Glenelg Fall Show.

The weather for the fair was simply gorgeous and the attendance, judging from the gate receipts, was fully double that of any former year. Owing doubtless to the second day of East Grey Fair being same day as Markdale's first, the exhibit was meagre in the Hall, as a great portion of what was shown at Flesherton would otherwise have been exhibited at Markdale as well. We trust this clashing with be guarded against in future. The quality, however, of the exhibit was very creditable. The ponitry singw was a grand success.

The cabilit was a superior one in point of excellence as well as number. There was a grand turn-out of horses and the improvement still goes on from year to year in this class. The speeding course was in excellent con dition, making it a pleasure both for drivers and spectators.

In cattle the improvement is ever more apparent than in horses. The exhibit in this class was indeed a credit to the exhibitors and shows to a demonstration the great interest which is being taken in this class of farming. Sheep and Pigs were also well represented and many fine specimens

The dog race was perhaps the greatest macity. There were but two entries, viz., Charlie Potts and Wilfred Halbert, the former taking 1st prize. Prof. McNiven, Highland Piper, was liberal with his music, while A. Carnahan danced an endless variety of steps the throng apparently enjoying both, but the Highland men were delighted beyond measure with what to them recalled pleasant memories of the "land o' cakes." Following is the prize list: CLASS 1- Horses (Heavy Draught.) Team, Wm Sargeant, Wesley Kells. Mare with foal, James Bradey. Two year old celt, Wm Bradey, Edwin Clarke. Yearling Colt, John Wright,

Blanketing Horses.

A great improvement has been made of late years in having blankets cut to fit properly. There is still room for another improvement, in order to have them fit more closely to the body and prevent them from becoming displaced hanging off the quarters and getting torn. Our experience is that a couple of flank straps, buckled underneath the belly, is a great assistance to the surcingle in keeping the blanket in its place, and is an effectual preyention of tearing from the blankets getting under the hind feet. Horses that stand in the stable a great deal are apt to get sore on the back, from the constant pressure of a tightly buckled surcingle. This can be satisfactorily and effectually prevented, by using straps under the chest buckled in the same way as the flank straps. In fact we think that surcingles can be en tirely dispensed with, if this much cheaper and equally satisfactory substitute be used.

Care should always be exercised in having blankets thoroughly dry, as a damp one is worse than useless; and they should be brushed, shaken, and beaten occasionally in order to keep

The chief loss of the heat of the body is from radiation from its surface. This waste can be lessoned and controlled very largely by judicious blanketing.

The unreasonable excuse for scanty blanketing is often made, that if a horse is well clothed in the stable he Potato assortment, D Stinson, J Brodie. | shivers on first coming into cold air. as he begins to move, and the circulation is aroused, no chilliness is felt. -Dr. Grenside in Canadian Live
