MARKDALE JUNE 10 1886

MARKDALE TO GODERICH.

On Tuesday morning, June 1st, we boarded the train south, changing cars at Cardwell Junction we took the Hamilton & North-Western, arriving in Georgetown at 10:40, making close connection with the G. T. R., and reaching Stratford at 1:15 where a train was waiting to convey us to Goderich, where we arrived at 3:40, sharp on time.

Vegetation along the above line is in much the same stage of advancement. The country from Georgetown to Guelph is generally broken, stony and rocky, but on leaving Guelph westward there is a vast improvement, while the districts passed through in the vicinity of Berlin, Stratford, Seaforth and Clinton are unbroken, and a delightfully prosperous agricultural country.

GODERICH

is the county town of Huron, is situated on the banks of the Maitland River where it empties into Lake Huron. The plan of the town is strangely novel. The county court house stands in the centre of the town, and is encircled with a beautiful park in which flowers, shrubs and shade trees abound, faced with many of the principal places of business, which encompass the park on all sides. A park surrounded by business places is a rare sight. These places of business around the court house and park have a frontage of about a third of a mile. The roadway or street, between the park and those business places is very wide and level, in fact all the streets are, we believe, a uniform width of six rods. The streets point from the court house in all directions. East St. West St. North St and South Street besides one between each of these making in all eight streets direct from the court house, and these multiply in both directions as you proceed from this centre in a manner very suggestive of a spider web, and equally as entangling to those who fall into its meshes as many of the Conference delegates will indignantly agree (ask Mr. Bowes.) The streets abound with shade trees, and are wonderfully clean; the sidewalks wide, being all twelve feet; but there is not half as much wooden sidewalks in the whole of the town as there is in Markdale; the walks are gravel, and are hard and smooth; the streets are also hard and smooth, while mud is a thing, comparatively speaking, unknown in the place. We cannot go into general particulars in regard to the public interests of the town, such as the great salt works, the greatest portion of which have been given up for want of a demand for that article at remunerative prices.

THE CONFERENCE

has progressed from day to day, commencing on Tuesday the 2nd and closing on Tuesday the 8th. Over 200 delegates were present, and the various matters of business were dealt with in a thoroughly practical and business manner. The people of the town have shown commendable liberality in providing for the wants of the hundreds of strangers attending Conference, while all appeared to thoroughly enjoy their visit both in reference to Conference work and society. The next annual conference will be held at Galt, commencing the first Wednesday in June.

Correspondence.

Notice.—We wish it distinctly understood that we do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents

Mr. Standard Editor:

Being as you are editin' the paper this week, I thought, as I have had a little experience in the matter I might be able to advise you. Now, in the first place, I have learned that the Editor-in-chief is away for a while to the salt wells, as a foreign missionary, and that you, a risin' editor, have took upon you the editorship for some time. A serious responsibility, boy, very! I thought I'd give you the benefit of my experience as an editor. Now, while I was out west, I ran a weekly paper on the improved style for about three months, after that I found the subscribers of the paper were running me on the approved style. Once I ventured in a mild way to advise a man to keep his wife at home, and not let her go out gossiping to her neighbors; he did not take kindly to the advice, and the result was I was waylaid one night coming home from church. Again I was trying to add a tone to the morals of the community and I called a mother's attention to the fact that her son, if not better looked after, would be a liar, loafer, rogue, and likely a drunkard, and advised her to use the broomhandle on him; for my goodness in giving this kindly advice I, myself, the editor of a respectable paper, was pommelled with the broomhandle by the infuriated mother. One piece of advice I would give therefore is, to let the women alone; another, don't say anything about anybody; don't try to report a concert in the absence of the boss editor, it's folly, simply foolhardiness. I give you this advice for your own personal safety, as much as for the bosses safety on his return. I hope you will act on it before your office is surrounded by a howling mob. Yours for the best, PHIN CONROY.

To the Editor of the STANDARD.

Sir,—There appeared an article in the Flesherton Advance over the signature of W. G. Glassford, supposed to be an answer to ours in your paper of the 20th May. We did not say General Gordon was not registered; what we said was this, "General Gordon is not nor can he be registered either in the Clydesdale nor the Shire stud books." This statement is strictly correct. Now, for the public's information we will show exactly where he is registered. General Gordon is registered as follows: [A 46] Canadian Clyde Appendix which is kept for the purpose of registering half-breeds and mongrels. Mr. Glassford knows this, and if he is an honest man, why does he not own up and give General Gordon's pedigree just as it is? Mr. Glassford says it is easily known what our motives were in the article we published, meaning no doubt we were envious because he was in the same business as we were. Such is not the case; we envy no man.

Now, to set for ever at rest this pedigree business, we will bet Mr. Glassford $100 to $10 that General Gordon's pedigree is just as we have stated. Now, let Mr. Glassford either put up or shut up.

TRIMBLE & PICKELL.

To the Editor of the Standard.

DEAR SIR,—Allow me to congratulate you on your success as an editor. Along with this I would advise you to not be so hard on the boys, you know you are one of them.

Massey Harvester.

Glenelg Tp., June 2, 1886.
From Daniel McCarty,
Markdale P. O., Co. Gray:
I bought a Massey Harvester from your agent, Mr. Thos. Willisroft, which has given good satisfaction, having cut a very heavy crop of grain in 1885, over 100 acres without a break. It by far exceeded my expectations, having cut very heavy grain, on very rough and stony ground, with soft bottom, where I thought it impossible for a machine to work. Did I require another machine it would not cost me a moment's thought to decide as to what machine to buy. I would advise all my neighbors to buy a Massey Machine when requiring one.

Conservative Convention.

MASS MEETING IN DURHAM.

The Conservative Convention held in Durham on Tuesday last for the purpose of selecting candidates to represent South Grey at the next general election was a grand success. Delegates were present from every part of the riding, and it was said by those of experience that it was the largest Conservative Convention ever held in the riding. Dr. Jamieson, President of the Conservative Association, accepted the chair. A few minutes after 10 the Dr. called the meeting to order. After routine business the following named gentlemen were nominated: Dr. Jamieson, Dr. Christoe, James Edge, Esq., A. H. N. Jenkins, W. J. McFarland, and Thos. Kells. All of these gentlemen declined in favor of Dr. Jamieson except Mr. Jenkins, who was the last to speak. He declined to be governed by rules of Convention, consequently a standing and unanimous vote was given in favor of Dr. Jamieson.

Hon. Thos. White then addressed the Convention in a short speech, full of wisdom and sound advice. Convention then closed with three cheers for Sir John McDonald, Hon. Thomas White, and the Queen.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a Mass meeting was held in the Agricultural grounds. A large crowd of very intelligent people assembled here to listen to the speeches of Dr. Sproule, M. P., Mr. John Blyth, M. P. P., and Hon. Thos. White who was just finishing and extensive and masterly speech as we left.

When Dr. Sproule, in the course of his speech, announced that the Home Rule bill had been defeated, a tremendous cheer went up from the crowd of very attentive listeners. A banquet was held in the evening at the Middaugh House. Your town appeared to have turned out in full force; conspicuous among those present we noticed, Dr. Sproule, M. P., Messrs. W. J. McFarland, Douglas, Lucas, Ford, Turner, Mathews and Marsin. Com.
