IN THE CHINA SEA.

Twenty years 3go, piracy was more common in China seas than now, and every yessel leaving Hong-kong with opium as a part of her cargo-a fact duly intimated to the pirates on the coast, previous to the ship's sailing, by their agents at that port-ran a very good chance of being boarded by ptrates within forty-eight hours of leaving harbor. In the case of such an attack, if the chests were handed over to the pirates, or they were allowed to help themselves to them unresisted, they would generally depart peaceably, or with perhaps merely a playful attempt to set the ship on fire. But in the event of any endeavor on the part of the poor captain to defend his ship and cargo, in most cases sanguinary scenes were enacted, and whole crews massacred, and ships scuttled or burnt.

Some five-and-twenty years ago, the writer, who had previously been chief-officer of an opium-receiving ship at Hong-kong, had subsequently joined the English government service as chief warder of the convict prison on the island, and in that capacity had seen a good deal of the seamy side of the Chinese character; the comparatively lenient punishments of Fanqui (barbarian or European) criminal law, as in force in a British colony, attracting the scum of the Chinese population of the mainland of Kwangtung, making the island of Hongkong a perfect Alsatia for Chinese thieves, pirates, and criminals of every description, who found the diet and treatment of an English convict prison a heavenly contrast to the drastic and Draconic remedies applied by the Chinese mandarins to the disease of criminality, the number and nature of their punishments exhausting human ingenuity for refinement and excess of torture, even for trivial offences.

Among the prisoners in the Hong-kong convict jail, there was an English able seaman named Kelly, who had been convicted of mutiny and murder of the captain on board an English ship. The captain, it the crew, was a great tyrant, and bullied and half-starved his men; and this fact being considered as somewhat extenuating his crime-

Kelly having not actually been the committer of the crime, but accessory before the fact, he keeping watch at the cabin door while his comrade drew a harpoon through the captain while lying asleep in his bunk— Kelly himself was respited when the rope was round his neck and he was on the scaffold, the extreme sentence of the law being carried out in the case of his guiltier comrade. Kelly's punishment was remitted, therefore, to penal servitude for life, and in this way he came under the writer's notice as one of the English convicts of Victoria Jail, Hong-kong.

This fearful experience seemed to have tamed down Kelly into a very quiet, willing, and useful prisoner, and he was accordingly well treated by the prison staff, and was placed, under an armed guard, in a small way of authority over a gang of Chinese prisoners, working on the roads, receiving the privilege of smoking tobacco, and earning a fair number of good-conduct marks towards the remission of a portion of his life-sentence. By his daily contact with Chinese, and being a quick fellow, he soon picked up the Cantonese dialect, and proved useful to the warders as an interpreter. These particulars of Kelly's history are important, as we shall meet him further on in this true narrative of events, taking an important part in its principal scene.

Having been ailing for some time, the duties of my post being very arduous, I procured three months' leave, which I proposed to spend in a trip to the north of China by sea. To the end, I was therefore looking out for a vessel to procure a passage to one of the northern treaty ports, and strolling down the Queen's Road, I came across the shroff or cashier of a Chinese friend of mine, a large merchant on the Praya or seafront, whom I had been able to do several kindnesses to, in the shape of chartering suitable vessels for conveyance of pilongs [pirates] if you can, and get back his goods to the north, in return being a welcome guest to his house, and receiving the present of many valuable Chinese and Japanese curios. Tripping gingerly along a dandy English silk umbrella over his by Akow for my and the captain's benefit. head, the shroff, who was quite a Chinese to see you; he wants to charter a vessel of Tien-tsin; load immediately.

"All right, Cupid," I replied. (Cupid

sage to Tien-tain and back.

sailor, and proving it, and, as I afterwards | skylime. found, a plucky fellow to boot in our tussle of grog with him and the mate.

poop awning refreshing ourse ves.

"No," said the captain, who spoke English fluently; "he did not. I shall be sorry shot before his wife's eyes ?"

my owners and charterer."

and you seem to have a fine crew I relower rigging.

"I have," said Captain Hermann, "a first rate crew. Many of them have been with me in different ships for years. There are eighteen of them able seamen, two ordinary seamen, four stout apprentices, two mates; and a boatswain and myself make twenty-eight all told. I have that twelvepounder carronade there, two dozen muskets and cutlasses; plenty of ammunition grape, round shot, and canister for the caraonade; and a revolver each for myself and two officers. You see, my owners fitted our magazine for the China Sea."

"And I have a short Enfield and two hundred rounds, and a Lefaucheux revolver with same amount of ammunition; and three hundred hard Mexican dollars in my cash-box, which latter I intend to take to Tien-tsin with me ,if messieenrs our friends the long-tails don't get the better of us. we can carry a good working breeze up to but if we get becalmed, which I am Job'scomforter enough to say is very probable at ceive an uninvited visit of an unpleasant and worst feature of piratical attacks."

which, slung with small cords or lanyards, short and were badly aimed. the pirates carry at the mastheads of their attacting, they throw them on to the deck; the pots break, and a suffocating sulphurous liquid and vapour break forth, burning into the flesh if touching it, and suffocating all near it. After demoralising the crew of the vessel attacked by this contrivance, they board with spears and short swords, from the deck, but only slightly wounded it, and endeavour to complete their work.

only thing they had to ask.

on this point, I called my sampan and went ashore.

Stepping from the boat on landing, I met Mr. Farquar, the governor of the prison, and my immediate superior there. "Here's a case, M-," said the governor "Kelly has escaped from the chain gang in Wynd ham Road, wrenched the musket from the sepoy guard's hands, shot him, and disabled the warder with a heavy blowfrom the butt, ran off, and is supposed to be in hiding somewhere on the island."

"He speaks Chinese so well, and is such a clever fellow," I replied, "that I shouldn't be at all surprised if he isn't somewhere in Taipingshan" (a low quarter of the town). "among some of his Chinese friends, old convicts, disguised as a Chinaman; if, indeed, he isn't already away in one of the Chinese passenger boats, to land somewhere among the islands and join a pirate lorcha. I expect we shall hear something more of Mr. Kelly's exploits before long. He has been a naval-reserve man, and can handle big guns, and is likely to prove useful to some Macao pirate firm.'

"I wish Macao was blown out of the water," said Mr. Farquhar. "It is a den of pirates and men-stealers, and costs this government thousands yearly in dealing with the criminals it manufactures and encourages | more would take his place. -Well! so you have got a ship," continued he, when I had mentioned my having secured a passage. "I wish you luck and recovery of your health. Keep clear of the

A few days afterwards the Etienne was loaded and ready for sea, with six chests of Benares opium in the after-cabin; some with his snow-white jacket, full pantaloons, crates of fowls and ducks, sundry potted and handsome silk-embroidered pacer-soled meats, and three casks of English bottled shoes, with a palm-leaf fan in one hand, and beer; and sent on board very thoughtfully

With a fine leading wind, with royal and exquisite in his way, greeted me: "Ay yah, all plain sailset, as the Etienne passed Green taiping (gentleman), I chin-chin you. My Island on her northward voyage, Captain piecee master wantshee look see you too Hermann, rubbing his hands, said gleefully muchee; he wantshee one piecee number one to me: "It will puzzle any iorcha to catch opium. ship six thousand piculs, go Tien-tsin side; her if she keeps this wind .- Heave the log, chop-chop." (In English): "Oh, good- Mr. Schmidt" (to the chief-mate, who was morning, sir. My master would much like standing by), "and see what she is doing."

" Nine and a half, sir," said the mate, six thousand piculs" (a picul is one hundred when the glass had run out and he stopped and thirty-three pounds) "capacity to go to the line. "She is in capital trim, just four inches by the stern, and a lively cargo."

"The breeze held steadily all that day, was a nickname given the dandy cashier by during the night, and the forepart of one of the English captains frequently his the next; but shortly after mid-day master's hong or warehouse). "We will the wind gradually dropped, and at five take a chair (palanquin), and see him at | p. m., we were nearly becalmed, with topmast and topgallant studding-sails and We engaged a bamboo chair; and I soon everything set that would draw, stealing completed the business to Akow's (the mer- along about a mile an hour only, with the chant's) satisfaction, by chartering for him dreaded Mirs Bay on our beam, distant a Hamburg barque called the Etienne at a about a mile. I had a very powerful pair reasonable figure; and in return, he arrang- of marine glasses on board with me, and I ed with the captain to give me a free pas- stood on the poop looking at some suspicious craft drawn up on the beach, with some The Captain I found a hearty, good-tem- dark circular objects at their mastheads, pered Hamburger, looking a thorough showing out clear under the bright evening

"They may be only trading craft," I said with the pirates later on. I went on board to the captain, "as they all carry guns and with him to see my berth and have a glass stinkpots for their own protection against pirates; and if what is alleged is true, when "Did Akow tell you that he had six trade is dull and freights low, they turn chests of opium for you to take ?" I asked pirates themselves on occasion, displaying a the skipper, when we were stated under the versatity and power of adaptation to circumstances peculiarly Chinese."

Whilst I had been conversing with the captain, the wind had fallen entirely, and of I have to take it. You remember only the Etienne lay "like a painted ship on a last month the attack on the Fiery Cross in painted ocean," lifting lazily to a slight the Lyee Moon Pass, and the poor captain swell, her sails slatting against the moon captain swell, her sails slatting against the moon captain swell, her sails slatting against the moon captain swell her sails slatting against the moon captain states against the Lyee Moon Pass, and the poor captain swell, her sails slatting against the masts, lorchas, and sending a party ashore, burnt the young Dolgorouki in succession to the with the slow pitching of the vessel.

either, worse luck; but that lieutenant in ed to the shore, where some vessels were Kelly's wound proved fatal to him, when he splendid character and attainments, who 000. the Raccoon is a splendid fellow, and has lying, "there is no mistake this time; we was on his trial for the several crimes of would at once give Russia a liberal constitudone a lot to thin them out. In fact, the are in for it. That black patch you see be- murder, prison-breaking, and piracy, he tional government. In the eyes of the peo-Jews in the Queen's Road have been pretty tween the craft and the huts up there connear cleared out of watches, the Roccoon's sists of about a hundred Chinamen coming.

The contract of about a hundred Chinamen coming of a tempton of a te near cleared out of watches, the Raccoon's men have had so much head-money to spend down to the beach. I can see what looks ashore.—But, captain," I continued, "the like spears and gingals in their hands, and ashore.—But, captain," I continued, "the like spears and gingals in their hands, and owners of the optum on beard the Etienne, having been great princes before the Romdeputation was appointed to proceed to the question is simply this: if we are attacked, parties of two are carrying long sweeps. and a substantial present from the underis it to be fight, or give them the opium?" They are going to sweep out to us, and we writers. "Fight! The insurance does not cover shall have all three of those vessels after us.

It is always wise to know one's mind; I hope one of the gunboats is not beyond lection of his Adventure in the China the hearing of our carronade. You had Sea. plied, glancing at the men rattling down the better lead it with a double charge of powder and a heavy wad and fire it. This was accordingly done, and the lou report rang out over the still water. The captain, his mates, and myself now consulted together a plan of defence, whilst the men were getting up the ammunition for the carronade and small arms, buckling der you do not import some of them into on their cutlasses, and reloading the gun England. Let me see—there's the road to with grape-shot. It was decided that the love, strewed with roses; to matrimony, carronade should be used directly the through nettles; to honour, through the vessels came within range; and that, when camp; to prison, through the law; and to nearly alongside, all hands should take to the undertaker's, through physic." "Have the fore, main, and mizzen tops, told off in you any road to preferment?" asked the divisions to each top-the second mate at Englishman. "Yes, faith, we have; but the tore, the chief at the main, and the that is the dirtiest road in the kingdom." captain and myself in the mizzen, with the crew divided equally among the three tops.

I then got up from the after-hold th three casks of bottled beer sent on board by Akow, and started the beer from the bottles into the wash-deck tub, and smashing up the bottles, laid the broken glass in a large and through Mirs Bay, I think none of heap ready for a certain use described later their craft are fast enough to overhaul you; on. The men were then ordered to put on their long sea-boots.

By this time the pirates had not been this time of year, we shall very likely re- idle, and were perceived coming out to us with three lorchas, using their long sweeps somewhat exciting character. It is the or oars, and velling so loudly we could hear stinkpots, as they are called, which are the them though half a mile off at least. Their next move was to let drive three shots at us Stinkpots are round earthenware pots from their broadside guns, evidently fired with a lid, filled with a sort of Greek-fire, with very bad powder, as they fell very

The crew of the Etinne were ranged along craft. When longside the vessel they are the port bulwarks, that to which the pirates were approaching, and instructed to divide themselves, and half to man the starboard side at word of command.

shot struck the mainmast about twelve feet the shot diverging, passing over to leeward. high when he was hanging around." By this time it was five o'clock, the usual | When at about a hundred yards distant, hour for the crew's supper ; and the captain | we fired our carronade with grape at the took the opportunity of mutering his men, foremost pirate; and the effect was to make and acquainting them with the fact of its | the splinters fly from their bulwarks, and being very probable that having opium on make very apparent gaps in the crowd of appeared, from the evidence of the loyal of board, the ship might be attacked on her Chinamen who literally thronged the decks. voyage, and asking them if they intended Asthey approached nearer, one of her constanding by him and his officers in such sorts pulled out from under her stern, so as case. The men, through their spokesman to cross our bows and board us simultanthe boatswain, said they of course would, eously on both sides. Being now within and would like to have a brush with the musket-range, the crew were ordered to pirates; but as regards those of the crew commence firing, which they did with good who were married, if any of them were effect, my short Enfield doing considerable killed, they hoped the owner would remem- execution in picking off men who were at ber their wives and families. This was the the long tiller steering the first lorcha. The first lorcha being now close alongside, the The captain having fully satisfied them carronade was fired slap into her bows, the broken glass was strewed over the Etienne's them; so that Robinson could never get at vacant portfolio. decks, and "All hands aloft!" was the order | them from the valleys; but when he came given. The deck was therefore left vacant; and the pirates perceiving we were all aloft, quite by surprise." ran alongside without using their stinkpots, thinking they had an easy prey.

> Etienne's, and in their fury and excitement, found in some metaphors. clean on to the broken glass with their bare and overpowering our party in the mizzentop by numbers, the same stratagem evidently taking place at the fore and main. As the pirates came crowding up the retlines, they were picked off by revolver and musket, and fell like over-ripe fruit from a tree; but, to my dismay, we were now attacked by another crowd coming up the starboard rigging from the second lorcha. They seemed simply insensible to fear, and as one after another was shot down, two or

In spite of all our efforts to prevent them, the leader with two more got into the mizzen-top, and a hand-to-hand fight-cutlass versus China sword-took place. With my revolver in my left and cutlass in the right hand, I parried a cut at my head from the pirate leader, when, suddenly starting back, so that the grasp of his left hand on the rig. to pay their board." ging seemed almost gone, and he was in danger of falling backward, he exclaimed in is graceful as a water-lily, while her breath machinery and had his left leg so crushe good English : "Good heavens, is it you, is like an armful of clover." An American that it had to be amputated at the thirt Mr. M——?"

in Chinese dress.

said gaspingly, being apparently wounded in the throat; "but the men must have the Truly, some American poets go in for vou, Kelly !" I cried.

on to the topmast backstay, and slid like self. lightning to the deck, and disappeared down | A fanatical Sabbatarian writes: "The the cabin skylight, evidently to search for Sunday newspaper is a crayfish in the dikes up!" I said hurriedly to the Captain, as we | theatres, the saloon, the gambling dens, &c., were loading and firing our revolvers. "This are roaring for exit." Another newspaper won't last long."

a heavy piece of ordnance fired at a distance arms about like a black funeral pall, until came booming over the water; and shortly Sam Jones got on the roof and doused them after, the peculiar sound which a high-pres- out with a pail of water. sure steamer makes when under steam was faintly heard, and round the point of land astern, steaming at full speed, came Her Majesty's gunboat Raccoon, with her men at quarters, and her sixty-eight pounder trained and manned. The pirates on this scrambled back into their craft, cast off the lashings, and pulled vigorously for the shore. As the Raccoon came under our stern in chase of them, she fired her long gun at one of the lorchas, smashing her stern into smithereens; and her commander hailed us: " Many of you killed or hurt?"

"No !" I hailed back : "none seriously."

plied he, and steamed on after the lorchas. est son of Alexander II. by his morganatic the pledging of sugar chiefly of the Corden their huts. One lorcha was set fire to, the Czarinstead of the present Czarevitch, the last the storekeeper and it is stated that he other two being toward to The Czarinstead of the present Czarevitch, the last the storekeeper and it is stated that he other two being toward to the care the care that the storekeeper and it is stated that he other two being toward to the care that the care tha "Too well, I do, captain; and the gunboats haven't got the lorchs yet that did it, either, worse luck; but that lieutenant in ed to the shore, where some vessels were

Some three months afterwards, the writer Russian.

risk by pirates, and I must do my duty to They will attack us in their usual way—on returned to his duties at Hong-kong, with both sides, and with one wessel in reserve. his health re-watablished, and a vivid recol-

AMUSING METAPHORS

An Englishman once asked a son of Erin if the roads in Ireland were good. Pat replied : "Yes ; they are so fine that I won-

The answer of Apollonius to Vespasian is not without humour and instruction. Vespasian asked him : "What caused Nero's overthrow !" He answered : " Nero could touch and tune the harp well; but in government, sometimes he used to wind the pins too high, sometimes to let them down too low." And certain it is that nothing de- without opposition member for the No stroys authority so much as the unequal and east division of Cork, made vacant by untimely interchange of power pressed too resignation of Mr. Edmund Leamy. far and relaxed too much.

George Stephenson was once asked by a scientific lady what he considered the most powerful force in nature. "Oh," said he in felt of a general strike at Cape Breton a gallant spirit, "I will soon answer that question: it is the eye of the woman for the man who loves her; for if a woman look found in a girl's trunk in the Albion R. with affection on a young man, and he in Toronto, resulted in a verdict of re should go to the uttermost ends of the earth, murder against Fanny Smith, who is the recollection of that look will bring him arrest. back. There is no other force in nature that could do that."

Equally ready with a similitude was the period of the British occupation of E-As the pirates approached, they fired negro who, when giving evidence in court, again with better luck, as a twelve-pounder | was asked about the honesty of a neighbour. | five years. "I know nothing against him," was the reply; "but if I was a chicken, I would roost

> A thoughtful writer describes one-eyed travellers, who see a great deal of some particular class of objects and are blind to all others, and adds : "The Irish jaunting car, ber yard, and several buildings on St. la in which the passengers sit back to back, is inique street, Quebec, were destroyed a sort of type of what befalls many tourists fire on Saturday; loss $125,000. Verylin in Ireland. Each sees a great deal, and reports faithfully what he has seen on one side of the road, and the other on the other. One will have seen all that is green, and the other, all that is orange."

> "A cunning knave can form no notion of | ting of a canoe. a nobler nature," says the same writer. "He is like the goats on Robinson Crusoe's shortly resign from the Quebec Cabinet, a island, which saw clearly everything below that Mr. Hall, the Conservative members them, but very imperfectly what was above | Montreal West, will be asked to take t upon them from the hilltop, he took them

Ridicule, says a German critic, is like a of the iron mines along the Kingston blow with the fist; wit, like the prick of a Pembroke railway. Now the scheme of the broken bottles needle; irony, like the sting of a thorn; proved its utility. The Chinamen jumped and humour, the plaster which heals all from their vessel's bulwarks on to the these wounds. All of these qualities may be

Man is said to be an animal that has a feet, to stagger about with howls of anguish. mania for getting up societies and making The man in command of the lorcha had himself president If the presidency has been driving his men by voice and hand- been already claimed, he contents himself the latter with a spear in it—to board us, with the position of treasurer. In the cynas they seemed to hold back, after so many | ical old bachelor's opinion, ideas are like of them had gone down under our musket- beards-men only get them when they are fire; and he now headed a party who were grown up, and women never have any. It evidently bent upon coming up the rigging | was probably another old bachelor who said: " Nature shudders when she sees a woman throw a stone; but when a woman attempts to split wood, nature covers her head and retires to a dark and mouldering cave in temporary despair." A spinster says old bachelors are frozen-out old gardeners in the flower-bed of love.

> To say that a coquette is a rosebush from which each young beau plucks a leaf, and the thorns are left for the husband, is not very complimentary. Compliments are the coin that people pay a man to his face; sarcasm, what they pay him out with behind his back.

A farmer said : "One thing I don't like about city folks—they be either so stuck up | will not support the members for the in aid sewers, a that yer can't reach 'em with a haystack week and trouble is feared. The Anarchist reathe the air pole, or so blamed friendly that they forget | are ready to take advantage of the situation

A rural poet said of his lady-love: "She pump house, Ottawa, was caught in the poet wrote a eulogy of Washington, whose He remained in the grip of the cog wheel At a flash I recognized him; it was Kelly glorious life should compose a volume as for an hour and a half before the murderon Alps immortal, spotless as its snows. The machinery could be raised sufficiently to the "I will save your life, sir, if I can," he stars should be its type, its press the age, lease him. the earth its binding, and the sky its page. marvels of metaphor.

backstay, or, as true as death, I'll shoot hunch-back making a bow. When a man to accept a reduction of six cents per ton values himself overmuch, they compare him wide working places and thirteen cents Calling in Chinese to his men, he sprang to a rat falling into a scale and weighing it narrow ones. Work in all mines will of misrule, a crayfish that undermines the "I wish one of the gunboats would come banks, behind which the racecourse, the described a fire by saying that the red flames I had hardly said this, when the sound of danced in the heavens, and flung their fiery > jungle to a forest of fishhooks relieved by an Sound; also the bodies, canoes, spear occasional patch of penknives.

haggard smokes, "as if you had got out of wrecked. All on board perished. your grave to light your cigar, and couldn't find your way back again.

A Russian Revolutionary Conspiracy

of a revolutionary conspiracy widespread among the aristocracy of Russia, having for its object the removal of Czar Alexander III. And the crowning in his stead of the eldest on after the lorchas.

The Raccoon succeeded in capturing the wife, the Princess Dolgorouki. Failing in that the efforts would be centred on putting that the efforts would be centred on putting the carried on at Havana for some time past carried on at Havana for some time pas a Holstein-Gottorp, far more German than resolutions adopted by the meeting for the

HOME AND GENERAL IED

Lieut Governor Dewdney has he to Regina after a short visit to Wind The first steamship of the Canadia fic line has left Hong Kong for h Columbia.

Owing to grave charges alleged a the Montreal city police patrol, the has been disbanded.

Fire the other morning in St. Rock suburb of Quebec city, destroyed po to the value of $70,000.

Ten thousand Belgian coal miners strike, and as a disturbance is feared troops are ready for an emergency. By the burning of the Royal Rob Boissevan, Man., Duncan G. McBa prominent grain merchant of Winnipe. burned to death.

Intelligence has been received in 0s. that the Batoche half-breeds have reference loan of seed grain and will not cole their land this year. Mr. William O'Brien has been ele

The miners at the Reserve mine,

Sydney, C. B., are out on strike for as crease of three cents per ton, and fean. The inquest on the body of an is

In the new convention between the Po and Great Britain it is agreed that shall be not less than two and not more

Mr. McNeil has given notice of a bill amend the Civil Service Act, so that protion shall not depend upon passing and amination, but upon technical adaptabili for the service.

O. Rochette's tannery W. J. Brown's land it seems ver

David Lussier and Jos. Lambert, two riers of provisions to the lumber came Messrs. Hall, were drowned in the Riv Chaudiere a day or two ago by the up

It is rumoured that Mr. McShane r A company with a capital of five mills dollars has been organized in Kingston New York capitalists for the development The United States consul at Kingstonh bunter many forwarded a letter to Washington pointing out the injurious effect of the Inter-Su Commerce bill upon the trade of the Units bisoning the s States with the Dominion. The English mint is hard at work on the new coinage to be issued on June 22.

very fine profile of anelderly queen, model ed by Mr. Boehm, will be used, with w ing crowns for the several coins. Patrick Glynn, a C. P. R. yardsman, W Why should run over by a freight train while shunting arn-yard and both of his legs were cut off. He was take Vould it injure to the hospital, were he died. Speaking editorially of the project commercial union between Canada and United States, the New York Sun says the nothing short of a political union underth

United States constitution is the manife destiny of Canada and the only means which perfect free trade can be secured. Between fifty thousand and sixty that misances, or w sand men are out of work at Chicago, so buntry as the result of the building trades trouble. In combined funds of all the unions involved the with its cle

Michael Doyle, an oiler at the waterwork

The strike of Pictou, N. S., coal mines which began at the beginning of the yes and has been mutually disastrous, has find "Never! Stand back! Shin down the The Chinese call overdoing a thing, a ly ended in a compromise, the men agreent resumed to-day.

The old toll bridge spanning the Rive Avon between Windsor and Falmouth, A S., was burned on Sunday night. This was the last toll bridge in the province. It was 820 feet long and was built in 1836. local Government made it free last year and were preparing to rebuild it. The fire believed to be incendiary.

The sealing schooner "Favorite" arrive The sealing schooner "Favorite" armie at New Westminster, B. C., on Saturday bundantly.

and reports that the hull of the steams agonistic. W Gordon Cumming likened an African "Stephen" was washed ashore at Clazuquo washed up below Cape Flattery, supposed "You look," said an Irishman to a pale to be of the schooner "Active," long though

A child named Herny Sims, eight year old, was drowned at the foot of the cans locks, Ottawa, Friday afternoon, having company with two others fallen in while playing on the edge of the water. Care taker Allston, of the Rowing club's bost For some time there have been rumours house, which is near by, saved the two, but did not hear that there was a third until to

The swindle was conducted in Havana of

At a conference of citizens in Montreal to discuss the question of protection from floods better protection of the city.

it in. I know ar presty furt idren. A for your Crosss will thos pale t invistment h air and su The germs of gantly-furnis nish away bei Your plants ard you sayin n were going use your plan on in the sou ev were pale,

an two dies

the wee h usted to your althy bloom hat are you go would suggest arsery, in add at now serves Children ins a golden trea by creep acro that had a utters, and hildren love right, and they There is ano ed to bring in ine of smiles. oomy day, and nd inanimate, w hours later passed, and inlight. Invo el happier.

There is a litt

" Mamma's

d out of spirit at if mamma is ren are almost would hav ep it bright hey will work The city dwe om his face, a s eyes, and lo ous pure air o a rural dis holesome than nd fresh breeze owers ; but at ality is often

oes not requir

ountry district

reat field thic

scomposed ma

ext we see a s cold frames,

it of a large he

, green man barn-yards, swell the vol tes the nostri cars at the Queen's wharf, Toronto, a ith some chear fertilizer? W llus! and wh layer of dirt ctive materia welling and t nce of access a cold frame Our country bout cleaning ving breezes, is already

iseases of the

elongs, are my

What makes or ceiling? ( rill, it persiste loes it mean as the leprosy doses could lo ondemn it to way out of th as one of the ated by the pi doses, the Jev er to sacrifice as is of holdy houses. t once, and r eak in the r ampness from

he walls, and

itions for the

well-establis

A neglected ne of the vil rom a sanita Notwithstandi oo evident to nany of thes oen and smel and even with and villages !

nonstrated th at this season and not fit for able, and ev-ach fowls 1