Pneumonia I
SCIENTIFIC AND ACCURATE DESCRIPTION
OF THIS DREADED BLOOD DISORDER.

It is generally supposed that pneumonia is due to the accidental penetration of specific microbes into the system, but the observations of M. Jaccoud show that the disease really develops from the development, under favorable conditions, of microbic germs permanently present in the system. The chief condition of such development is a sudden chill, which explains the frequent coincidence of lung affections with abrupt changes of temperature.

Scientific American (American) author ascribes pneumonia to an excess of ozone being produced by passage of electricity in the air.

A distinguished American physician in the New York Tribune that the presence of pneumonia indicates the presence of a uric acid condition of the blood—sudden chills always being characteristic effects of too much acid, of this sort and another.

The disease, as M. Jaccoud observes, is undoubtedly in the blood, but if in the form of permanent microbes or germs, these germs must be developed in the uric acid condition of the blood. They cannot presumably exist in the waste matter of the system, which the kidneys, through evident though unsuspected impairment, have not been able to filter from the blood—the filter being clogged and stopped up in many of the little hair like tubes.

The Tribune's authority says that pneumonia is a secondary disorder, the disease and cold being simply the germs which develop the disease, already dormant in the system, because the kidneys have been but partially performing their duty. In short, pneumonia is an early indication of a bright's disease condition. This impaired condition may exist for years without the least suspecting it, because no pain will be felt in the kidneys or their vicinity, and often it can be detected only by chemical and microscopical examinations. Nearly 150 of the 740 deaths in New York City the first week of a recent March, and in six weeks 781 deaths, were caused by pneumonia.

If one has occasional chills and fever, tendency to colds in the throat and rheumatic and neuralgic pains, extreme tired feelings, short breath and hectic stiches in the side, loss of appetite, headache nervous unrest—fading sensations or scant and discolored fluids, heart flutterings, sour stomach, distressed look, puffy eye sacs, and dry skin, loss of strength and vitality, pneumonia is likely to strike him down any day, and his recovery will be doubtful.

These indications may not appear together, they may come, disappear and reappear, for years, the person not realizing that they are nature's warnings of coming calamity.

The disease is very quick-acting and the accompanying kidney disorder is very far advanced, recovery is impossible for the kidneys give out entirely, and the patient is literally suffocated by water.

The only safeguard against pneumonia is to maintain a vigorous condition of the system and thus prevent attacks, or using whatever will radically and effectually restore full vitality to the kidneys, and for this there is nothing equal to Warner's safe cure. If the kidneys are not sound pneumonia cannot be prevented. This remedy is known to millions, used, probably by hundreds of thousands all over the globe, and commended as a standard specific wherever known and used. It does not pretend to cure an attack of pneumonia, but it does remove the cause and prevent that disease it taken in.

When a physician says his patient has either bright's disease or pneumonia, he confesses his inability to cure, and in a measure he considers his responsibility ended. In many instances, indeed, persons are reported as dying of pneumonia, heart disease, apoplexy and convulsions, when the real cause of death, and so known by the physicians, is this kidney consumption. Thousands of people die without knowing it, and perish because their physicians will not tell them the facts.

The same destiny awaits every one who will not exercise his judgement in such a matter and be true to himself, his family and to society.

Barnum's Building Burned.
THE MENAGERIE OF THE GREATEST SHOW
ON EARTH DESTROYED—LOSS, $700,000.

Boston, Nov. 20.—A special to the Globe from Bridgeport, Conn., says that the main building of Barnum & Bailey's greatest show on earth was entirely destroyed by fire this morning. About 10:30 o'clock an alarm was sounded, quickly followed by a general alarm and thousands of persons were attracted to the spot. In less than 30 minutes the big building, which was 600 x 200 feet and two stories in height, was entirely consumed. The first intimation of the fire was given by the roaring of the lions and tigers which seemed to realize the impending danger. Next the elephants struggled in their chains, but in an incredible short time the flames swept from one end of the huge structure to the other. There was six watchmen employed on the premises, but they were helpless to check the flames. One of the men was in the horse building when his lantern exploded, igniting the hay and straw. Five of the watchmen have reported, but the sixth is missing, and it is believed he was cremated. The upper portion of the building was filled with hay and all the paraphernalia of the great show. Before the first alarm ceased sounding the whole building was enveloped in fire and no one dared to approach the building, being fearful of the crash and the animals. Three elephants were burned up and 86 broke from their fastenings and dashed through the side of the burning building. Their roars and trumpeting and sounds of torments were terrific. Six elephants and a large African hippopotamus rushed about the streets presenting a sickening appearance. Their sides were burned and great pieces of flesh a foot square fell off. Thirty elephants and one large lion made their escape and having started off across the country towards Fairfield and Eston. Great alarm was seized many of the residents in the west end they have taken refuge in their houses. In the horse room were all the ring animals, trained stallions, ponies, etc. There were all burned in the upper rooms were the tents, poles etc., for the entire show, and these were destroyed. In the east room were the birds, monkeys, three rhinoceros, hyenas tigers, lions and all the menagerie, which fell a prey to the flames. So rapid did the flames leap across the main building that the firemen made no attempt to save it, but turned their steam upon the chariot building and cart shed, which they succeeded in saving. The total loss is estimated at $700,000, upon which there was but $100,000 insurance.
