Rocklyn.

The funeral of the late Miss J. Davis, whose death was announced in our correspondence of last week, took place on Wednesday, 18th, and was fitting, was very largely attended. Among those who came from a distance were Messrs. A. E. and Samuel Black, nephews, and Miss Jeanie Black, niece, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Silvorthorn, Owen Sound. The remains were laid to rest alongside those of her parents, brother and sister in Temple Hill cemetery. Rev. J. F. McLaren, B. D., conducted the funeral services; and after the interment preached in Temple Hill church from the text, "I command unto you Phebe one sister, which is a servant of the church." Romans XI, 1. He paid an eloquent tribute to the worth of the deceased lady, and well feeling upon the loss which the community sustains through her death. The reverend gentleman's remarks throughout were singularly appropriate and impressive.

per as the oysters were not obtainable. That part of my report was written before hand and I did not think it necessary to change it. Now, however, I am sorry that man McCullough, which two of deceased's sons are in the Ministry. Therefore I will not attempt an answer but will leave it to those interested to deal with as they deem prudent. By the way, Mr. Davis I must congratulate you on the unparalleled strides you have made educationally since that memorable night. Had I the least doubt about your honesty I would certainly conclude that a friend had dictated your malignant epistle.
