CHRISTMAS NUMBER. -The Christmas number of the "STANDARD" Delineator is a veritable surprise. The artistic cover is rendered seasonable by the addition of a wreath of holly, the colored fashion and millipery plates are handsomer than ever, and the new designs for ladies, misses and children's costumes cannot be surpassed for style and beauty. It is a genuine treat to be able to procure so interesting a magazine for the small sum of ten cents, and every woman who wishes to be up to the times will find real help in the various departments.

Successful Concrit -The Cosgrove Company of Entertainers appeared for the second time before a Markdale audience last Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Citizens' Band. The band was out and played a number of selections on the corner and then marched down main street playing, returning to the front of the hall where they finished their part of the program, and at 8 olclock sharp the curtains rolled up and the program by the Cosgroves' began. We may say that any who have heard thus company before will not fail to hear them again, as Mr. Cosgrove carries with him nothing but a first-class company. Mr. Eert Harvey, comic singer, brought down the house every time he appeared and his songe are all new and rich. The imitation of a steam boat's arrival masses and commands a charming flower-bods and shady arequies, while a linear and his songe are all new and rich. in which the Queen received our later and honored Premier Sir John Thomp-son, who entered as the loyal subject-and guest of a queen; who departed a subject of the tytant Death. The Guard Chamber was also of interest, for here we saw, among other relies, four bronze cannon, captured in India, also a piece of the mast of the "Victory" (on board which Nelson was shot) with a hole made by a ball, at that battle. To see Windsor Castle, the home of our noble Queen, is the desire of per-haps every British subject. Of all the "homes of England" it is doubtless the most worthy, the principal personage in the realm. Although it has underone many alterations and improve-ents, since the time of the Normans, William the Conqueror may be con-sidered the founder of Windsor Castle. It is built of solid stone, and presents most massive and imposing exterior Between the two courts, is we enter, stands the Round Tower, used as a prison, down to 1660. The battlements command a charming view of the lovely country embracing, in clear weather, parts of twelve counties. Op-

We visited the Royal Mews, where we saw all the state and private carriages, trappings, harness, etc., and the plendid animals behind which the Queen drives. The apartment most enjoyed was the one in which were the horses with the lovely flowing manes and tails. On one side were the jet black and tails. On one side were in jet black arriage horses, on the other, the ream-colored horses, itself only on special occasions. On the same day we visited the Imperial Institute, devoted to the exhibition of the productions of England's colonies. Through their shady avenues oftimes sped the royal hunter, in quest of game, forgetful, for a time, of the cards and dangers, the responsibilities and trusts which accompany the crown and sceptre. As we ascended the broad stone stairway of the Palace, to the splendid baronial hall, filled with shadowy memories of past pageantly, we picture the Christians banquet at which Elizabeth was the guest and prisoner of Phillip and Mary. Here also, it is said, Shakespeare, played before good Queen Bess, and, probably in this room, Henry VIII, through Wolsey's manauvreing, met and seemingly fall in love with the near un At Antwerp we took the boat for Englaud, going on board in the evening, and awakening in English waters and in sight of English soil. We passthrough the splendid picture-gallery, through guard chambers, presence chambers, royal bedrooms, chaples, dining-hall, all adorned with paintings. From Hampton Court, we took the steamer down the Thames and it was a most delightful sail. Here we saw mumberless pleasure-boats flitting over unberless pleasure boats flitting over e water, gay with the pretty boating-stunies of their inmates; then house on, of which we had read and had ctured, would glide past us, with their o awnings and easy chairs.
