

EAST GENT RECEPTION.

On Monday and Tuesday last the weather was gorgeous and the in that respect, favorable for the show, yet for the same reason many were hindered from attending as the harvest was not quite wound up, the previous week having been wet, farmer remained at home to house the outstanding grain; there was therefore a very perceptible falling off in almost all lines of the exhibition, thus dampening the reporter's zeal in such a manner as to shorten his report and paralyze his best efforts. The presence of a number of fakirs was an objectionable feature, and they seemed to do a thriving business. The exhibit of cattle was better than usual, while the judging in this line as indeed in all others, gave general satisfaction.

Through the kindness of the obliging secretary, Mr. Damude, we are enabled to give the list of successful competitors, as follows:
