One essential feature of the proper care of hogs at this season of the year is the giving them as great a variety of food as possible until they are easily to go into the fattening pons.

If you commence crowding hogs you must continue until maturity or the hogs will be unequally proportioned. The safest plan is to push the growth and market as soon as ready.

One of the processes conducive to fattening an animal is luziness, rest. Contented happy, well ted hogs lay on flesh (fat) much faster if kept where they are undisturbed, have no means of rambling and no occasion for crying for food.
