Several anthems were rendered by the full choir during the service. Miss Addie Armstrong sang a solo in fine voice with good effect. Rev. Mr. Ayers gave a brief address, in which he spoke of his happy relation with his church and congregation during this, his first year with them. During the year he had received nothing but the most marked kindness, sympathy and help from all. There was good cause for thanksgiving and praise on part of both pastor and people. He and they could rejoice that during the year souls had been made happy by coming to the Saviour. Numerically as a church they had been strengthened, and spiritually, they had also been blessed. His earnest prayer to God was that they all might go on from strength to strength until glory should crown what grace had begun. Mr. M. Richardson was then called upon and gave a most happy thrilling address on the service of song and its effects; spoke on the duty, privilege and enjoyment of praise with several incidents illustrative of what he was then speaking of. Dr. Christie then followed, and spoke of the influence of religion and its concomitant spirit of praise on character and how it shed a halo round its possessor at the close of life, as witnessed often by himself in his professional duties. Several appropriate hymns were sung by the congregation, and the whole service was one of delight and enjoyment to all present.
