Largest Arsenal In The World.

The dargest arsenal in the world is enclosure 280° acres of land; of woolwich. It was formed about 1720 on the site of a rabbit warren. It has within its enclosure 280° acres of land; of which some 160 acres are covered with buildings. When in full operation it employs 18,000 persons. The amount of ammunition stored is immense, and cannon can be conited out by the hundred. The storehouse has always on hand 20,000 cavalry saddles, with a corresponding amount of shoes, nails, and harness; and all military equipments, whether for land or naval service. The machinery used is some of the best in the country, a great deal of which was made in Manchester. One machine for the manufacture of fixed ammunition has the capacity for turning out 250,000 cartridge moulds liaily. The severel shops and buildings are connected with railways for moving material, and aggregate a great many miles.

In France, the chief arsenals are at Therbourg, Brest, and Toulon; in Germany, at Spandau, Cologne, and Dantzie; in Russias, stSt. Petersburg; in Abbria, at Vients.

upon the bleeding point. This can be done by continuous pressure with the thumb and finger. The pressure should be applied from above downward, and the nose should be grasped close up to the, "bridge," or bogy part. Firm compression should be continued for at least ten or liften minutes, and when it is removed, the nose should not be cleared, as this would remove the clot, and so start the bleeding afresh. "An ingenious courtry doctor keeps a wooden clothespife to use for this purpose, and an emiment physician asserts that in twenty years' practice lie has not found a case which did not readily yield to the employment of this simple means.

The Dangers of Dirt.

An Italian physician has recently been investigating, the lust gathered from the pavement of the barracks. He inoculated fifteen guinea pigs with this dust, all of which died with tetanpavement of Nie barracks. He inoculated fifteen guineal pigs with this dust, all of which died with tettanus, or lockjaw, within a wiek. It is quite possible that house? dust may be the cause of lockjaw, rather than nerve irritation, as has been heretofore supposed. It seems, in fact, probable that this disease is due to infection of the wound with flirt from the ground, floors, or other similiar sources. Apropos of the subject we quote the following paragraph from the Sanitary Inspector:

"This may all be taken as again emphasizing the importance of cleanliness, and of the danger from dirt. Modbri surgery has learned the fateful significance of filth, the dire consequences which may follow a trace of dirt upon the hands, beneath the malls, upon the bandages; and outside the medical ranks; thould be common knowlidge, not only that wounds are to be guarded from any pagsible source of pollution, but that infection comes not always directly from sick to well. The half-washed hands of the nurse

For 12 years Mr. Edward Evaus, formerly employed by Davey & Moore, glass manuactures, London, Eng., suffered from the worst form of rheumatism. He was treated, at infirmaries, but was always discharged as incurable. His legs and hands were swellen to twice their natural size. He could not walk; the pain drove him almost frantic, and his felt as if hot from were passing through his bones. The first application of St. Jacobs Oil relieved him, and continuing its use the swelling left his limbs; in a week he could walk, all pain had vanished and he went to work.
