J. B. Watson, who will lecture in Mark-dale on the 4th October.

"Mr Watson's lecture on the allurements and proper amusements of young men is worth a hundred dollars to any young man."—Toronto Globe.

"Present society has furnished him with materials; a patient and accurate observation has gathered them; feeling, taste and humor have combined them, and told in an unaffected simplicity which lends a double enchantment to all he says."—Chicago Tribune.

"The man who foists no 'clap trap' upon his audience, but who makes such authors as Dickens, Burns, Lover, Thackeray, Macaulay, Emerson and Shakespeare live again; who sharpens the appetite for the best literature, demerits the respect of all people of culture."—Montreal Herald.

"Watson is a genius, peerless and inimitable in the exposition of all shams. The world wants more like
