Woman's Crime

Copyrigi (CONTINUED.) That won't take long. didn't follow in the water of that grant rankal very long, without discovering that someone else was up to the say dodge, and I wasted a little time trying dodge, and twated a fittle time try to figure out who it could bly. The made up my mind that I be the top Bradwardine go, and thaunt the howhere the two women at place, to white. You see I knew that I be down a had, no more than Neil there. took it for granted that this was right party, had hung dround the half the night. Well, it isn't a part larly large house, and before for these quarters I had sate it drive that the girll was not init. She did, by some rear entrance. Having set this in my mind, I had sapered that in my mind, I had sapered that of the first and found that there was a set it did a or court leading through to the street. Well, I cance here and best was about three o'cle set this morning after a brief consuntation and a complete them in the consumption of the same hours' sleep. I went back to my past romained there until noon or a hafter, when this yound mor land a dad o'clered me to built off. and ordered me to bull of have said. I had with ssed the od belonged to a corrain Mrs. Hard let mistross; and I had als single solf that the girl was not in tha then!" Here he be and back in his man, furnish the wind-up. Why call me off this afternion? and wittor Bradwardine while we said Neil; soberly Austrafte had left this meriting lass O'Neil; received a note from warding, asking me to meet fail at a certain rest current in at twolve, o'clock sharp he help in a delicate matter, he I met him promptly, aid the black, Mr. Ferrars, was nonyour humble servant. Me. 16 there unfolded to me a grayaion of this girl to merro aissist him in taking care of his why I called you oft, Rida, why I say that Jas' in Riada, be trusted to look after hims tle while." Kora long time they sat to then Francis Foreas, thinking besity, boked "You expect then to lar virtually, in your power. "And - half you proce to "That," said Ned, "s." "You tell me that the dency against her is car use Bathurst. Dryon, tehever p "That is a harl question "That is a hard question the thing that tells most ag my ostimation, is the faway from me, when I went us and she must have he noted for remaining she woul grite that balat protection "True." said I mars, give you arrest her, then my said if she were project ever so the tria, it would never do to tak that never do the tak that proud nobleman in a side been tried for her flife."

"True one igh." broke it for Roh Joedlyn. "By hexcens, the been terrilly wranged, excit, if we had a sister who had been followed. fully coore d into marrying despised, would have watter to the fellow in broad day-legal applauded for doing it. Therething I can bunder-tand, it is the control of the con the courage to denounce hime why did she not kill him on she wanted his life?" "That is an argument that see how you look upon the rars, and it's the right the this girl is' inne and then arresting her we will do her worse than faultless. This her looks very dark. B.: dimax that would utter y and-I want to see through ine's game. Thave secretary now that I think with states little. I want you to pass working out this besines than work enough for us ab require our combined wat to suc osdful termination. Was shall we combine out of work?" "Yos," said Ferrary, prompt ing his hand,

"Yes," said Joselyn, and I believe this is about tective's league ever institute. am going to leave this hand hands of you two, and e I'm a Joselyn in the same by act. "I do lovelyn in the same by act. "Yes! now; at least as so on's fulfilled my dangement with the we have know he same accordant." we should let him fate yeth. power-I think he me at Now, then, Mr. Ferrats, it is who are working together, vwe must, can meet at tsm s v. freedom. Rob has a.k. v. t. v. you must have anoth 1 \ \frac{1}{2} \text{ at d. } \cdots toot of a street that Mrs. Harr-boro anything out an envelope tion; but much of this laby been passed in questionable grand, as they were not to reduce long, it was hardly earth white. Lonore by replacing these is street; besides, Schore they retained attanger, could, of course, know attanger, could, of course, know at this. So Mrs. Harris gave the trouble about the street. The hi trouble about the street. The hi-cortainly an improvement by the of confort and elegation, who had and she peed take no thought for row. river. It was a large house wild pretensions to elegance, and Mr warding had taken it reads The first great step was tak in the con-The first great step was tak in the con-Armyn, was in his hopsy; her Mr. Bind warding was here in the adopting On the morning of the sector distribution. O'Neil loft the hopsy to visit that parts O'Noil left the house to visit that a crief of the city where the was no should had been resued from Bradwardine's clatch ca, had been seen by home Spears to rumain there all day. Mr. Bradwarding faucied that he know the North possible the woman had fored refer that he forest reason in the Mrs. O'Neil must make a the receipt which before the returned.

I tell you why I hope that the They drew nearer theheath raced, with faces exif save that closure from the lips of New Ha CHAPTER XXXVI.-IS THE STOLK'S Jason Bradwardine school Jason Bradwardine's selection to all appearances. In two paids to all appearances are two paids and the Lenore's Armyn' and Mes. Harris an up their abode under their selection with their abode by these four was situationally quarter of the them. Yet font of a street that Mrs. Mar.

Before Mrs. O'Neil deposed upon this mission, she did a given thing it into hor time with a view to solitude; so ne