Preserving Eggs.

The whole secret of keeping an egg sweet and fresh is to prevent the air from entering its previous shell. If eggs could always be removed from the nests and put up within a few hours after they are laid, they could be made to keep their original sweetness for a surprising length of time. This, however, is only possible on the most limited scale, and those who pack eggs in any quantity must expect to use those of various ages, and to take the risk of putting up some already so permeated with air that no preservative process can check the work of decay within them. Before eggs are packed or put in any preserving compound, they should be carefully tested by placing in strong brine, or by the "candle test," which is familiar to all. The best time to pack eggs is in March, April or May, and again in the months of September, October and November. Formulas of dry packing are now seldom used, and only on the smallest possible scale. The best substance for this purpose is coarsely powdered charcoal; the next best, clean, dry, sweet oats. One of the most common methods of preserving eggs is to soak them in a solution of lime. The advantage of this is, that the lime, by a thin deposit on the service, protects the egg, to a certain degree, from the action of the outside air. This deposit, however, is of limited benefit and, itself, decomposes the egg by percolating through the pores of the shell, and dissolving the albumen, or white rendering it thin and watery.

Eggs which have been kept for a fortnight or more in warm weather, will usually spoil in less than a month after being dipped in lime water. If "strictly fresh" eggs are put in the lime mixture, they may be preserved about ninety days without material change, and can usually be kept through the summer months with only a partial decomposition of the albumen. When the white becomes watery, its specific gravity is lessened, and the heavier yolk settles down upon the shell and by slow degrees the whole egg becomes putrified. If the decomposition of the egg has begun, the use of the lime water will not check it. Other substances are sometimes used with lime to make it more effective, but if we except common salt, none has proven to be of any real use. An excess of salt, however, hastens the decomposition of the white of the egg, and the hardening of the yolk.

The formula for the usual lime compound is twenty pounds of fresh lime and one pound of salt to ten gallons of hot water, the amount needed to cover half a barrel of eggs. The "improved lime process," the invention of a commission merchant of a Western city, is less familiar. It is made by taking, for a barrel of eggs, or one hundred and fifty dozen, forty pounds of fresh, unslaked lime, adding water to the lime to make a paste. This is diluted to a thick liquid, which is poured over the eggs as they are carefully packed in the barrel. Only fresh eggs can be kept in any way.—Montreal Herald.

STAYNER, July 17.—About 12.30 this morning fire broke out in the rear of a block of frame stores on the south side Main street. All the business places between the Cameron house and Sanders' brick block were burned down. The sufferers are: John Petrie, grocery store; W. B. Henderson, harness; C. Newton, photographer; D. Gillespie, groceries; C. Livingstone, implements; A. Swalls, jeweller; Miss Leo Sanderson, dressmaker. The goods were will insured and the stocks were partially removed in a damaged condition. Four large plate glass windows in Stewart's block across the street were destroyed by the heat. Cause of fire unknown.

Obituary.

After an illness extending over several weeks Mr. Adam Halbert, of the 12th line Euphrasia, passed peacefully to his reward on Thursday morning last, July 14, aged 77 years. Deceased was a quiet unassuming man, an industrious prosperous farmer, a kind father, affectionate husband and consistent conscientious member of the Methodist Church. He leaves a widow to mourn her irreparable loss, also a family of three sons, Robert J. of Garyowen, Sydenham; Samuel J. of Markdale and Joseph, who is on the homestead; and two daughters, Mrs. Geo. Turner of Woodford and Mrs. John Williamson of Harkaway, all married and in comfortable, prosperous circumstances. The funeral took place on Friday when the Rev. R. Davey conducted the service in a very impressive manner.

THE NEW YORK CONVENTION.

(From the Dundalk Herald.)

It is quite safe to say that the Eleventh Annual International Convention of Christian Endeavor, held last week in New York, was one of the largest, and most significant religious gatherings ever convened. To attempt to give a report of it in our columns is out of the question. The New York Times gave an excellent report, occupying seventy-three columns of solid nonpareil. Nor is it necessary to attempt a written report, as many of the Societies within the circulation of the Herald will have as detailed a verbal report as can be given in one evening.

Among the speakers were some of the most noted ministers and laymen of the continent, each one of whom it would be a treat to hear. The subject on which they spoke, were of vital importance not only to the organization, but to the world at large, and every address was a gem.

The gathering was a most remarkable one. A fair estimate places the number of delegates at 30,000. The New York railway alone, estimates that its trains carried 60,000, while the total number visiting the city has been placed at 200,000. The Society being interdenominational, inter-urban, inter-state, inter-national and inter-racial, accounts for the wonderful unanimity which characterizes its gatherings. In the convention just closed were representatives from every State in the Union, Mexico, West Indies, Canada (a delegation of 400) Spain, Turkey, India, Alaske, Sandwich Islands, Asia Minor, Liberia, West Africa and other parts. The sight of so many representatives, representing thirty religious denominations, of different nationalities, gathered under one name, with one object in view, is the event of a life time, and can never be forgotten. When the writer reached Niagara Falls, 50 trains from the west had already passed, 84 more were reported behind us, and over 50 were side-tracked, indeed freight traffic was suspended for 36 hours.

What thus binds in bonds of mutual love and confidence this mighty army of christian workers. They take no oath or obligation to be true to each other; they have no secrets; they do not promise to sink denominational differences; on the contrary they promise to be truly loyal to the church of their choice. Yet representatives of thirty religious denominations meet together, bound by a common tie,—that tie the "Christian Endeavor Pledge" of faithfulness in the service of the Master. "For one is your Master even Christ, and all ye are brethern," is their watchword; "For Christ and the Church" or "Look up Lift up," their motto.

THE PLEDGE.

"Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him that I will strive to serve Him. He would like to have me do so, then I will make it the rule of my life to pray and to read the Bible every day, and to support my own church in every way, especially by attending all her Sunday and mid-week services, unless prevented by some reason which I can conscientiously give to my Saviour, and that so far as I know how, throughout my whole life, I will endeavor to lead a christian life. As an active member I promise to be true to all my duties, to be present at and to take some part aside from singing in every Christian Endeavor prayer meeting, unless hindered by some reason which I can conscientiously give to my Lord and Master. If obliged to be absent from the monthly consecration meeting of the Society, I will, if possible, send at least a verse of Scripture to be read in response to my name at the roll call."

The growth of the Society has been phenomenal. Beginning in 1881 in a single church, it has girdled the world with a band of light. The founder Rev. F. E. Clark, then pastor of a Congregational Church at Williston in the State of Maine, only thought of helping the young people of his own church, but the movement has taken hold of the world as no previous movement has done. Here are a few of the latest statistics of its growth:—

YEAR.	SOCIETIES.
1881	2
1882	7
1883	56
1884	561
1885	258
1886	850
1887	3 214
1888	4 879
1889	7 672
1890	11 013
1891	16 264
1892	21 080

Besides these 21,080 Societies, with a membership of 1,370,200, there are a large number doing the work of the organization, but having not yet affiliated are not included, hence 22,000 societies would be a moderate estimate.

The result having been astonishing: in increased membership to the churches in increased activity in Christian work, in development of the spirit of liberality and missionary enterprise, in pulling down the ice wall of sectarian prejudice, and in many other ways, the Society is doing a most wonderful work.

The singing of the Convention was remarkable. The leader was Geo. C. Stebbins, but Ira D. Sankey was there too. Behind them was a choir of 800 voices; before them an audience of from 20,000 to 25,000, singing the grand old favorites in such perfect time that every word was distinguishable, while the volume of song could be heard blocks away. To a lover of music, the singing itself was an event never to be forgotten.

In further issues we may give an account of some of the places of interest in New York City.

A Railway Smashup.

ST. CATHERINES, July 16.—The city was startled about 11 o'clock this morning to learn that a terrible railway accident had occurred at Merritton. Your representative was quickly at the scene and ascertained that the report was only too true. Conductor Boyle's train from Port Colborne, which is timed to cross the boat train for the steamer Empress of India at Merritton, collided with the latter train just north of the Lincoln paper mills, at the point where the track crosses the mill race. Both engines were badly smashed, the cars of the boat train precipitated into the race, and, sadder to relate, three persons were killed and a number of others injured. The scene of the terrible disaster is a fearful one and beggars description. Two cars telescoped are lying in the mill race, another car tore off its trucks is resting from the track on the edge of the telescoped cars. The engines are lying side by side on the edge of the track, and within a few feet of the raceway, rearing right up into the air, is what remains of the mail car, and still another passenger car lies on its side close to the two engines. As soon as the news spread crowds began to swarm around the place, greatly impeding the workmen in their efforts to clear the wreck and look for the two missing bodies. The street cars were crowded by the curious, while the road was lined with rigs and persons walking to the scene of the wreck.

THE DEAD.

By noon three bodies had been recovered in a fearfully mutilated condition. These are:

Sayers Chapman, engineer of Boyle's train.

David Hunt, baggageman on the boat train.

E. H. Vanslyke, of Buffalo, who was on his way to Toronto to wed.

THOSE INJURED.

Those injured are:

Philip H. Grobb, express man on Boyle's train, received a terrible gash over the right eye and was badly shaken up. Dr. Leitch sewed up the wound, and says he will be all right.

A Wolf, a newsboy, was badly injured, and taken to the hospital. He will probably die.

Clark, of London, had his foot smashed, and it is feared it will have to be amputated.

W. Jackson, of Rochdale, Eng., badly shaken up and scalp wounded.

W. Spratt, of Port Colborne, foot badly crushed; since amputated. His brother was slightly injured.

Fireman Fowler, of Niagara Falls, shaken up rather badly and cut.

Operator Plemister, of Niagara Falls, who works at Merritton station, back badly injured.

Engineer Hespel, badly shaken up and sprained from jumping from engine.

Brakeman Johnston, of Boyle's train head injured.

Collector Flynn, of Niagara Falls, slightly injured.

Peter Welsh, of Port Dalhousie, badly injured, taken to hospital.

Dr. Youmans, St. Catharines, hurt on face.

Two others, who were in the smoker which telescoped, had their noses broken, but have gone away with friends.

MR. JACKSON'S STORY.

How anyone escaped is something marvellous. Mr. W. Jackson, of Rochdale, one of the passengers on the train from the Falls, escaped marvellously. To a reporter he said: How I escaped I do not know. We had just left Merritton, and were proceeding at a speed, I should say, of not less than 30 miles an hour. I happened to look towards the end of the car when I saw the brakeman and another man suddenly spring for the brake and work it as though for life. Then both jumped, and as they did so I heard a crash, and immediately a mass of cars, glass cracked and flew around, and then came a terrible darkness. The car seemed to turn over twice and then stopped, and I felt the water pouring on to me. In falling the cars formed a kind of archway through which I crawled then climbed on to the outside and to dry land. God only knows how I escaped death. I do not. We started from the Falls about 25 minutes late, and I heard the driver say then that the air brakes would not work. I escaped with a slight scalp wound."

WHO IS TO BLAME?

The officials are reticent about the fearful calamity and no reason is given for the disaster. It is said, however, that the blame rests on the shoulders of Conductor Peckham who should have waited at Merritton for Boyle's train but did not do so. He escaped with a shaking up.

Conductor Boyle was seen at the residence of Mr. Smith, where he was lying on a lounge with his head bandaged up. He said: "I was on the platform taking a drink of water when I heard the air brakes; I looked out to see what was the matter and then I was pitched out on my head and knew no more for some time. When I recovered most of the people were out of the wreck." He would say nothing more.

AN INQUEST OPENED.

An inquest was opened this afternoon by Dr. Goodman, coroner, with Reeve Prior, of Merritton, foreman of the jury. None of the train hands but a baggage checker on Conductor Peckham's train showed up. He said: "Heard the driver whistle shortly after leaving Merritton and the next I heard was a crash and a sudden shock. I got out of the car and helped get the wounded. We usually met Boyle's train at St. Catharines. We were running about 15 miles an hour.

WHAT THE STATION AGENT AT MERRITTON SAYS

H. Davis, Merritton, station agent, sworn: "Boyle's train had a right of way. Peckham's train, which according to book left at 10.25, should have left 10.07. Being late Peckham had lost all right to cross Boyle at St. Catharines. He had no right to leave Merritton till he received orders. Peckham would have the right to leave Morritton for St. Catharines if he could get there before Boyle is timed to leave. Five minutes is the time allowed to go the distance. Boyle is timed to leave St. Catharines at 10.28 a. m."

W. Jackson, of Rochdale, Eng., sworn: "Heard no whistle. Train was late leaving Falls. Saw brakemen try to put on brake as though in a great hurry. I was in smoker and rolled into the water. Vanslyke was in same car. The train was going at a speed of not less than 30 miles an hour. The railway officials would do nothing for the comfort of convenience of the passengers who were not badly hurt."

The inquest was adjourned until 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.—Empire.

The Newspaper Law.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether in his name of another's or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.

2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay up all arrears or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the post office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions the suits may be instituted in the place where the paper is published, although the subscriber may reside hundreds of miles away.

The courts have decided that refusing newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and locating them uncalled for, while unpaid is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
