Bennett Young was one of the "t. Albans raiders. He was the head centre of the confederate exiles in Montreals. It was he who planned and-led the raid in broad daylight upon St. Albans, Vermont. The story of that exploit is history. The raiders returned to Canada loaded down with the plunder of the bank which they campited. Some of them were arrested in Montreal, and Bennett Young was discharged from custody by Chief Justice Smith, who held that the whole business, including the bank robbery, was an act of warfare with not sattlined with the result and had Mr. Young brought to Toronto, where Judge Djuggan ordered his extradition.
