THE SELECT STORY BELIEVED

SHORT, BRIGHT VICTORY

The Latest Story by Prospero, the Known Author of "The White Wolf" and "The Silent Observer."

We sat in the parlor of the little inn. A curious looking creature, sitting on the rug, had many times attracted my attention.

"Who are you, do you know?" "Yes," was the reply, "that man has one of the most remarkable histories I have ever heard of, and as you know, that is my story."

"I will tell you the story this evening by my own desire; it is one which I have heard of for many years."

"The man you call the 'silent cripple' was once one of the merriest and most dashing fellows about Paris. He was in the Ministry of Public Works."

"I was, therefore, as you will imagine, in the very height of my glory, and in the love of a beautiful young girl, who was taken up with one of the greatest set-abouts town."
