Jevels in the British Regalia.

Few people have the faintest idea of the value of the jowels contained in the regalia of the British crown. Let us look first at the crown jevels proper. The crown itself is composed of a velvet cap surrounded by silver hoops. The hoops are set with jewels and thon the crown is a jewel-studded ball, surrounded with brilliants in the form of a Maless cross. There are three hundred and eighty three diamonds noted in the description of the crown, besides pearls, sapphires, rubies, ceneralds and many smaller diamonds, the whole valued at five hundred and sixty-two thousand dollars.

"Just a tew tools. Come manay to thiser with. Every man ought to keep a few tools and do his own repairing. Athink I saved us at least $200 last year."

Vatching the clouds that heavy and gray.

Obscured the sunlight's shining;

And said to Bright Eyes at his knee;

"Look yender out in the west and see
The cloud with the sliver lining."

I think when our akies are cold and gray, And we vainly seek to find the way, Somewhere the light is shining. If we brayely resolve to do our part, And bear our griefs with a patient heart, And free from all repining. We shall be led to a higher way.

To a better work than we do to-day.

And find love's sunlight shining;

For trath of spirit and strength of soul

Will make the darkest cloud unrolf.
