Calgary, the prosperous motropolis of Alberta, is nothing if not pushing and the praying. At present the centre of a great pratric and ranching torritory, it is appress to be something more, and is send; ing a largely and influentially signed petition to the Imperial Government, through Lord Stanley, asking for the establishment of a purchasing depot and truining school of Army horses in Alberta,

The potition claims, and truly, that there are now many thousands of horses in the provisional province awaiting purchase, a fair proportion of which are suitable for Army purposes; that a steady improvement in the class of horses being raised is taking place, owing to greater care in breeding; and that the Canadian Pacific and its branches, in-running through this great horae-ranching district, affords splendid, facilities for distributing trainied horses where they are raised, and in buying and shipping them in large numbers. The character of the climate is such that out-door training could go on during most of the year, while sufficient land, say 1,000 acres, would not doubt be donated to the Imperial Government near Calgary, for an ample training farm if desired. The heceasary buildings could be orected of wood and stone, it is independent of the climate is such that out-door training could go on during most of the year, while sufficient land, say 1,000 acres, would not doubt be donated to the Imperial Government near Calgary, for an ample training farm if desired. It is patimated, finally, that under such an arrangement every Army horse would cost £5 less than it does at present.

We hope that every success will crown this most laudable enterprise, and that the citizens of Calgary may see some substantial result follow upon their action.
